Preface

AFTER years of patient but loving labor, the compiler of this volume has achieved a work of scholarly distinction, of elegant artistry, and withal of practical utility.

It is a work of scholarly distinction. The field of Latin hymnology is vast in extent and rich in resources, and translators have roamed far and wide amid its fertile reaches for highly varied blooms and fruits. The compiler has therefore had many rich stores to draw upon, but he has wisely restricted himself to very definite limits of choice. The hymns of the Roman Missal and Breviary form a thesaurus by themselves. Many of them are world-famous classics. Some of them have won translation and commentary that fill volumes devoted to them singly. All of them deserve rendition into English verse and, indeed, have been more than once so rendered. Father Caswall and Archbishop Bagshawe, each for his own day, translated all of the Missal and Breviary hymns. Caswall did more, it is true, finding other treasures in the Parisian and various Monastic Breviaries. His competency for the task he essayed was manifold and excellent, and his Lyra Catholica will doubtless forever remain a Catholic classic. Bagshawe confined his attention to the Roman liturgical hymns, setting himself the somewhat ungrateful task of closely literal translation. In our own day, Judge Donahoe has published two series of Early Christian Hymns, including very many from the Roman liturgy, and has merited the high praise accorded him by critics. Catholic renderings into English of individual liturgical hymns are well-nigh innumerable. While Catholics have naturally been active in such appropriate work, it may seem at first blush astonishing that

Protestants should have issued so many volumes of translation, history, commentary and appreciation of our Latin hymnody, and should have exhausted the language of eulogy in appraisal of the masterpieces—the Dies Iræ, the Stabat Mater, the Lauda Sion, the Golden Sequence, and the like. Charles Warren found sufficient matter in the history and the translations of the Dies Iræ for a good-sized volume. Dr. Coles, an American physician, gave a volume to the Stabat Mater. Judge Noyes unostentatiously issued his Seven Great Hymns of the Mediæval Church, and the book ran through many editions. The name of Protestant editors and translators of our Latin hymns is legion. One of the most earnest and reverent students of Latin hymnody, and perhaps the most felicitous of all the translators, was an Anglican clergyman, the Rev. J. M. Neale, D.D. The distinction achieved by Father Britt in the present volume, however, does not lie in the fact that he has ventured, with catholicity of literary taste, to include renderings by other than Catholic pens. Orby Shipley in his Annus Sanctus and the Marquess of Bute in his Roman Breviary had already drawn a sharp contrast—the former excluding, the latter including, non-Catholic renderings. But the present compiler has, more largely than any other, given representation to non-Catholic pens. He has mainly sought for translations that should best combine a just literalness with the just freedom in phrase and form accorded by literary canons in the art of translation. There is obvious danger, on the one hand, that the ray of doctrinal truth will suffer refraction when it passes from the medium of the Latin idiom into the medium of the English tongue. On the other hand, there is danger that excessive devotion to literalness in phrase rather than in thought will issue in idiomatic awkwardness, questionable rhyming, stilted or crabbed rhythm.

While the work of Father Britt derives distinction from this largeness of view in selection, it also aims to secure elegant artistry in the translation of our wonderfully rich hymnody. The task is trying beyond ordinary apprehension, for the editor must minutely weigh questions of accuracy in the rendering, must measure relative felicities of phrase, must compare stanza with stanza, must evaluate sensitively the appropriateness of an English metre to that of the Latin original. Meanwhile, he must remain always fearful lest some subtle essence or quintessence of the Latin poet's fine frenzy may have been lost, some hardly discernible antithesis in thought or phrase overlooked (as Dr. Neale pointed out in several English translations of the Angelic Doctor's Pange Lingua), some curiosa felicitas of the Latin handled with unlaboriously heavy touch. The art of selection in the midst of many fairly satisfactory renditions is indeed, to the conscientious anthologist, a most trying one. But the artistic labor does not end here. Merely to select at random will hardly suffice. But to choose the version always which seems best to satisfy the canons of art might result in the too frequent recurrence of the same names—those of Caswall, Neale, Newman, for instance—with an undesirable monotony. A large volume must have a large variety in authorship, when it is an anthology in the field of Latin hymnody. The difficulty confronted is not the superficial one, however, of a mere variety in names. In the domain of music, one may tire of the majesty of Bach, the stormy emotionalism of Beethoven, the “cloying sweetness” of Mendelssohn. In literature, one may desire a change even from the morning freshness of Chaucer, the vivid heart-searchings of Shakespeare, the sententious rhythms of Pope. More is needed than a mere variety in metric forms—a device used by translators in order to avoid monotony. There should be variety in mental and spiritual experience and outlook, in poetic gifts, in rhymic and rhythmic facilities, in variant literary modes. To sum it up briefly, there should be variety in the unmeasurable thing called personality. For the style is the man—the complex, like himself, of his culture, his loves and hopes, his anxieties and fears. Accordingly, the compiler has availed himself of the labors of some sixty translators of the one hundred and seventy-three hymns included in his volume. The reader may therefore confidently look for that variety which is the spice of literature as of life. Incidentally, he will receive a broad vision of the hymnologic work going on in the world around him.

PREFACE

The utility of Father Britt's labor of love is practical in many ways. A good translation is really an interpretation. It does not render merely the words or even the thoughts of the original writer into another tongue, but seeks as well to pierce into his mood, to reproduce it for the reader, to catch and fix that first passion which beggars all behind,

Heirs of a tamer transport prepossessed.

And so it is that the learned Latinist may still learn at times something from the studious, gifted, visioned translator, even as the learned Shakespearian etymologist may gain deeper insight from the action and emphasis of a Garrick or a Booth. In the lower levels of thought, a good interpretation may be gained from a good translation; for not a few of the Latin hymns need intelligent commentary for their easy or complete elucidation—a commentary sometimes supplied, in a large sense, by a poetic translator. On a still lower plane, some of the Latin hymns (such as the Æterne Rerum Conditor, the Ut Queant Laxis) present grammatical tangles not readily solvable by the ordinary graduate of a course in Latin language and literature. But if the innumerable hosts of those who have had no training in Latin are to benefit by the wisdom, the piety, the fervor enshrined in the hymns of the Roman liturgy, the work of the translator becomes indispensable.

It remains but to felicitate the compiler upon the completion of his long and loving labor and to bespeak for his volume the attention of all students of Latin hymnology and all lovers of the venerable hymns of the Roman Missal and Breviary.

Author's Preface

THE purpose of this volume is to provide an introductory work on the hymns of the Roman Breviary and Missal. In its pages will be found all the hymns in the Breviary since the Bull Divino Afflatu of Pope Pius X (1911), together with the five sequences of the Missal, and a few other hymns. There is at present in English no work that even approximately covers this ground. Many thoughtful men have long felt that something should be done to make our liturgical hymns better known and better understood.

The Dies Iræ, the Vexilla Regis, the Stabat Mater, the Lauda Sion, and the Pange Lingua are of incomparably greater value to the Christian than the greatest of pagan odes. However, the study of the ancient classics and of Christian hymns may and should go hand in hand. Each has its own purpose; there is no quarrel between them. The one serves to cultivate a delicate and refined taste, the other enkindles in the soul the loftiest sentiments of religion. The study of the former prepares one for a fuller and more generous enjoyment of the latter.

The present volume is intended as a manual for beginners—for those who have had no access to the many excellent works on Latin hymns edited in other languages. The editor has no new theories of authorship to propound, no new historical facts to announce, and in general no new interpretation of disputed passages in the hymns. For historical data he freely acknowledges his indebtedness to many existing works, especially to the Dictionary of Hymnology so ably edited by the late Rev. Dr. John Julian, and the Rev. James Mearns, M.A.

The translations referred to throughout the volume are metrical translations. There are no prose translations in English, if one excepts a considerable part of the hymns of the Proper of the Season, which are found in Abbot Guéranger's great work The Liturgical Year. The metrical versions given here represent the work of more than sixty translators, some of whom flourished as early as the seventeenth century. In the selection of these translations many hymn-collections and many of the finest hymn-books have been laid under tribute. Catholic and Anglican scholars, especially since the days of the Oxford Movement, have vied with one another in rendering our Latin hymns into English verse. Both in the number of translators and in the quality of their work the honors are about equally divided. It is worthy of note that Catholic scholars have ordinarily translated the Roman Breviary Text, while Anglicans have generally rendered the Original Text as found in the Benedictine and Dominican Breviaries. Much time was spent in the selection of the translations that accompany the Latin hymns. Despite the great wealth of translations the editor is inclined to believe that the number of really good versions of any particular hymn is not great. A translation, to be worthy of the name, must combine good idiomatic English with a literal rendering of the original. The retention of the meter of the original is also very desirable. Some translators have excelled in one of these qualities, some in another; few have successfully combined all of them. In not a few instances it was found necessary to restrict the choice of translations to those made directly from the Roman Breviary Text. Often however the two Texts while differing verbally do not differ greatly in sense. In such instances translations of the Original Text by J. M. Neale and others are freely given. It was a part of the instruction given the revisers of the hymns in 1632 that the meter and sense of each line should be preserved, and that expressions should not be fundamentally altered. It need scarcely be said that this instruction was not always followed.

Whenever ascertainable the name of the translator of each hymn is given. Statements as to authorship do not as a rule include Doxologies, Latin or English. Considerable liberty was taken in the selection of English Doxologies. The number of English translations is given under each hymn. The number of translations credited to a hymn is based in great part on the versions mentioned in Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology and in Duffield's Latin Hymn-Writers. To these lists have been added several recent translations. All such lists are necessarily incomplete.

The editor is not unconscious of the many shortcomings and imperfections of the present volume; but if it will serve to enkindle in the hearts of beginners, especially of young men studying for the priesthood, a love for the hymns of Holy Church, it will have accomplished the chief purpose for which it was undertaken. Its preparation has been both a pastime and a labor of love. The result is cheerfully submitted to the judgment and correction of the proper ecclesiastical authorities. The pointing out of any inaccuracies will be duly acknowledged and greatly appreciated by the editor.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The editor desires to express his warmest thanks to many kind friends for their generous assistance in the preparation of this work. A special word of acknowledgment is due to the Right Rev. Msgr. H. T. Henry, Litt.D., and to the late Right Rev. Peter Engel, O.S.B., for their kindly interest in the work from its inception. The editor's thanks are also due to many authors and publishers for permission to use the translations here assigned them: to Mr. Robert Bridges, the Poet Laureate, for permission to use hymn 12 from The Yattendon Hymnal; to the Benedictines of Stanbrook for hymns 99, 100, 121, 122, 138, 140 from their The Day Hours of the Church; to Messrs. Burns, Oates and Washbourne for hymns 98 and 146 from Archbishop Bagshawe's Breviary Hymns and Missal Sequences; to the representatives of the late Marquess of Bute for hymns 84, 95, 141 from his Roman Breviary in English; to the Rev. John Connolly for hymn 116 by the late Canon Hall; to the Rev. Percy Dearmer for hymn 156; to Mr. Lawrence Housman for hymn 164; to Judge D. J. Donahue for a new translation of hymn 159, and for hymns 86, 123, 142, 143, from his Early Christian Hymns; to the Rev. Edward F. Garesché, S.J. for hymn 80; to the Rev. T. A. Lacey, M.A. for hymn 48; to the Right Rev. Msgr. H. T. Henry for hymns 41, 75, 96, 97, 131, 139, 144; to the Right Rev. Sir David Oswald Hunter-Blair, O.S.B. for a new translation of hymn 30, and for hymn 141; to Miss Julian for hymn 20 written by her distinguished father; to the proprietors of Hymns Ancient and Modern (H.A. and M.) for hymns 34B and 154; to Messrs. Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co. for hymn 102 by the late Charles Kegan Paul; to Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co. for hymn 135, by the late Dr. T. I. Ball; to Mr. Alan G. McDougall for hymns 1, 64, 77, 105, 129, 136, 138, 156 which now appear in print for the first time; to Messrs. Macmillan and to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge (S.P.C.K.) for hymns 14, 16, 18, 27, 36 by the late W. J. Courthope; to the Oxford University Press for hymn 4 by Messrs. Ellerton and Hort; to the Rev. G. H. Palmer, B.A. for permission to use many copyright hymns from The Hymner—this includes all the hymns ascribed to Messrs. G. H. Palmer, M. J. Blacker, W. J. Copeland, J. W. Chadwick, and J. W. Doran; to Mr. Athelstan Riley, M.A. for hymns 42 and 129; to The Rosary Magazine for hymn 139; to the Rev. G. R. Woodward, M.A. for a new translation of the Ave Maris Stella 149B, and for many courtesies; to the proprietors of The English Hymnal for the translation ascribed above to Messrs. Athelstan Riley, T. A. Lacey, Percy Dearmer, and Laurence Housman.

Among the many scholars and friends to whom the editor is indebted he would here make special mention of Mr. James Britten, K.S.G., the Rev. James Mearns, M.A., Mr. Alan G. McDougall and the Rev. Ildephonse Brandstetter, O.S.B. Many of those already mentioned have been very kind and helpful in looking up the owners of hymns still in copyright. This in itself has been no slight task as most of these are the property of English authors and publishers. The editor has spared no efforts to ascertain the owners of all copyright hymns; but if through inadvertence any have been overlooked, indulgence is asked in so worthy a cause, and the editor promises that due acknowledgement will be made at the earliest opportunity.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Works containing translations of Latin hymns, without Latin texts and comment, will be found among the bibliographies of translators at the end of this volume.

1. John Julian: A Dictionary of Hymnology, 2nd Ed., London, 1907. A truly great work which sets forth the origin of Christian hymns of all ages and nations. Very valuable for Latin hymns. This work does not contain texts.

2. S. W. Duffield: Latin Hymn-Writers and Their Hymns, New York, 1889. This work is a series of critical essays; it contains a few Latin hymns and translations. It is not a reliable work. Funk and Wagnalls, New York.

3. R. C. Trench: Sacred Latin Poetry, Chiefly Lyrical, London, 1864. Trench was the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin. This book is an old favorite. It contains 76 Latin hymns, six of which are from the Breviary and two from the Missal. The introduction (52 pages) is very instructive. The book is the work of a scholar, albeit a bigoted one.

4. F. A. March: Latin Hymns, New York, 1874. Contains Latin text of 160 hymns with brief but good notes; 37 of these hymns are in the Breviary or Missal. American Book Co., New York.

5. Eucharistica by Right Rev. Msgr. H. T. Henry, Litt. D. Contains, among much other valuable matter, the Latin texts with translations of some forty hymns in honor of the Blessed Sacrament, the Sacred Heart, and the Holy Name. There are sixty pages of comment. The Dolphin Press, Philadelphia, 1912.

6. The Catholic Encyclopedia: This great work is frequently referred to throughout this volume. It contains much valuable information on our Latin hymns. The article on Hymnody and Hymnology was contributed by Rev. Clemens Blume, S.J., one of the editors of Analecta Hymnica. There are also some fifty articles on individual hymns, practically all of which were contributed by Msgr.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE

H. T. Henry. Each article is followed by a valuable bibliography.

7. American Ecclesiastical Review: During the last twenty-five years the American Ecclesiastical Review has contained many scholarly articles on our Latin hymns, and many translations. Most of the articles and translations are from the pen of Msgr. H. T. Henry.

8. Latin Hymns edited with an introduction and notes by Rev. Matthew Germing, S.J., Loyola University Press, Chicago, 1920. This inexpensive booklet contains forty-five hymns judiciously chosen and carefully edited for classroom purposes.

9. Latin Hymns edited by W. A. Merrill. A small volume of Latin hymns with brief but good notes. About forty of the hymns are from the Breviary and Missal. Sanborn, Boston, 1904.

10. Hymns Ancient and Modern (H. A. & M.), Historical Edition, London, 1909. Contains 643 hymns, among which are 148 Latin hymns with English translations and notes. It contains a valuable Introduction (110 pages). The text of the Latin hymns "Hymni Latini" is also printed separately in vest pocket form. (Wm. Clowes & Sons, Ltd., 23 Cockspur St., London, S.W.)

11. L'abbé Pimont: Les Hymnes du Bréviaire Romain. Etudes critiques, littéraires et mystiques. 3 Vols., Paris, 1874-1884. A valuable commentary; a good companion would be the work next listed below.

12. Louis Gladu: Les Hymnes du Bréviaire traduites en français avec le text latin en regard. Second Ed., Quebec, 1913.

13. Johan Kayser: Beiträge zur Geschichte und Erklärung der ältesten Kirchenhymnen. 2 Vols., Paderborn, 1881-1886. An excellent commentary.

14. Adelbert Schulte: Die Hymnen des Breviers nebst den Sequenzen des Missale; 2nd Ed., Paderborn, 1906. This work contains the Roman Breviary Text of the hymns, and the Original Text where it differs from the former. There is a very literal prose translation of each hymn together with ample explanatory notes. It is one of the best works obtainable on our Latin hymns.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE

15. F. J. Mone: Lateinische Hymnen des Mittelalters, 3 Vols., Freiburg, 1853-1855. Since its publication this has been one of the standard works on Latin hymns.

16. H. A. Daniel: Thesaurus Hymnologicus, 5 Vols., Leipzig, 1841-1856. A valuable and extensive collection of hymns. The arrangement however is poor, and the abbreviations and references in the notes are most obscure. The first volume contains in parallel columns about fifty Breviary hymns in both the Original Text and the Roman Breviary Text.

17. Dreves and Blume: Analecta Hymnica Medii Ævi. Leipzig, 1886. This great work when completed will contain about sixty volumes. More than fifty are now in print. It is the most extensive work on Latin hymnody thus far undertaken. The work listed next below should be in the hands of every user of the Analecta Hymnica.

18. James Mearns: Early Latin Hymnaries. An index of hymns in hymnaries before 1100. It gives references to the three following works where the texts of the hymns are printed: Analecta Hymnica (supra); Werner's Die ältesten Hymnensammlungen von Rheinau, 1891; Stevenson's The Latin Hymns of the Anglo-Saxon Church, 1851; References are also given to Chevalier's Repertorium Hymnologicum, the great index to Latin hymns.

Introduction

HISTORICAL

THE use of hymns in the Western Church dates from the fourth century, from the days of the two illustrious Doctors of the Church, SS. Hilary and Ambrose. The first in point of time to write hymns was Hilary, the ever vigilant bishop of Poitiers (d. 368). St. Hilary, who had earned for himself the title of Malleus Arianorum, "the Hammer of the Arians," was sent into exile by the Arian Emperor Constantius. His place of exile was Phrygia, a country in western Asia Minor. During the six years of his enforced sojourn among the Greeks, he became familiar with Greek metrical hymns which were at that time coming into use among the Christians in the East. On his return to Poitiers in 361 he began the writing of Latin hymns in the West. His efforts were not crowned with great success. Most of his hymns have perished and many of those which bear his name are the compositions of later writers. In 1887, three fragments of hymns from St. Hilary's Liber Hymnorum were discovered; these are probably the only genuine hymns of St. Hilary that have survived.

To St. Ambrose (340-397), the great Bishop of Milan, is to be ascribed the honor of being the real founder of hymnody in the West. St. Ambrose began the writing of hymns as a means of combating the pernicious doctrines of the Arians. His hymns were used to convey correct Catholic doctrine to the minds and hearts of his people. For this purpose he chose with remarkable judgment a simple strophe consisting of four iambic dimeters—four lines of eight syllables each. This, which is the simplest of all the lyric meters, is most suitable for congregational singing and is easily memorized. The hymns of St. Ambrose became very popular, and from Milan they spread rapidly throughout the West. Many imitators arose who imitated the style and meter of St. Ambrose. All such hymns were given the general name Ambrosiani—Ambrosian hymns. So popular were the hymns of St. Ambrose and of the Ambrosian school of hymn-writers that with a few insignificant exceptions hymns in this meter were almost exclusively used down to the eleventh century, nor did other meters come into extensive use until as late as the sixteenth century. Even to this day hymns written by St. Ambrose or by his imitators greatly predominate in the Breviary. H. A. Daniel in his Thesaurus Hymnologicus (Vol. 1), gives ninety-two hymns which he ascribes to St. Ambrose or to his contemporaries or successors. Many of these Ambrosiani are certainly not the work of St. Ambrose. The Benedictine editors of the works of St. Ambrose attribute to him twelve hymns. Father Dreves, the eminent hymnologist, after a careful study of the hymnaries in the Vatican and at Milan in 1893, gives it as his opinion that fourteen of the hymns ascribed to St. Ambrose are “genuine” and that four others are “possibly his.”

During the four centuries that elapsed between the death of St. Ambrose (397) and that of Charlemagne (814), many Christian poets sang in noble strains. In meter and outward form they imitated the hymns of St. Ambrose. Conspicuous among those whose hymns are used in the Divine Office are the Spanish poet Prudentius (d. 413) whose Cathemerinon is frequently mentioned in this volume; Sedulius (5th cent.) who gave us the beautiful Christmas hymn A solis ortus cardine; Fortunatus (d. 609) “the last of the Latin poets of Gaul” and the author of the incomparable Vexilla Regis and of the sublime passion hymn Pange lingua; St. Gregory the Great (d. 604) to whom tradition assigns a place among the hymn-writers; Paul the Deacon (d. 799), a Benedictine of Monte Cassino, the author of the first Sapphic hymn Ut queant laxis; and Rabanus Maurus (d. 856), the learned Archbishop of Mainz, the probable author of the Veni Creator Spiritus.

HISTORICAL

The second period of hymn-writing embraces the period between the ninth and the sixteenth century. It was a period of the greatest activity. Many of the medieval hymn-writers were exceedingly prolific, and a mere mention of the names of those who distinguished themselves would be a lengthy task. The hymn-writers of the Middle Ages allowed themselves greater liberty than the earlier Christian poets, and in general the rules of prosody were disregarded. It is noticeable also that the hymns of this period became more subjective than the somewhat austere hymns of St. Ambrose and his imitators. Popular subjects were—the Passion and Wounds of Christ, His Holy Name, the Joys of Paradise, the Terrors of the Judgment, hymns in honor of Our Lady and of the Saints. Among the great names of this period is that of St. Thomas Aquinas (d. 1274), the poet of the Blessed Sacrament; Bernard of Cluny (12th cent.), author of De Contemptu Mundi, a poem of 3,000 lines which is well known to English readers from Neale's translations—"The world is very evil," and "Jerusalem the golden," which are found at the end of this volume. To this period also belongs Adam of St. Victor, the author of many sequences of incomparable beauty, and the most prominent and prolific hymn-writer of the Middle Ages. To these great names must be added that of Jacopone da Todi (d. 1306), the author of the tenderest of all poems, the Stabat Mater; and the still greater name of Thomas of Celano (d. circa 1255), the immortal author of the greatest of uninspired compositions, the Dies Iræ.

The third period of Latin hymn-writing extends to the present day. It is not a period marked by any great names nor has it been productive of any noteworthy new school of hymn-writers. As in all worldly things a period of growth and activity is followed by a period of decay. The art of Latin hymn-writing did not prove to be an exception to this rule. With the close of the Ages of Faith the sun of Latin hymnody set in all its splendor. Two causes conspired to make Latin hymn-writing a lost art. During the ages when hymnody flourished men thought in Latin and spoke Latin; for them Latin was a living language, and one fully capable of giving expression to the most subtle and refined thoughts and feelings of the human soul.

Fortunately also men gloried in their Faith and in the external manifestation of it in literature, in architecture, in painting, and in sculpture. Unfortunately these conditions obtain no longer. Latin has become a dead language even to scholars, and no one writes poetry in a language which he has not learned from his mother but from books. The second cause of the decay of hymnody was the Renaissance. To the Humanist no Latin poem was correct that did not measure up to the classical standards of the Augustan Age. Any deviation from this standard was a barbarism. "The Humanists," says Father Clemens Blume, S.J., "abominated the rhythmical poetry of the Middle Ages from an exaggerated enthusiasm for ancient classical forms and meters. Hymnody then received its death blow as, on the revision of the Breviary under Pope Urban VIII, the medieval rhythmical hymns were forced into more classical forms by means of so-called corrections." (Cath. Encycl., Art. Hymnody). Pope Urban was himself a Humanist, the last in fact of the Humanist Popes. During his reign a commission was appointed to revise the Breviary, and a special commission of four distinguished Jesuit scholars, Fathers Sarbiewski, Strada, Galluzzi, and Petrucci was appointed to correct the hymns of the Breviary. As a result of the labors of this commission, 952 corrections were made in the 98 hymns then in the Breviary. Eighty-one hymns were corrected: 58 alterations were made in the hymns of the Psalter, 359 in the Proper of the Season, 283 in the Proper of the Saints, and 252 in the Common of the Saints. The first lines of more than 30 hymns were altered.

The Jam lucis orto sidere, the Ave Maris Stella, the hymns of St. Thomas Aquinas, and a few others were spared. Some hymns were practically rewritten, others were scarcely touched. In 1629, the Sacred Congregation of Rites approved of the alterations, and by the Bull Divinam Psalmody in 1632, Pope Urban VIII introduced them into the official edition of the Breviary. In connection with the revision of the hymns it should be borne in mind that the act of Urban VIII was a purely disciplinary act, one which the Church may recall at any time, and one which she probably will recall, for the work of the revisers is now generally regarded as a mistake. The hymns in their old form are still found in the Breviaries of the Benedictines, Dominicans, Cistercians, Carthusians, and probably a few others. And, strangely enough, they are still used in the two great Churches in Rome, St. Peter's and St. John Lateran.

A word yet remains to be said as to when hymns were first made an integral part of the Divine Office. It seems fairly certain that St. Benedict, who wrote his Rule some ten or fifteen years before his death in 543, was the first to make hymns an integral part of the canonical hours. St. Benedict invariably styles these hymns Ambrosiani but does not name them. A century later hymns constituted a part of the Office of the secular clergy in Gaul and Spain. Rabanus Maurus (d. 856) testifies that hymns were in general use in his day. And last of all Rome admitted hymns into the Divine Office in the twelfth century. It must not be inferred, however, that no hymns were sung in the churches throughout the West until they were officially recognized as a part of the liturgical Office. From the days of St. Ambrose (d. 397) the singing of Latin hymns in the Church occupied the same position that is now accorded the singing of hymns in the vernacular. This is true even of conservative Rome long before the twelfth century. It might be recalled that Pope St. Gregory the Great (d. 604), himself a hymn-writer of note, was for several years before his elevation to the Papacy a Benedictine abbot in the monastery of St. Andrew on the Cælian Hill. While there he must have become familiar with the Ambrosiani of the Benedictine Office which he sang daily. Nor is it conceivable, from what we know of his life, that as Pope he should not have encouraged the singing of hymns in the churches of Rome.

METERS

A considerable variety of meters has been employed by the Christian poets in the composition of Latin hymns.

INTRODUCTION

These meters or verse forms receive their name partly from the foot that chiefly predominates in them; as, Iambic, Trochaic, and partly from the number of meters or measures they contain; as, Dimeter, Trimeter; or from the name of the author who originated or employed a certain kind of verse: as, Sapphic, Glyconic, Asclepiadic, etc.

By far the greater part of the hymns is written in Iambic and Trochaic meters. In these meters Latin verses are measured not by single feet as in English, but by pairs or dipodies. In Latin it requires four Iambi or Trochees to make a Dimeter, while in English a verse with the same number of feet is called a Tetrameter. A Dimeter, therefore, in these meters, contains four Iambi or Trochees; a Trimeter six; and a Tetrameter eight.

The Romans learned their poetry, as they learned the other fine arts, from the Greeks. About two centuries before Christ the influence of Greek poetry began to manifest itself in the writings of Ennius, "the Father of Roman poetry." The influence of Greek models increased from year to year till it culminated in the immortal works of Horace and Virgil in the Golden Age of Latin literature. Horace exemplifies all that is best in Latin poetry, and it was the poetry of Horace and his contemporaries that was the delight of the cultured Romans whose taste had been formed on Greek models. This poetry, it need scarcely be said, was strictly quantitative.

But together with this classical poetry there co-existed, and that too from the beginning of Latin letters, a purely rhythmical poetry, a poetry of the people, in which the ballads and folk songs of the common people were written. The common people knew nothing of quantity with its artificial and arbitrary rules which the poets had made. Quantitative poetry was therefore the poetry of the educated; rhythmical or accentual poetry was the poetry of the common people. (Now, the early hymns of the Church were likewise the songs of the people, and were necessarily written in a manner that would appeal to all the people and not merely to the cultured classes. This was effected by St. Ambrose and by the earlier writers of the Ambrosian school, by a compromise between the quantitative and the rhythmical principles. These writers made use of the simplest of all the lyric meters, the Iambic Dimeter, with its regular succession of short and long syllables; but they took care that the accents should in general fall on the long syllables. Their quantitative hymns can therefore be read rhythmically. In the composition of his hymns, St. Ambrose did not make use of any greater licenses than did Horace and his contemporaries. Later on, however, it is noticeable that less and less attention was paid to quantity and greater attention to accent which began to replace it. As early as the fifth century many hymn-writers employed the rhythmical principle only. This process continued until in the Middle Ages all sense of long and short syllables had vanished, and hymns were written in accental, non-quantitative meters. In studying the hymns chronologically, it will be observed also that the growth of rhyme kept pace with the growth of accent.

The scales given below illustrate the common quantitative forms of the various meters employed in the composition of Latin hymns. In non-quantitative Latin hymns, and in English hymns, accent marks may be substituted for the marks indicating the long syllables.

Sing, my tongue, the glorious battle, sing the ending of the fray;
 Now above the Cross, the trophy, sound the loud triumphant lay;
 Tell how Christ, the world's Redeemer, as a Victim won the day.

The caesura uniformly follows the fourth foot—thus dividing each verse into a trochaic dimeter acatalectic, and a trochaic dimeter catalectic; thus,

Pange lingua gloriosi
 Lauream certaminis, etc.

Sing, my tongue, the glorious

 Sing the ending of the fray, etc.

In the Breviary the lines are uniformly broken in two at the caesura, thus forming stanzas of six lines. See hymns 52, 53, 76, 119, 132, 134B, 168 and their English translations.

This strophe consists of three Asclepiadic lines and one Glyconic. The above is a classical specimen of a hymn written in this meter. See the translations of hymns 77, 136, 159.

There is some difference of opinion as to how the classical Asclepiadic strophe should be read. This question is discussed in the article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl. However, the majority of those who read these hymns in the Breviary, read them rhythmically as if written in dactyls. This is well exemplified in another article in the same work on the hymn Sacris solemniss—a hymn written in accentual, non-quantitative measures:

Lo! the Angelic Bread feedeth the sons of men:
 Figures and types are fled never to come again.
 O what a wondrous thing! lowly and poor are fed,
 Banqueting on their Lord and King.

THE CANONICAL HOURS

Each of the first three lines of the Sapphic strophe consists of a trochee, spondee, dactyl, and two trochees. The last syllable may be long or short. The fourth line is Adonic, and consists of a dactyl followed by a spondee. In the first three lines the place for the caesura is generally after the fifth syllable. See hymns: 7, 10, 96, 105, 106, 113, 114, 115, 121, 135, 160, 164. Most of these hymns are translated in the meters, Sapphic and Adonic, of the originals.

THE CANONICAL HOURS

The canonical hours are: Matins, Lauds, Prime, Terce, Sext, None, Vespers and Compline. Matins is composed of parts called Nocturns or Vigils, two or three in number. Lauds was originally the concluding part of Matins. Even now Matins and Lauds are scarcely ever separated. The traditional view is that the Nocturns of Matins were recited at different times during the night. Outside of monastic communities, however, the observance of such nightly Vigils would scarcely be possible.

There is in the Breviary a hymn assigned to each of the canonical hours. Many of these hymns contain allusions which are better understood in both the literal and symbolical sense, when it is known at what particular part of the day or night the hymn was formerly sung. The following table will be found sufficiently accurate for all practical purposes.

Table "A" When the Canonical Hours Were Formerly Said

Prime, at 6:00 A. M.	First Nocturn of Matins at 9:00 P. M.
Terce, at 9:00 A. M.	Second Nocturn of Matins at 12:00 P. M.
Sext, at 12:00 M.	Third Nocturn of Matins at 3:00 A. M.
None, at 3:00 P. M.
Vespers, at 6:00 P. M.
Compline, at nightfall
Lauds was said at daybreak

In appointing these times for the recitation of the canonical hours, the Church had in mind the greater divisions or hours of the Roman day. The Romans divided the day, from sunrise to sunset, into twelve equal parts called "hours." These were the common hours. "Are there not twelve hours of the day?" (John 11, 9). They also (as did the Jews after the conquest) divided the day into four greater hours, and the night into four watches (custodiæ, vigiliæ, noctes) each of which was of three common hours' duration. As the hours or watches of the Roman day and night were based on solar time, they varied in length with the season of the year. The season of the equinox is uniformly taken as the standard. At that time the duration of day and night being equal, the hours and watches were also equal. The following Tables illustrate the greater divisions of the Roman day and night, and a comparison with Table "A" will show how the Church adopted the ancient Roman subdivisions of the day and night as times of prayer.

Table "B" The Greater Hours of the Roman Day

The First Hour (Roman time) was from 6:00 A. M. to 9:00 A. M. (our time)

The Third Hour (Roman time) was from 9:00 A. M. to 12:00 M. (our time)

The Sixth Hour (Roman time) was from 12:00 M. to 3:00 P. M. (our time)

The Ninth Hour (Roman time) was from 3:00 P. M. to 6:00 P. M. (our time)

(6:00 A.M. Prime; 9:00 A.M. Terce; 12:00 M. Sext; 3:00 P.M. None; 6:00 P.M. Vespers.)

Table "C" Roman Divisions of the Night

The First Watch, "evening," was from 6:00 P. M. to 9:00 P. M. (our time)

The Second Watch, "midnight," was from 9:00 P. M. to 12:00 P. M. (our time)

The Third Watch, "cock-crowing," was from 12:00 P. M. to 3:00 A. M. (our time)

The Fourth Watch, "morning," was from 3:00 A. M. to 6:00 A. M. (our time)

These hours and watches are frequently mentioned in the New Testament. In a single verse St. Mark refers to the four watches. "You know not when the lord of the house cometh; at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning" (xiii, 35). The Catholic Encyclopedia contains instructive articles on each of the canonical hours; there is also an article on Breviary, and one on Nocturns.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Alan G. McDougall. There are about thirty translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Prime daily throughout the year. Read the article on Prime in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "The star of light being now risen, let us humbly beseech God, that in our daily actions He may keep us from all harm." Lucis sidus=sol; Prime was said at sunrise.

2. "Bridling, may He restrain the tongue, lest the jarring discord of strife resound; may He lovingly veil our sight lest it drink in vanities." Fovendo: "The ablative of the gerund and gerundive is used to express manner, means, cause, etc. In this use, the ablative of the gerund is, in later writers nearly, and in medieval writers entirely, equivalent to a present participle" (Allen and Greenough's New Latin Grammar, 507). Linguam: Qui enim vult vitam diligere, et dies videre bonos, coerceat linguam suam a malo, et labia ejus ne loquantur dolum (I Peter 3, 10). For an exposition of the sins of the tongue, read the third chapter of St. James' Epistle. Visum: Averte oculos meos, ne videant vanitatem (Ps. 118, 37).

3. "May the inmost recesses of the heart be pure, and may folly cease; may the sparing use of food and drink wear down the pride of the flesh." Parcitas: In multis enim escis erit infirmitas . . . Propter crapulam multi obierunt; qui autem abstinens est, adjiciet vitam (Ecclus. 37, 33-34).

4. "That when the day has departed, and fate has brought back the night, still pure by virtue of abstinence, we may sing His glory." Sors, fate, divine ordinance, Ipsi, dative, to Him.

AUTHOR: Possibly by St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Cardinal Newman. There are about twenty translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Terce daily throughout the year. In this hymn we ask the Holy Spirit to take possession of our hearts and inflame them with the fire of divine love. It is appropriate as a hymn for Terce, the Third Hour, for it was at that hour (9:00 A. M.) on Pentecost Day, that the Holy Ghost descended upon the Apostles (Acts 2, 15). Read the article on Terce in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Deign now, O Holy Spirit, who art One with the Father and the Son, to come to us without delay, and be diffused in our hearts." Unum: The neuter is here used substantively and signifies unity or sameness of nature and substance. It is so used in the Vulgate: Pater, Verbum, et Spiritus Sanctus; et hi tres unum sunt. (I John 5, 7). Ego et Pater unum sumus (John 10, 30). Unum Patri=unum cum Patre; the dative here expresses affinity, relationship, etc., as do such adjectives as affinis, similis, par, and impar. Dignare, imper. of dignor. Ingeri, to be infused. Refusus=diffusus, diffused; refusus is by enallage used for refundi, as the Holy Spirit must first come to the soul before He can be diffused therein. This stanza might be paraphrased:—O Sancte Spiritus, qui es unum (una substantia) cum Patre et Filio, dignare nunc promptus ingeri nobis, et refundi nostro pectori.

2. "May mouth, tongue, mind, sense, and strength proclaim Thy praise; may our charity in its fervor glow brightly, and may the flame thereof enkindle the hearts of our neighbors."

3. "Grant this, O most loving Father, and Thou, only-begotten Son, equal to the Father, who reignest eternally with the Holy Ghost, the Comforter."

Ut pro tua clementia
Sis præsul et custodia.

BEFORE the ending of the day,
Creator of the world, we pray
That with Thy wonted favor Thou Wouldst be our Guard and Keeper
now.

² Procul recedant somnia,
Et noctium phantasmata;
Hostemque nostrum comprime,
Ne polluantur corpora.

From all ill dreams defend our eyes,
From nightly fears and fantasies;
Tread under foot our ghostly foe,
That no pollution we may know.

³ Præsta, Pater piissime,
Patrique compar Unice,
Cum Spiritu Paraclito
Regnans per omne sæculum.

O Father, that we ask be done,
Through Jesus Christ, Thine only
Son;
Who, with the Holy Ghost and
Thee,
Doth live and reign eternally.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 7th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are thirty-five translations, five of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Compline daily throughout the year. As the Jam lucis orto sidere, which was said at sunrise, is an important part of Prime, the Morning Prayer of the Church, so the Te lucis ante terminum, which was said at nightfall, is an appropriate and equally beautiful part of Compline, the Evening Prayer of the Church. Read the separate articles on Compline and on the Te lucis ante terminum in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Before the end of daylight, O Creator of the world, we beseech Thee, that in accordance with Thy mercy, Thou wouldst be our Protector and our Guard." Terminum lucis: Compline was said after sunset, but before complete darkness enveloped the earth.

2. "Far off let dreams and phantoms of the night depart; restrain Thou our adversary lest our bodies become defiled." Somnia, foul dreams; phantasmata (phantasma, atis), delusions. Both words convey with them the additional idea of uncleanness. In Mr. C. Kent's translation, they are rendered by "evil dreams" and "fancies with voluptuous guile." Hostem, the devil, the great adversary of man. In the beginning of Compline we are cautioned to be vigilant, for our "adversary, the devil, goeth about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour" (I Peter 5, 8).

THE PSALTER

SUNDAY AT MATINS

6 Primo die, quo Trinitas

PRIMO die, quo Trinitas
Beata mundum condidit,
Vel quo resurgens Conditor
Nos morte victa liberat:

HAIL day! whereon the One in Three
First formed the earth by sure decree,
The day its Maker rose again,
And vanquished death, and burst
our chain.

² Pulsis procul torporibus,
Surgamus omnes ocyus,
Et nocte quæramus Deum,
Propheta sicut præcipit:

Away with sleep and slothful ease!
We raise our hearts and bend our knees,
And early seek the Lord of all,
Obedient to the Prophet's call.

³ Nostras preces ut audiat,
Suamque dextram porrigat,
Et expiatos sordibus
Reddat polorum sedibus:

That He may hearken to our prayer,
Stretch forth His strong right arm to spare,
And ev'ry past offense forgiven,
Restore us to our home in heaven.

⁴ Ut, quique sacratissimo
Hujus diei tempore
Horis quietis psallimus,
Donis beatis muneret.

Assembled here this holy day,
This holiest hour we raise the lay;
And O that He to whom we sing,
May now reward our offering!

⁵ Jam nunc, paterna claritas,
Te postulamus affatim:
Absint faces libidinis,
Et omnis actus noxius.

O Father of unclouded light!
Keep us this day as in Thy sight,
In word and deed that we may be
From ev'ry touch of evil free.

SUNDAY AT MATINS

That this our body's mortal frame
May know no sin, and fear no shame,
Nor fire hereafter be the end
Of passions which our bosoms rend.

⁷ Mundi Redemptor, quæsumus,
Tu probra nostra diluas:
Nobisque largus commoda

Redeemer of the world, we pray
That Thou wouldst wash our sins away,
And give us, of Thy boundless
grace,
The blessings of the heavenly place.

Most Holy Father, hear our cry,
Through Jesus Christ our Lord most High
Who, with the Holy Ghost and
Thee
Shall live and reign eternally.

AUTHOR: St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale and others, from The New Office Hymn Book. There are about twenty translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins from the Octave of the Epiphany until the first Sunday of Lent, and from the Sunday nearest to the Calends of October until Advent. First line of Original Text: Primo dierum omnium.

1. "On the first day, on which the Blessed Trinity created the world, and on which the Creator rising, after vanquishing death, liberated us," Primo die = Sunday, the day on which God began the creation of the world. For the Work of each of the Six Days, see the Vespers Hymns of the Psalter, Nos. 23-28. Conditor: the Creator, God the Son, who rose from the dead on Sunday. In this stanza the creation of the world is ascribed to the Trinity, and then to the Son, or Word alone, of whom it was said: All things were made by Him, and without Him was made nothing that was made (John 1, 3). The divine nature, the attributes, and the external works of the three Persons of the Holy Trinity are common to all of Them. However, the Redemption of the world is the personal work of the Son, in the sense that He alone became incarnate and suffered and died for us.

2. "Banishing sloth afar, let us all rise quickly, and by night seek God as the Prophet commands," Ocyus, comp. of ociter. Propheta: The Prophet referred to is David, the Royal Psalmist. Media nocte surgebam ad confitendum tibi (Ps. 118, 62). In noctibus extollite manus vestras in sancta, et benedicite Dominum (Ps. 133, 2).

3. "That He may hear our prayers, and stretch forth to us His right hand, and restore us, purified from sin, to the abodes of heaven;" Dextram: The right hand is a symbol of power, strength; the stretching forth of the right hand signifies the exercise of power.

4. "That He may reward with blessed gifts all of us who sing His praises in the most hallowed time of this day, in the hours of rest." Constr.: Ut quique sacratissimo hujus diei tempore . . . psallimus, (eos) donis beatis muneret. Quique: This use of quisque for quicumque or quisquis, who-soever, every one who, all that, is common in the Breviary and in ante- and post-classical Latin generally.

5. "We now also earnestly entreat Thee, O Splendor of the Father, that the flames of lust, and every evil deed be far removed from us." Paterna claritas, Christ, whom St. Paul styles, Splendor Patris (cf. Heb. 1, 3; see also the opening line of Hymn 12). Actus noxius, sin.

6. "Lest the structure of our body become foul or defiled, and on account of its evil desires, hell with its flames should burn the more fiercely." Ignes, the fires of the passions, the desires of the flesh.

7. "We beseech Thee, O Redeemer of the world, that Thou wash away our sins, and generously bestow upon us the reward of eternal life."

AUTHOR: Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION, a cento from The Hymner, in the meter of the original. The translation has been altered to adapt it to the Roman Breviary Text. There are about twenty translations. LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn from the third Sunday after Pentecost till the Sunday nearest the Calends of October. This is the companion hymn of Ecce jam noctis, No. 10.

1. "Rising by night, let us all keep watch and ever devote our minds to psalmody, and with harmonious voices let us sing sweet hymns to the Lord." Psalmis: The Psalms constitute the principal part of the Divine Office. They are so arranged in the Psalter that the 150 Psalms are said each week.

2. "That singing to the loving King, together with His Saints, we may merit to enter the royal court of heaven, and with them enjoy eternal life."

3. "May the Blessed Deity of the Father, Son, and likewise of the Holy Spirit, whose glory resounds throughout the whole world, grant us this."

Te Deum

- TE Deum laudamus: * te Dominum confitemur.
- WE praise Thee, O God: we acknowledge Thee to be the Lord.
- ² Te æternum Patrem * omnis
terra veneratur.
- Thee, the Eternal Father, all the earth doth worship.
- ³ Tibi omnes Angeli, * tibi cœli,
et universæ potestates:
- To Thee all the Angels, to Thee
the Heavens, and all the Powers therein:
- ⁴ Tibi Cherubim et Seraphim, *
incessabili voce procla-
mant:
- To Thee the Cherubim and Sera-phim with unceasing voice cry aloud:
- ⁵ Sanctus, * Sanctus, * Sanctus, *
Dominus Deus Sabaoth.
- Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God of Sabaoth.
- ⁶ Pleni sunt cœli et terra * ma-jestatis gloriæ tuæ.
- The heavens and the earth are full of the majesty of Thy glory.
- ⁷ Te gloriosus * Apostolorum
chorus,
- Thee, the glorious choir of the Apostles,
- ⁸ Te Prophetarum * laudabilis
numerus,
- Thee, the admirable company of the Prophets,
- ⁹ Te Martyrum candidatus *
laudat exercitus.
- Thee, the white-robed army of Martyrs doth praise.
- ¹⁰ Te per orbem terrarum * sancta
confitetur Ecclesia,
- Thee, the Holy Church throughout the world doth confess,
- ¹¹ Patrem * immensæ majestatis,
- The Father of infinite majesty,
- ¹² Venerandum tuum verum * et

Son,
- ¹³ Sanctum quoque * Paraclitum
Spiritus.
- Also the Holy Ghost, the Comforter.
- ¹⁴ Tu Rex gloriæ * Christe.
- Thou, O Christ, art the King of glory.

TE DEUM

- 15 Tu Patris * sempiternus es Filius. Thou art the Everlasting Son of the Father.
- 16 Tu ad liberandum suscepturus hominem: * non horruisti Virginis uterum. Thou, when about to take upon Thee human nature to redeem the world, didst not disdain the Virgin's womb.
- 17 Tu devicto mortis aculeo: * aperuisti credentibus regna cœlorum. When Thou hadst overcome the sting of death, Thou didst open to believers the kingdom of heaven.
- 18 Tu ad dexteram Dei sedes, * in gloria Patris. Thou sittest at the right hand of God, in the glory of the Father.
- 19 Judex crederis * esse venturus. Thou, we believe, art the Judge to come.
- 20 Te ergo quæsumus, tuis famulis subveni: * quos pretioso sanguine redemisti. We beseech Thee, therefore, help Thy servants whom Thou hast redeemed with Thy Precious Blood.
- 21 Æterna fac cum sanctis tuis * in gloria numerari. Make them to be numbered with Thy Saints, in glory everlasting.
- 22 Salvum fac populum tuum Domine, * et benedic hæreditati tuæ. Save Thy people, O Lord, and bless Thine inheritance.
- 23 Et rege eos, * et extolle illos usque in æternum. And rule them, and exalt them forever.
- 24 Per singulos dies * benedicimus te. Day by day, we bless Thee.
- 25 Et laudamus nomen tuum in sæculum * et in sæculum sæculi. And we praise Thy Name forever; yea, forever and ever.
- 26 Dignare Domine die isto * sine peccato nos custodire. Vouchsafe, O Lord, this day, to keep us without sin.
- 27 Miserere nostri Domine: * miserere nostri. Have mercy on us, O Lord; have mercy on us.

THE PSALTER

²⁸ *Fiat misericordia tua Domine super nos, * quemadmodum speravimus in te.* Let Thy mercy, O Lord, be upon us; even as we have hoped in Thee.

²⁹ *In te Domine speravi: * non confundar in æternum.* In Thee, O Lord, have I hoped: let me not be confounded forever.

AUTHOR: Probably by St. Nicetas (335-415). LITURGICAL USE: In general, the Te Deum is said in the Office at the end of Matins whenever the Gloria in excelsis is said at Mass. This rule is sufficiently accurate for those who use the Roman Breviary. In addition to its liturgical use, the Te Deum is used in many extra-liturgical functions as a hymn of thanksgiving on occasions of great solemnity, such as the election of a pope, the consecration of a bishop, the benediction of an abbot, canonization of a saint, religious professions, etc.

The Te Deum is written in rhythmical prose. There are about twenty-five metrical translations and several prose versions in English. The vigorous and justly popular translation by Father Walworth is given below.

The Cath. Encycl. contains a scholarly article on the Te Deum. Read also the articles on St. Nicetas, Sanctus, Sabbaoth, and many others which the text readily suggests.

ANALYSIS

The Te Deum consists of three distinct parts:

Part I (verses 1-13) contains a hymn of praise to the blessed Trinity; the praise of Earth and of the Angelic choirs; the praise of the Church Triumphant and of the Church Militant.

Part II (verses 14-21) is a hymn in praise of Christ, the Redeemer. It proclaims the glory of Christ, the Eternal Son of the Father—His incarnation, victory over death, exaltation, future coming, and terminates with a prayer of supplication for those redeemed by the Precious Blood, that they may be numbered among the Saints.

Part III (verses 22-29) is composed principally of verses from the Psalms. It contains a prayer of petition for the divine assistance and guidance; a declaration of our fidelity; a prayer for deliverance from sin during the day (about to begin); it closes with a prayer for mercy for those who have hoped in the Lord.

In the following Notes, the numbers refer to the verses of the Te Deum:

5. Sanctus: The "Tersanctus" is found in both the Old Testament (Is. 6, 3) and in the New (Apoc. 4, 8). Supply es, art Thou.

7. Apostolorum: Note the climax: the small number of Apostles, the greater number of Prophets, the white-robed army of Martyrs, the Church throughout the world.

9. Martyrum: Only Martyrs were venerated in the early Church. The first non-Martyrs venerated in the West were Pope St. Sylvester (d. 335) and St. Martin of Tours (d. 397). Candidatus, white-robed. The Blessed in general are represented as clothed with white robes (cf. Apoc. 7, 9-14).

14. Rex gloriæ: David in prophecy referring to the ascension of the Messiah styles Him "the King of Glory" (Ps. 23, 7-10). The whole Psalm is very beautiful.

16. Hominem = naturam humanam. This verse does not lend itself readily to translation. The difficulty is with the proper rendering of suscepturus hominem: (some texts have suscepisti, but this is immaterial). Since the Primer of 1546, translations like the following have found their way into most of our books of devotion:—"Thou, having taken upon Thee to deliver man"; "When Thou tookest upon Thee to deliver man." It is needless to say that such renderings mean something quite different from the following: "Thou, when about to take upon Thee man (i.e., human nature) to liberate the human race, didst not abhor the Virgin's womb." After liberandum some supply mundum, others hominem, men, the human race. Horruisti, variously rendered—fear, abhor, disdain, shrink from, etc.

17. Mortis aculeo: (cf. I Cor. 15, 55-56).

18. Dexteram Dei: a figurative expression signifying the place of highest honor, power, and glory in heaven (Ps. 109, 1; Mark 16, 19). Sedes: sittest, i.e., abidest, remainest. This implies no particular posture of body.

19. Crederis, passive, Thou art believed.

THE PSALTER

20. Redemisti: (cf. I Peter 1, 18-19) Verses 22-23 are taken verbatim from Psalm 27, 9.

22. Hæreditati tuæ: Thine own; those whom Thou hast redeemed.

24. Per singulos dies: every day; from Psalm 144, 2.

27. Miserere: verbatim from Psalm 122, 3.

28. Fiat: verbatim from Psalm 32, 22.

29. In te: verbatim from Psalm 30, 2.

The following translation preserves much of the spirit and force of the original. The seventh stanza is a rendering of verses 20-21 by Monsignor Henry. The remaining stanzas are by Father Walworth, whose translation does not contain a rendering of verses 20-21. The numbers preceding a stanza refer to the verses of the Te Deum rendered in that stanza.

Holy God, we praise Thy Name,
Lord of all, we bow before Thee;
All on earth Thy scepter claim,
All in heaven above adore Thee;
Infinite Thy vast domain,
Everlasting is Thy reign.

3-6

Hark, the loud celestial hymn
Angel choirs above are raising;
Cherubim and Seraphim
In unceasing chorus praising,
Fill the heavens with sweet accord;
Holy, Holy, Holy Lord!

Lo, the Apostolic train
Join, Thy sacred Name to hallow:
Prophets swell the loud refrain,
And the white-robed Martyrs follow;
And, from morn till set of sun,
Through the Church the song goes on.

11-13

Holy Father, Holy Son,
Holy Spirit, Three we name Thee,
While in Essence only One,

SUNDAY AT LAUDS

Undivided God we claim Thee:
And, adoring, bend the knee
While we own the mystery.

14-17

Thou art King of glory, Christ;
Son of God, yet born of Mary;
For us sinners sacrificed,
And to death a tributary:
First to break the bars of death,
Thou hast opened heaven to faith.

From Thy high celestial home,
Judge of all, again returning,
We believe that Thou shalt come
In the dreadful Doomsday morning;
When Thy voice shall shake the earth,
And the startled dead come forth.

Therefore do we pray Thee, Lord:
Help Thy servants whom, redeeming
By Thy Precious Blood outpoured,
Thou hast saved from Satan's scheming.
Give to them eternal rest
In the glory of the Blest.

22, 26, 29

Spare Thy people, Lord, we pray,
By a thousand snares surrounded:
Keep us without sin to-day,
Never let us be confounded.
Lo, I put my trust in Thee;
Never, Lord, abandon me.

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by W. J. Copeland as altered in The Hymner. There are eighteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on Sunday from the Octave of the Epiphany until the first Sunday of Lent, and from the Sunday nearest the Calends of October until Advent. The Æterne rerum Conditor, though written on so simple a subject as cock-crowing, is one of the most beautiful hymns in the Breviary. It would be a mistake, however, to infer from the simplicity of the theme, that it presents either few or slight difficulties to the translator. The eminent hymnologist, L'abbé Pimont, in his Les Hymnes du Bréviaire Romain, deemed it necessary to give a prose translation of but this one hymn. It is one of the five Breviary hymns that Trench includes in his Sacred Latin Poetry.

1. "Eternal Maker of the world, who rulest both the night and day, and givest a variety of seasons to relieve monotony!" Temporum, times, seasons; tempora, changes, variety. Fastidium, lit., a loathing, aversion; here, monotony, wearisomeness, humdrum.

2. "A nocturnal light to wayfarers, separating watch from watch, the herald of the day sends forth his cry and calls forth the rays of the sun." Lux: variously rendered—light, star, moon, light of a lamp, etc. The meaning seems to be that the crowing of the cock serves for the nocturnal traveler as a lamp, a kindly guide to the habitations of men. A nocte noctem: nox is here used in the sense of watch—a fourth part of the night. The cock by his crowing, at midnight and at dawn, separates the watches of the night. This use of nox for vigilia is not uncommon.

In stanzas 3 and 4, the pronoun hoc occurs four times. In each instance it may be considered as an ablative absolute—supplying canente from the last line of the fourth stanza; or it may be translated as an ablative of instrument—By him (the cock).

3. “While he sings, the awakened morning star disen-thralls the heavens of darkness; all the bands of night-prowlers abandon their deeds of violence.” Lucifer, lit., the light-bringer, the morning star. Erronum, from erro, onis, a vagabond, vagrant. Viam, way, path, life, deeds.

4. “While he sings, the sailor gathers new strength, the raging of the sea subsides: while he sings, the very Rock of the Church washes away his sin.” Petra Ecclesiæ, St. Peter. Et ego dico tibi quia tu es Petrus, et super hanc petram ædificabo ecclesiam meam (Matt. 16, 18). Culpam diluit: Prius quam gallus cantet, ter me negabis. Et egressus foras, flevit amare (Matt. 26, 75).

5. “Let us, therefore, rise with alacrity; the cock awakens the sleepers, chides the drowsy, and rebukes the unwilling.” Note the climax,—jacentes, somnolentos, negantes,—the sleepers, the drowsy, the unwilling; also in the verbs,—excitat, increpat, arguit,—awakens, chides, rebukes. “Cock-crowing,” says Trench, “had for the early Christians a mystical significance. It said, ‘The night is far spent, and the day is at hand.’ And thus the cock became, in the Middle Ages, the standing emblem of the preachers of God’s word. The old heathen notion that the lion could not bear the sight of the cock, easily adapted itself to this new symbolism. Satan, the roaring lion (I Peter 5, 8) fled away terrified, at the faithful preaching of God’s word. Nor did it pass unnoticed, that this bird, clapping its wings upon its sides, first rouses itself, before it seeks to rouse others” (Sacred Latin Poetry, p. 244). There is a similar passage in the Regula Pastoralis Curæ, III, 40, of St. Gregory the Great.

6. “At the crowing of the cock, hope returns; health is restored to the sick; the sword of the robber is sheathed; confidence returns to the fallen.” Ægris salus: “Man’s temperature is lowest and his pulse rate feeblest in the early morning hours usually between three and five. During the night the pulse rate probably drops at least ten beats and the temperature drops nearly two degrees from its daily climax."—James J. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D., in America, Oct. 7, 1916, p. 613.

7. "O Jesus, look with compassion upon the wavering, and correct us with Thy look (as Thou didst correct Peter): if Thou dost but look, our sins vanish, and our guilt is washed away by our tears." Labantes, from labare, to waver, to be unstable.

8. "O Light, shine Thou into our hearts, dispel the lethargy of the soul; may our voice first praise Thee, and to Thee may we pay our vows." Vota solvere, to keep one's promises; to fulfill one's vows.

THE PSALTER

AUTHOR: Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION based on a translation of the Original Text, by M. J. Blacker, but here rewritten in part to adapt it to the Roman Breviary Text. There are fifteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds from the third Sunday after Pentecost until the Sunday nearest the Calends of October. This is the companion hymn of Nocte Surgentes, No. 7.

1. "Behold, now the shadows of the night are fading away, and the ruddy light of dawn breaks forth; suppliantly let us with harmonious voices invoke the Lord of creation," Rutilans, ruddy, rosy-fingered.

2. "That He may have pity on those guilty of sin, that He may banish trouble, bestow health, and confer upon us the good gifts of everlasting peace."

3. The doxology as in hymn 7.

Te mentis ardor ambiat:
Ut actuum sequentium
Tu, sancte, sis exordium.

³ Cedant tenebræ lumini,
Et nox diurno sideri,
Ut culpa, quam nox intulit,
Lucis labascat munere.

⁴ Precamur iidem supplices,
Noxas ut omnes amputes,

OUR limbs refreshed with slumber now,
And sloth cast off, in prayer we bow;
And while we sing Thy praises
dear,
O Father, be Thou present here.

To Thee our earliest morning song,
To Thee our hearts' full powers belong;
And Thou, O Holy One, prevent
Each following action and intent.

As shades at morning flee away,
And night before the star of day;
So each transgression of the night
Be purged by Thee, celestial Light!

Cut off, we pray Thee, each offense,
And every lust of thought and sense;

MONDAY AT LAUDS

Lauderis omni tempore.

That by their lips who Thee adore
Thou mayst be praised forever-more.

⁵ Præsta, Pater piissime,

Cum Spiritu Paraclito
Regnans per omne sæculum.

Grant this, O Father ever One
With Christ, Thy sole-begotten Son,
And Holy Ghost, whom all adore,
Reigning and blest forevermore.

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter.
Translation by J. M. Neale. There are seventeen translations.

1. "Our limbs having been refreshed with sleep, spurning our bed, we rise: O Father, we beseech Thee, that Thou be near us, who sing Thy praises." Spreto cubili, abl. absolute.

2. "Let our tongue first praise Thee, may the ardor of our soul seek after Thee, that Thou, O Holy One, mayest be the source of the actions that follow—throughout the day." Exordium, beginning, source, etc. A good morning offering will make God the beginning or source of all our daily actions.

3. "Let darkness give way to light, and night to the day-star, that sin, which darkness brought in, may depart with the gift (advent) of light." Light is a symbol of Christ; night and darkness are symbols of sin and of the powers of darkness. Christ is the True Light (John 1, 9) at whose rising or advent, spiritual darkness wanes.

4. "We also suppliantly pray that Thou remove all hurtful things, and that Thou, out of the mouths of those praising Thee, mayest be forever praised." Idem: "Idem, the same, is often used where the English requires an adverb or adverbial phrase (also, too, yet, at the same time)."—Allen and Greenough's New Latin Grammar, 298, b. In reading iidem, elide one i and read idem.

Splendor paternæ gloriæ

SPLENDOR paternæ gloriæ,
De luce lucem proferens,

O SPLENDOR of God's glory
bright,
O Thou that bringest light from light,

THE PSALTER

- Lux lucis, et fons luminis,
Diem dies illuminans:
- O Light of Light, light's Living
Spring,
O Day, all days illumining.
- ² Verusque sol illabere,
Micans nitore perpeti:
Jubarque sancti Spiritus
Infunde nostris sensibus.
- O Thou true Sun, on us Thy glance
Let fall in royal radiance,
The Spirit's sanctifying beam
Upon our earthly senses stream.
- ³ Votis vocemus et Patrem,
Patrem potentis gratiæ,
Patrem perennis gloriæ:
Culpam releget lubricam.
- The Father too our prayers
implore,
Father of glory evermore,
The Father of all grace and might,
To banish sin from our delight:
- ⁴ Confirmet actus strenuos:
Dentes retundat invidi:
Casus secundet asperos:
Agenda recte dirigat.
- To guide whate'er we nobly do,
With love all envy to subdue,
To make ill-fortune turn to fair,
And give us grace our wrongs to bear.
- ⁵ Mentem gubernet et regat:
Sit pura nobis castitas:
Fides calore ferveat,
Fraudis venena nesciat.
- Our mind be in His keeping placed,
Our body true to Him and chaste,
Where only faith her fire shall feed,
And burn the tares of Satan's seed.
- ⁶ Christusque nobis sit cibus,
Potusque noster sit fides:
Læti bibamus sobriam
Profusionem Spiritus.
- And Christ to us for food shall be,
From Him our drink that wellet
free,
The Spirit's wine, that maketh whole,
And mocking not, exalts the soul.
- ⁷ Lætus dies hic transeat:
Pudor sit ut diluculum:
Fides velut meridies:
Crepusculum mens nesciat.
- Rejoicing may this day go hence,
Like virgin dawn our innocence,
Like fiery noon our faith appear,
Nor know the gloom of twilight drear.
- ⁸ Aurora lucem provehit,
Cum luce nobis prodeat
In Patre totus Filius,
Et totus in Verbo Pater.
- Morn in her rosy car is borne;
Let Him come forth our Perfect
Morn,
The Word in God the Father One,
The Father perfect in the Son.

MONDAY AT LAUDS

Deo Patri sit gloria,
Ejusque soli Filio,
Cum Spiritu Paraclito,
Nunc et per omne sæculum.

All laud to God the Father be;
All praise, Eternal Son, to Thee;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To God the Holy Paraclete.

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION from The Yattendon Hymnal—a spirited translation. There are about thirty translations. The Splendor paternæ gloriæ has been rightly styled, “A beautiful morning hymn to the Holy Trinity, but especially to Christ as the Light of the World, and a prayer for help and guidance throughout the day. It is a companion and sequel to the Æterne rerum Conditor” (Julian’s Dict. of Hymnology).

1. “O Splendor of the Father’s glory, bringing forth light from light, O Light of Light, and Source of light, Day illuminating day!” Splendor gloriæ: St. Paul styles Christ: Splendor gloriæ et figura substantiæ ejus (Patris) (Heb. 1, 3). Christ is the brightness, or effulgence, of the Father’s glory, and the figure, or image, of His substance. The similitude by which the Word is styled the “Splendor of the Father’s glory” is based on the sun of our solar system and the rays emanating unceasingly therefrom. The sun represents the Father; the rays, the Son. The figure must not be understood as implying any inequality. Lux: Of Himself, Christ says: Ego sum lux mundi (John 8, 12); He is the “True Light” (John 1, 9); “the Orient from on High” (Luke 1, 78), who illuminates by His grace and by the light of faith “every man that cometh into this world” (John 1, 1-9).

2. “O Thou, true Sun, descend, shining with everlasting brightness, and infuse into our hearts the radiance of the Holy Spirit.” Illabere, imper. of illabor.

3. “In our prayers, let us also implore the Father, the Father of eternal glory, the Father of mighty grace, that He may remove every dangerous inclination to sin.” By culpa is here meant, the inclination to sin, rather than sin itself.

4. “May He give us strength for manly deeds, blunt the teeth of the envious one, bring adverse events to a favorable issue, and give us the grace to act wisely." Dentes, teeth: fig., envy, ill-will, rage; invidi, the envious one, the devil. Invidia autem diaboli mors introivit in orbem terrarum (Wisd. 2, 24).

5. "May He rule and direct our mind that our chastity remain unsullied; may our faith glow with fervor, and may it know not the poison of error." Nobis, dat. of possession.

6. "May Christ be our food, and faith our drink; joyfully let us drink of the sober affluence of the Spirit." Cibus: In the literal sense, Christ is our food in the Holy Eucharist. Read the words of promise (John 6, 48-59). Profusionem: the outpouring, "sober affluence," "temperate excess." The Original Text has ebrietatem, inebriation. The poet had in mind the outpouring of the Holy Ghost upon the Apostles (Acts 2, esp. 12-17).

7. "Joyfully may this day pass by; may our modesty be as the dawn, our faith as the noonday sun, and may our souls know no twilight."

8. "The aurora leads on the light; with the light may there appear to us the whole Son in the Father, and the whole Father in the Word."

Consors paterni luminis

CONSORS paterni luminis,
Lux ipse lucis, et dies,
Noctem canendo rumpimus:
Assiste postulantibus.

O LIGHT of Light, O Day-spring bright,
Co-equal in Thy Father's light:
Assist us, as with prayer and psalm
Thy servants break the twilight calm.

² Aufer tenebras mentium,
Fuga catervas dæmonum,
Expelle somnolentiam,
Ne pigritantes obruat.

All darkness from our minds dispel,
And turn to flight the hosts of hell:
Bid sleepfulness our eyelids fly,
Lest overwhelmed in sloth we lie.

TUESDAY AT LAUDS

³ Sic Christe nobis omnibus
Indulgeas credentibus,

TRANSLATION by J. W. Chadwick and J. D. Chambers. There are twelve translations.

1. "O Sharer of the Father's Light, Thyself the Light of Light, and Day; aid Thou Thy suppliants who interrupt the night with song." See the note on the first stanza of the preceding hymn.

2. "Dispel the darkness of our minds, put to flight the hosts of evil spirits, drive away drowsiness lest it overwhelm the slothful."

3. "So, O Christ, grant pardon to all of us who believe in Thee, that what we singing express in our songs, may be profitable to Thy suppliants." Præcinere 3, to sing or play before, to praise.

Nos excitator mentium
Jam Christus ad vitam vocat.

AS the bird, whose clarion gay
A Sounds before the dawn is grey,
Christ, who brings the spirit's day,
Calls us, close at hand:

² Auferte, clamat, lectulos,
Ægro sopore desides:
Castique, recti, ac sobrii
Vigilate, jam sum proximus.

"Wake!" He cries, "and for my sake,
From your eyes dull slumbers shake!
Sober, righteous, chaste, awake!
At the door I stand!"

THE PSALTER

- ³ Jesum ciamus vocibus,
Flentes, precantes, sobrii:
Intenta supplicatio
Dormire cor mundum vetat.
Lord, to Thee we lift on high
Fervent prayer and bitter cry:
Hearts aroused to pray and sigh
May not slumber more:
- ⁴ Tu, Christe, somnum discute:
Tu rumpe noctis vincula:
Tu solve peccatum vetus,
Novumque lumen ingere.
Break the sleep of Death and Time,
Forged by Adam's ancient crime;
And the light of Eden's prime
To the world restore!
- ⁵ Deo Patri sit gloria,
Ejusque soli Filio,
Cum Spiritu Paraclito
Nunc et per omne sæculum.
Unto God the Father, Son,
Holy Spirit, Three in One,
One in Three, be glory done,

AUTHOR: Prudentius (348-413). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by W. J. Courthope. There are twelve translations. This hymn is a cento from the Hymn at Cock-Crow, the first of the twelve hymns of the Cathemerinon of Prudentius. There are twenty-five four-line stanzas in the Hymn at Cock-Crow. The Ales diei nuntius is composed of stanzas 1, 2, 21, and 25 of the complete hymn. This hymn affords a fair, but by no means an extreme, illustration of the manner in which centos have been taken from the hymns of Prudentius for Breviary use.

The hymns for Lauds on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday are from the Cathemerinon. It will be observed that they are replete with figurative expressions. As darkness and mists are symbolical of sin and unbelief, so light is a symbol of truth and of Christ. In studying these three hymns, attention should be paid to the figurative, rather than to the literal meaning of their lines. Mr. Courthope's spirited translations preserve much of the spirit and beauty of the originals. In these translations the following stanza immediately precedes the doxology. It is not a translation of any part of the Latin text:

Now before Thy throne, while we Ask, upon our bended knee,
That this blessing granted be,
And Thy grace implore;

The above note applies equally to hymns 14, 16, and 18.

WEDNESDAY AT MATINS

1. "The winged herald of the day proclaims the approaching light; now Christ, the awakener of souls, calls us to life." The "winged messenger" is the cock, who in Christian symbolism is a symbol of early rising and vigilance. Propinquam, approaching; Lauds was said at day-break, or cock-crow, the beginning of the morning watch. Excitator mentium: Christ by His grace is the awakener of souls.

2. "Take up your beds, He cries, ye who are slothful from idle sleep, and watch ye, chaste, upright, and sober, for I am at hand." Ægro sopore: Ye who have become slothful from idle, excessive, sickness-producing sleep. Sobrii: Sobrii estote et vigilate (I Peter 5, 8). Vigilate ergo, quia nescitis qua hora Dominus vester venturus sit (Matt. 24, 42).

3. "Weeping, praying, and sober, let us, with our voices, invoke Jesus: fervent prayer forbids the pure heart to sleep."

4. "Do Thou, O Christ, dispel sleep, break the bonds of night, free us from the sins of former days, and infuse new light in us."

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Cardinal Newman. There are thirteen translations. There is an article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Look down, O sovereign Creator of the world, and our Ruler, and deliver us, overwhelmed by sleep, from a sinful rest." The time of rest, by affording occasions of sin and temptation, may become harmful or sinful.

2. "Thee, all-holy Christ, we implore that Thou forgive all our sins: to praise Thee, we rise and interrupt the lingering hours of the night." Moras, variously rendered—hours, rest, etc.; lit., a delay, a space of time.

3. "By night we lift up our hands and hearts, as the Prophet commands us to do, and as Paul, by his deeds, sanctioned." St. Paul put into practice the precept of the Prophet. The Prophet is David, the Royal Psalmist, who says: In noctibus extollite manus vestras in sancta, et benedicite Dominum (Ps. 133, 2). Paulus: A reference to St. Paul in the Acts of the Apostles: Media autem nocte, Paulus et Silas orantes laudabant Deum (Acts 16, 25).

The following is Father Caswell's translation of this stanza:

Who, as the holy Psalmist bids,
 Our hands thus early raise;
 And in the morning sing with Paul
 And Silas hymns of praise.

4. "Thou seest the evil that we have done; we lay bare our secret faults; sighing we pour forth our prayers; pardon what we have done amiss."

TRANSLATION by W. J. Courthope. There are seventeen translations. This hymn is a cento from the Morning Hymn of the Cathemerinon. See the note on this hymn and its translation, under Ales diei nuntius, hymn 14.

1. "Night, darkness, and clouds, confused and disordered state of the world, depart: light enters, the sky grows bright, Christ comes."

2. "The darkness of the earth is rent, pierced by a ray of the sun; color now returns to things, at the appearance of the shining star of day." Nitentis sideris, the sun, the day-star; fig., Christ.

THE PSALTER

3. "Thee alone, O Christ we know; with pure and simple hearts, with tears and hymns we seek Thee; incline to our souls." Intende, give ear to, be favorably disposed towards, hasten to the help of.

4. "Many things which are now bedaubed with false colors shall be purified by Thy light: O Thou true Light of the saints, enlighten us by Thy bright countenance." Fucis, lit., rouge. Illita, from illino, bedaub, smear. For the line Tu vera lux cœlestium, the Original Text has, Tu lux eoi sideris. Eoi from eous, adj., belonging to the morning, eastern.

Light of the Morning Star, illumine,
Serenely shining, all our gloom.

1. "Behold, the golden light arises; may the waning darkness, which long drew us headlong in wide-wandering error, depart." In præceps, headlong; into great danger. It should be borne in mind that this is a hymn for Lauds, and that Lauds was said at daybreak. As the rising sun dispels the blinding darkness, so Christ, the Sun of Justice (Mal. 4, 2), dispels the darkness of sin and of unbelief.

2. "May this light bring us contentment, and may it preserve us pure for itself; may we speak nothing deceitful; may we meditate nothing dark." Sibi refers to lux (i.e., Christ).

3. "So may the whole day run its course; that neither the tongue prone to lie, nor the hands, nor the restless eyes sin; may no sin defile the body."

4. "An Observer stands on high, who each day beholds us and our actions, from early morning until evening."

 TRANSLATION by John Julian. There are twelve translations.

1. "Eternal Glory of heaven, blessed hope of mortals, the only-begotten Son of the most high Thunderer, the offspring of a chaste Virgin," Tonantis (tono 1) "The Sovereign Thunderer's only Son."—Abp. Bagshawe. Tona-bit de cælo Dominus (II Kings 22, 14). Cf. also I Kings 2, 10; Ps. 17, 14; Ps. 28, 3.

2. "Give Thy right hand to those who rise; sober also may the soul arise, and zealous in the praise of God, return Him due thanks." Sobria, thoughtful, recollected. Grates = gratias.

3. "The risen morning star shines forth, and as a herald precedes the sun; the darkness of night disappears; may the holy light illuminate us." Lovers of allegory see in John the Baptist "the morning star," "the herald" that went before the rising Sun of Justice.

4. "And dwelling in our hearts, may it dispel the darkness of the world, and may it preserve our hearts unsullied till the end of time." Lux sancta is the subject of the whole stanza. Noctem sæculi, spiritual darkness, sin.

5. "First may faith long-sought strike deep its roots in our hearts; secondly, may hope rejoice us; but greater still than these is charity." Qua refers grammatically to spes, but in sense also to fides, and is therefore equivalent to quibus. Nunc autem manent fides, spes, caritas, tria hæc; major autem horum est caritas (I Cor. 13, 13). In heaven faith will be changed into vision, hope into fruition, but charity will remain forever,

TRANSLATION, a cento based on Chambers. There are sixteen translations. First line of Original Text: Summæ Deus clementiæ.

1-2. "O Father of infinite mercy, Thou who rulest over the vast fabric of the universe, God of one substance, and three in person, graciously accept, O loving Father (pius), our tears with our hymns of praise, that with hearts free from sin we may enjoy Thee more abundantly." Pius is here used for the vocative, supply Parens or Deus. Or it agrees with tu the subject of suscipe—O Parens, tu pius (= benigne) suscipe. Puro, note the genitive sordium; the ablative is more common. Largius, adv., comp. of largus.

3. "Burn Thou, with becoming (holy) flames, our reins and our depraved hearts, that our well girded limbs may watch, far removed from baneful luxury." Lumbos: the loins, in which the ancients located the seat of the feelings or affections. Jecur: lit., the liver; considered formerly as the seat of the soul and affections. Accincti = præincti: Sint lumbi vestri præincti, et lucernæ ardentes in manibus vestris (Luke 12, 35). The girding of the loins signifies an instant willingness to do the will of God. In the East where men wore long flowing garments it was necessary to gird them up by means of a belt when about to begin some work or set out on a journey.

4. "That all of us who now interrupt the hours of night with song, may be abundantly enriched with the gifts of the blessed land."

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 4th or 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are twelve translations.

1. “The dawn now overspreads the heavens; day glides over the earth; rays of light mount on high; may every unclean thing depart.”

2. “Let phantoms of the night be banished; let guilt of soul depart; whatever dreadful thing of evil the night brought with it, let it vanish with the darkness.” Constr.: Quidquid horridum culpæ nox attulit, tenebris cadat.

3. “That on the last morning, together with the light, that which we here humbly pray for, and what accords with our song, may issue forth (come) to us.” Constr.: Ut cum luce (æterna) mane (illud) ultimum nobis effluat, quod nos hic, dum hoc canore concrepat, deprecamur cernui. This stanza is very obscure. It seems to contain a reference to the present morning, and to the last morning—at the end of time. In this sense it might be rendered: “While the present morning resounds with song (canore), we here with profound humility beg (deprecamur cernui) that the last morning may also dawn (effluat) for us with light eternal.” Abp. Bagshawe translates mane ultimum as referring to Saturday—“On this morn of the week the last.” The following is from an anonymous translation in the Hymnal Noted:

So that last morning, dread and great,
Which we with trembling hope await,
With blessed light for us shall glow,
Who chant the song we sang below.

VESPERS HYMNS OF THE PSALTER

The theme, or subject matter, of the Vespers hymns for the week is the work of the six days of creation as recorded in the first chapter of Genesis. The Saturday hymn, which is a hymn in honor of the Most Holy Trinity, forms the only exception. The work of each of the six days is explained in the article on Hexæmeron, in the Cath. Encycl.

The authorship of these six hymns is not definitely known. The series develops in an orderly manner the work of creation, devoting four stanzas to the work of each day. There is strong probability that these hymns are the work of one and the same author, and that that author is no other than the illustrious Pope and Doctor of the Church, St. Gregory the Great (540-604). In this connection it is interesting to record the opinion of the editors of the carefully edited Historical Edition of Hymns Ancient and Modern (1909): "The set," in their opinion, "must have come from one author, and it is not improbable that that author was St. Gregory" (p. 21). And again: "The series as a whole is probably rightly identified with a set of hymns for every evening in the week, which Irish records describe as having been sent by St. Gregory to St. Columba. The ancient preface to Columba's hymn Altus prosator describes the coming of St. Gregory's messengers with gifts, including a set of hymns for the evenings of the week, and the sending by St. Columba of his hymns to St. Gregory in return. The series is not unworthy of such an author, and the hymns go far to justify the tradition that ascribes to that most versatile of popes a place among the Hymn-writers" (p. XVII). See also the article on Hymnody, by Father Clemens Blume, S.J., in the Cath. Encycl., Vol. VII., p. 602.

The Benedictine editors of the works of St. Gregory credit him with eight hymns (Opera, Paris, 1705); H. A. Daniel in his Thesaurus Hymnl. Vol. I, assigns him three others. The Lucis Creator optime given below is one of the eight hymns assigned him by the Benedictine editors.

The translations of these hymns in Part I of Mr. Orby Shipley's Annus Sanctus are from the Primer of 1706, and are in all probability the work of the poet John Dryden, who was received into the Church in 1685.

OBLEST Creator of the light,
Who mak'st the day with radiance bright,
And o'er the forming world didst
call
The light from chaos first of all;

Whose wisdom joined in meet array
The morn and eve, and named them Day:
Night comes with all its darkling fears;
Regard Thy people's prayers and tears.

Lest, sunk in sin, and whelmed
with strife,
They lose the gift of endless life;
While thinking but the thoughts of time,
They weave new chains of woe and crime.

But grant them grace that they may strain
The heavenly gate and prize to gain:
Each harmful lure aside to cast,
And purge away each error past.

O Father, that we ask be done,
Through Jesus Christ, Thine only
Son;
Who, with the Holy Ghost and
Thee,
Doth live and reign eternally.

There are five translations in the Annus Sanctus. Theme: The work of the first day—the creation of light. Dixit Deus: Fiat lux. Et facta est lux. Et vidit Deus lucem quod esset bona; et divisit lucem a tenebris. Appelavitque lucem Diem, et tenebras Noctem; factumque est vespere et mane dies unus (Gen. 1, 3-5).

1. "O august Creator of the light, who didst bring forth the light of day, and didst begin the origin of the world with the creation of new light;" Primordiis, origin, first beginning. Parans (paro 1), prepare, design. Originem, creation.

2. "Who didst command that morning joined with evening be called Day; foul darkness descends, hear Thou our prayers with our weeping."

3. "Lest the soul burdened with sin be deprived of the gift of life, while it thinks of nothing eternal and fetters itself with sins." Exsul, an exile, banished person; Constr. with the abl. or gen.

4. "Let it knock at the heavenly portal and bear away the prize of life; let us avoid everything harmful, and purge out everything sinful." The subject is mens from the preceding stanza.

THE PSALTER

AUTHOR: Probably by Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION anon. in the Hymnal Noted. There are twenty translations. First line of Original Text: Telluris ingens Conditor. Theme: The work of the third day, viz., the separation of the land from the water, and the creation of every species of plant. As recorded by Moses: Dixit vero Deus: Congregentur aquæ, quæ sub cælo sunt, in locum unum et appareat arida. Et factum est ita. Et vocavit Deus aridam Terram; congregationesque aquarum appellavit Maria. . . . Et ait: Germinet terra herbam virentem et facientem semen et lignum pomiferum, faciens fructum juxta genus suum, cujus semen in semetipso sit super terram. Et factum est ita. Et protulit terra herbam virentem, et facientem semen juxta genus suum, lignumque faciens fructum, et habens unumquodque sementem secundum speciem suam. Et vidit Deus quod esset bonum. Et factum est vespere et mane dies tertius (Gen. 1, 9-13).

1. "Benignant Creator of the world, who didst divide the surface of the earth, and driving off the troubled waters didst firmly establish the land;" Solum, lit., ground, soil.

2. "That it might bring forth appropriate produce, be adorned with golden flowers, become prolific in fruits, and yield agreeable sustenance." Decora and fecunda agree with terra, understood. Sisteret, in the sense of existeret. Pastum, food for men and beasts.

3. "Cleanse by the freshness of Thy grace the wounds of the sin-parched soul, that it may wash away with tears its evil deeds, and suppress sinful emotions." Munda, imper. of mundare. Virore, viror, oris (from vireo 2, to be fresh, vigorous), freshness, power, vigor. Mens is the subj. of diluat and atterat.

4. "May it obey Thy commands; may it draw nigh nothing sinful; that it may rejoice to be filled with good, and know not the stroke of death." Mortis ictus, the stroke of death, i.e., mortal sin. The Original Text, translated above, has actum for ictum.

AUTHOR: Probably by Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are thirteen translations. Theme: The work of the fourth day. On the fourth day, God created the heavenly bodies that adorn the firmament. The Mosaic account of the stupendous work which the hymn endeavors to recount is narrated with wonderful simplicity in Genesis 1, 14-19:

THE PSALTER

Dixit autem Deus: Fiant luminaria in firmamento cœli, et dividant diem ac noctem, et sint in signa et tempora, et dies et annos: ut luceant in firmamento cœli, et illuminent terram. Et factum est ita. Fecitque Deus duo luminaria magna: luminare majus, ut præsetter diei: et luminare minus, ut præsetter nocti: et stellas. Et posuit eas in firmamento cœli, ut lucerent super terram, et præsetter diei ac nocti, et dividerent lucem ac tenebras. Et vidit Deus quod esset bonum. Et factum est vespere et mane dies quartus.

1. "Most Holy God of heaven, Thou dost adorn with fiery brilliancy the lightsome regions of the universe, and dost embellish them with becoming splendor:" The light created on the first day was a vast, luminous, nebulous mass, which contracted and solidified on the fourth day, thus forming the sun and the stars. These heavenly bodies constitute the "lightsome regions" of the universe.

2. "Thou, on the fourth day didst light up the fiery disk of the sun, didst appoint the orbit of the moon, and the wandering courses of the stars,"

3. "That Thou mightest give to nights and days a boundary-line of separation, and a conspicuous sign for the beginning of the months." The boundary line between night and day—darkness and daylight—is indicated by the sun, the moon, and by the morning and evening stars. The new moon announces the beginning of the lunar month.

4. "Drive out the darkness from our hearts; wipe away the defilements of our souls; loosen the chains of guilt; overturn the great load of our sins."

There are fourteen translations. Theme: The work of the fifth day—the creation of the birds and fishes, both of which sprang from a common source, viz., water. The work of the fifth day is recorded in Genesis 1, 20-23: Dixit etiam Deus: Producant aquæ reptile animæ viventis, et volatile super terram sub firmamento cœli. Creavitque Deus cete grandia, et omnem animam viventem atque motabilem, quam produxerant aquæ in species suas, et omne volatile secundum genus suum. Et vidit Deus quod esset bonum. Benedixitque eis, dicens: Crescite et multiplicamini, et replete aquas maris; avesque multiplicentur super terram. Et factum est vespere et mane dies quintus.

1. "O God of great power, who dost assign in part the offsprings of the fertile water, to the deep, and in part dost raise them aloft in the air;" Fertili: The water is called fruitful since it is the common source from which the natos—the birds and fishes—sprang. Natos (ex). Gurgiti, lit., a whirlpool; the sea, the waters.

2. "Thou dost consign the fishes to the waters, and liftest up the birds on high, that animals proceeding from the same source might occupy different places." Supply animalia after demersa, subvecta, and prodit. Demersa, all living creatures that make their home in the waters. Subvecta (from subveho, to bring up from below), the birds—brought up from the waters and assigned to the air.

3. "Grant to all Thy servants, whom the stream of Thy blood hath cleansed, to know not sinful falls, nor suffer the loathsomeness of spiritual death." Largire, imper. of largior. Unda sanguinis: This is by some taken as equivalent to unda et sanguis. It would then contain a reference to the blood and water that flowed from the pierced side of Our Lord (cf. John 19, 34).

4. "Let guilt depress no one; let pride exalt no one, lest the despondent soul be disheartened, and the proud soul be ruined."

2. "And at the word of the Creator, the huge bodies of created beings became instinct with life, to obey Thy servants through determined changes of time." Per certas vices temporum, i. e., while fixed periods of time shall last, man is to rule over "the fishes of the sea, the fowls of the air, and the beasts, and the whole earth" (Gen. 1, 26).

THE PSALTER

3. "Drive from us whatever evil desire may assail us with roused up violence, whether it attaches itself to our morals or intertwines itself with our actions." Se interserit, or sows itself among. Abp. Bagshawe translates the last two lines:

Or mingles with our inward lives,
Or in our actions plays its part.

4. "Grant us the reward of heavenly joys; bestow upon us gifts of grace; rend asunder the chains of strife; draw closer the bonds of peace."

Tu lux perennis Unitas,
Nostris, beata Trinitas,
Infunde lumen cordibus.

AS fades the glowing orb of day,
To Thee, great source of light,
we pray;
Blest Three in One, to every heart
Thy beams of life and love impart.

²Te mane laudum carmine,
Te deprecamur vespere;
Digneris ut te supplices
Laudemus inter cœlites.

At early dawn, at close of day,
To Thee our vows we humbly pay;
May we, mid joys that never end,
With Thy bright Saints in homage bend.

³Patri, simulque Filio,
Tibique sancte Spiritus,
Sicut fuit, sit jugiter
Sæclum per omne gloria.

To God the Father, and the Son,
And Holy Spirit, Three in One,
Be endless glory, as before
The world began, so evermore.

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Potter, altered. First line of Original Text: O Lux beata Trinitas. There are thirty-two translations, twenty of which are from the Roman Breviary Text. There are thirteen translations of this hymn in the Annus Sanctus, two of which are from the Original Text. This hymn is also used at Vespers on the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity. The Original Text is there given. It is interesting to compare the two texts. See hymn 71.

SPECIAL DOXOLOGIES

1. "The fiery sun now sinks to rest: O Thou light eternal, O Unity and Blessed Trinity, infuse Thy light into our hearts." As the daylight departs we ask that the eternal light shall not fail us.

2. "We glorify Thee in the morning with a hymn of praise, we supplicate Thee in the evening; deign that we, Thy suppliants, may praise Thee among the Blessed."

3. Jugiter, adv., forever.

SPECIAL DOXOLOGIES

Special doxologies are provided in the Breviary for certain feasts and seasons. They are all written in iambic dimeters, and they replace the ordinary doxologies in all hymns of the same meter.

The following doxology is said from Christmas till the Epiphany, during the Octave of Corpus Christi, on the feasts of the Sacred Heart and Holy Name, and on feasts of the Blessed Virgin and during their Octaves.

Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
Qui natus es de Virgine,
Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu,
In sempiterna sæcula.

All honor, laud, and glory be,
O Jesu, Virgin-born, to Thee;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete.

For the Epiphany and Octave

Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
Qui apparuisti gentibus,
Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu,
In sempiterna sæcula.

All glory, Lord, to Thee we pay,
For Thine Epiphany to-day;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete.

In Paschaltide

Deo Patri sit gloria,
Et Filio, qui a mortuis
Surrexit, ac Paraclito,
In sempiterna sæcula.

To Thee who, dead, again dost live,
All glory, Lord, Thy people give;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete.

For Ascensiontide

Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
Qui victor in cœlum redis,
Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu,
In sempiterna sæcula.

All Glory, Lord, to Thee we pay.
Ascending o'er the stars to-day;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete.

THE PSALTER

THE ANTIPHONS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN

The Antiphons of the Blessed Virgin are four in number. In Choir, one of the Antiphons is recited at the end of certain hours in accordance with the following general rules: 1. At the end of Compline, always. 2. At the end of Lauds, when no other hour is to follow. 3. When Lauds is followed by Prime and by any of the other hours, the Antiphon is said at the end of the last hour recited. 4. At the end of any hour recited in Choir when the Office is finished and the members of the Choir are to retire from the chapel.

Out of Choir, an Antiphon is said at the end of Compline, and at the end of Lauds if the Office is to end with Lauds, otherwise at the end of the last hour recited.

Read the first article on Antiphon in the Cath. Encycl. Read also the articles on: Alma Redemptoris Mater, Ave Regina, Regina Cœli, and Salve Regina.

ANTIPHONS OF OUR LADY

has to thank the distinguished scholar, the Rt. Rev. Sir David Oswald Hunter-Blair, O.S.B. LITURGICAL USE: Antiphon of our Blessed Lady from the Vespers of the Saturday before the first Sunday of Advent to the Feast of the Purification, inclusive.

“O loving Mother of the Redeemer, who dost remain the ever accessible portal of heaven, and the star of the sea, aid thy fallen people who strive to rise: thou who, a Virgin both before and after receiving that Ave from the mouth of Gabriel, didst, while nature wondered, give birth to thy Holy Creator; have pity on us sinners.”

Ave Regina cœlorum

AVE Regina cœlorum,
Ave Domina Angelorum:
Salve radix, salve porta,
Ex qua mundo lux est orta:

Gaude Virgo gloriosa,
Super omnes speciosa,
Vale, o valde decora,
Et pro nobis Christum exora.

HAIL, O Queen of heaven, enthroned!
Hail, by Angels Mistress owned!
Root of Jesse, Gate of morn, Whence the world's true Light was born:

Glorious Virgin, joy to thee,
Loveliest whom in heaven they see:
Fairest thou where all are fair,
Plead with Christ our sins to spare.

AUTHORSHIP and date of composition uncertain. It has been in use since the twelfth century. METER: Trochaic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are at least four additional translations. LITURGICAL USE: Antiphon proper to the season after the Purification, that is, from the end of Compline of Feb. 2d (even should the Feast of the Purification be transferred) until Maundy Thursday, exclusive.

“Rejoice, O glorious Virgin, surpassing all in beauty; we greet thee, Virgin most fair, intercede with Christ for us.”

Radix: “root of Jesse,” i.e., an offshoot from the root of Jesse; a descendant of Jesse, the father of David. The Blessed Virgin was of the House of David; Jesse therefore was one of her ancestors. Mary is a root of Jesse, but her Divine Son is the root of Jesse (cf. Is. 11, 1; Rom. 15, 12).

THE PSALTER

Salve Regina

SALVE Regina, mater misericordiæ,
Vita, dulcedo et spes nostra, salve.
Ad te clamamus, exsules filii Hevæ.

HAIL to the Queen who reigns
 above,
Mother of clemency and love,
Hail, thou, our hope, life, sweetness; we Eve's banished children cry to thee.

Ad te suspiramus, gementes et flentes in hac lacrimarum valle.

We from this wretched vale of tears
Send sighs and groans unto thy ears;

Eja ergo, advocata nostra,

Oh, then, sweet Advocate, bestow
A pitying look on us below.

Et Jesum, benedictum fructum ventris tui,
Nobis post hoc exsilium ostende.
O clemens, o pia, o dulcis Virgo Maria.

After this exile, let us see
Our Blessed Jesus, born of thee.
O merciful, O pious Maid,
O gracious Mary, lend thine aid.

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Hermann Contractus (1013-1054).
TRANSLATION from the Primer, 1685. There are fifteen metrical translations, and the beautiful prose version which is said after every Low Mass. LITURGICAL USE: Antiphon of our Blessed Lady from the First Vespers of the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity until None of the Saturday before the first Sunday of Advent. Since Jan. 6, 1884, the Salve Regina forms a part of the prayers which Pope Leo XIII ordered to be said after every Low Mass.

PART II

The Proper of the Season

ADVENT

34 The Great Antiphons of Advent

The seven Great Antiphons, or O Antiphons, as they are called, are said, one each day, at the Magnificat in Vespers, from December the 17th to the 23d, inclusive. Although not written in meter, they are strikingly poetical in thought, and replete with Scriptural allusions. Each Antiphon salutes the coming Messiah under one of His many Scriptural titles, and closes with a proper petition. The authorship and date of composition are unknown. They are, however, at least as old as the ninth century, and probably much older. There are several translations in both prose and verse. Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus contains a metrical version by H. N. Oxenham. Read the articles on the O Antiphons, and on Advent, in the Cath. Encycl.

O Sapientia

O SAPIENTIA, quæ ex ore Altissimi prodiisti, attingens a fine usque ad finem, fortiter suaviterque disponens omnia: veni ad docendum nos viam prudentiæ.

O WISDOM, that proceedest from the mouth of the Most High, reaching from end to end mightily, and sweetly disposing all things: come and teach us the way of prudence.

O Sapientia: Ego (Sapientia) ex ore Altissimi prodivi (Ecclus. 24, 5). Attingens: Attingit ergo a fine usque ad finem fortiter, et disponit omnia suaviter (Wis. 8, 1).

PROPER OF THE SEASON

O Adonai

O ADONAI, et Dux domus Israel, qui Moysi in igne flammæ rubi apparuisti, et ei in Sina legem dedisti: veni ad redimendum nos in brachio extento,

O ADONAI, and Leader of the House of Israel, who didst appear unto Moses in the burning bush, and gavest Him the Law on Sinai: come and redeem us by Thy outstretched arm.

Adonai: This is the Hebrew substitute for the ineffable name of Jehovah. It is rendered in the Vulgate by "Dominus," and in the Douay Bible by "Lord." It is retained in both texts twice, viz., in Exodus 6, 3, and in Judith 16, 16. Read the foot-note on Exodus 6, 3, in the Douay Bible. See also the articles on Adonai, and Jehovah, in the Cath. Encycl. Domus Israel: The House of Israel, i.e., the Israelites, the Jews, the chosen people of God. The expression occurs very often in the Old Testament, and a few times in the New. Read the article on Jacob, and the beginning of the article on Israelite, in the Cath. Encycl. Flammæ rubi: Apparuitque ei (Moysi) Dominus in flamma ignis de medio rubi (Exod. 3, 2). In Sina legem dedisti: Cf. Exod., beginning with chapter 19.

O Radix

O RADIX Jesse, qui stas in signum populorum, super quem continebunt reges os suum, quem Gentes deprecabuntur: veni ad liberandum nos, jam noli tardare.

O ROOT of Jesse, who standest as the ensign of the people, before whom kings shall not open their lips; to whom the Gentiles shall pray: come and deliver us, tarry now no more.

Radix Jesse: In die illa, radix Jesse, qui stat in signum populorum, ipsum gentes deprecabuntur (Is. 11, 10). "Root of Jesse," i.e., a descendant from Jesse, the father of David (Rom. 15, 12). Our Lord, as the Son of the Virgin Mary, was of the House of David, hence a root of Jesse. Signum populorum: An allusion to the ensign of the Cross, around which the nations would rally. Super quem: super ipsum continebunt reges os suum (Is. 52, 15).

GREATER ANTIPHONS OF ADVENT

O Clavis David

O CLAVIS David, et sceptrum domus Israel; qui aperis, et nemo claudit; claudis, et nemo aperit: veni, et educ vinctum de domo carceris, sedentem in tenebris, et umbra mortis.

O KEY of David, and Scepter of the House of Israel; who openest, and no man shutteth; who shuttest, and no man openeth: come and lead the captive from the prison-house, and him that sitteth in darkness and in the shadow of death.

Clavis David: Hæc dicit Sanctus et Verus, qui habet clavem David: qui aperit, et nemo claudit: claudit, et nemo aperit (Apoc. 3, 7). Cf. also Is. 22, 22. Et sceptrum: Et Israel sceptrum hereditatis ejus (Jer. 51, 19). Et educ: et educeres de conclusione vinctum, de domo carceris sedentes in tenebris (Is. 42, 7).

O Oriens

O ORIENS, splendor lucis æternæ, et sol justitiæ: veni, et illumina sedentes in tenebris, et umbra mortis.

O ORIENT, Splendor of the Eternal Light, and Sun of Justice: come and enlighten them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death.

Oriens: Various rendered, dayspring, sunrise, dawn, east. It is one of the many Scriptural titles of the Messiah, who was to be the Light of the world (John 8, 12), the Sun of Justice (Mal. 4, 2), the Orient from on high who visited us (Luke 1, 78), and who from eternity has been the Splendor of the Father's glory (Heb. 1, 3). Splendor: Candor est enim lucis æternæ (Wis. 7, 26). Illumina: Illuminare his, qui in tenebris, et in umbra mortis sedent (Luke 1, 79).

O Rex Gentium

O REX Gentium, et desideratus earum, lapisque angularis, qui facis utraque unum: veni, et salva hominem, quem de limo formasti.

O KING of the Gentiles, yea, and the desire thereof, the Corner-stone that maketh both one: come and save man, whom Thou hast made out of the slime of the earth.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

Rex Gentium: Erit radix Jesse, et qui exurget regere gentes, in eum gentes sperabunt (Rom. 15, 12; Is. 11, 10). Desideratus: et veniet desideratus cunctis gentibus (Agg. 2, 8). Lapis angularis: Christ is the Corner-stone (Eph. 2, 20). He is also our peacemaker who maketh both one (Eph. 2, 14). The Jews and Gentiles are the two who are made one. Christ died for all, and He founded a Church to save all men without distinction of race. De limo: Formavit igitur Dominus Deus hominem de limo terræ (Gen. 2, 7).

O Emmanuel

O EMMANUEL, Rex et legifer noster, exspectatio gentium, et Salvator earum: veni ad salvandum nos Domine Deus noster.

O EMMANUEL, our king and lawgiver, the expectation of all nations and their Saviour: come and save us, O Lord our God.

Emmanuel: Cf. Matt. 1, 23. Exspectatio gentium: et ipse erit exspectatio gentium (Gen. 49, 10). Read the article on Emmanuel, in the Cath. Encycl.

The following beautiful paraphrase of five of the above Antiphons is found in a hymn which dates from the beginning of the eighteenth century. The translation is by J. M. Neale.

34B

Veni, veni, Emmanuel

VENI, veni, Emmanuel;
Captivum solve Israel,
Qui gemit in exilio,
Privatus Dei Filio.
Gaude! gaude! Emmanuel
Nascetur pro te, Israel.

O COME, O come, Emmanuel,
And ransom captive Israel,
That mourns in lonely exile here,
Until the Son of God appear.
Rejoice! rejoice! Emmanuel
Shall come to thee, O Israel.

² Veni, o Jesse Virgula;
Ex hostis tuos ungula,
De specu tuos tartari
Educ, et antro barathri.
Gaude! gaude! Emmanuel
Nascetur pro te, Israel.

O come, Thou Rod of Jesse, free
Thine own from Satan's tyranny;
From depths of hell Thy people
save,
And give them victory o'er the grave.
Rejoice! rejoice! Emmanuel
Shall come to thee, O Israel.

ADVENT

³ Veni, veni, o Oriens;
Solare nos adveniens;
Noctis depelle nebulas
Dirasque noctis tenebras.
Gaude! gaude! Emmanuel
Nascetur pro te, Israel.

O come, Thou Dayspring, from on high,
And cheer us by Thy drawing nigh;
Disperse the gloomy clouds of night,
And death's dark shadows put to flight.
Rejoice! rejoice! Emmanuel
Shall come to thee, O Israel.

⁴ Veni, Clavis Davidica;
Regna reclude cœlica;
Fac iter tutum superum,
Et claude vias inferum.
Gaude! gaude! Emmanuel
Nascetur pro te, Israel.

O come, Thou Key of David, come
And open wide our heavenly home;
Make safe the way that leads on high
And close the path to misery.
Rejoice! rejoice! Emmanuel
Shall come to thee, O Israel.

⁵ Veni, veni, Adonai,
Qui populo in Sinai
Legem dedisti vertice
In majestate gloriæ.
Gaude! gaude! Emmanuel
Nascetur pro te, Israel.

O come, Adonai, Lord of might,
Who to Thy tribes, on Sinai's height,
In ancient times didst give the law
In cloud and majesty and awe.
Rejoice! rejoice! Emmanuel
Shall come to thee, O Israel.

TRANSLATION: a cento from the Primer, 1685, and the Evening Office, 1710. First line of Original Text: Conditor alme siderum. The Advent hymns were greatly altered by the revisers under Pope Urban VIII (1632). Only one line of this hymn was left unaltered, and only twelve words of the original were retained. Including both texts there are about thirty translations, nine of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, both texts being represented. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn for Sundays and week-days during Advent.

The hymns and antiphons of Advent present in a concise and admirable manner the leading ideas of that holy season.

ADVENT

1. "O Jesus, kind Creator of the stars, eternal light of the faithful, Redeemer of all, give ear to the prayers of Thy suppliants." Creator: Omnia per ipsum facta sunt: et sine ipso factum est nihil quod factum est (John 1, 3). Lux: Erat lux vera, quæ illuminat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum (John 1, 9).

2. "Thou wast impelled by the power of love to become a remedy for the languid world, lest mankind should perish through the cunning of the devil." Constr. Qui actus impetu amoris, factus es medela mundi languidi, ne orbis fraudibus dæmonis periret. Actus=commotus.

3. "To expiate the common guilt of mankind, Thou, a spotless Victim, didst go forth to the Cross from the sacred womb of a Virgin."

4. "The might of Thy glory is such that as soon as Thy name is uttered, the blessed and the damned alike bend with trembling knee." Cujus (est). Nomen: Ut in nomine Jesu omne genu flectatur cœlestium, terrestrium et infernorum (Philip. 2, 10).

5. "We beseech Thee, great Judge of the last day, defend us from our enemies with weapons of heavenly grace."

Enlighten our hearts; vain hopes destroy;
And in Thy love's consuming fire
Fill all the soul with heavenly joy,
And melt the dross of low desire.

To God the Father and the Son
Our songs with one accord we raise;
'And to the Holy Spirit, One
With Them, be ever equal praise.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 5th or 6th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by W. J. Courthope. There are about thirty translations, four of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on Sundays and week-days during Advent. There is an article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "O Heavenly Word proceeding from the bosom of the Eternal Father, Thou wast born, and didst come to the aid of the world, in the fleeting course of time." Verbum, the Word, the Eternal Son (cf. John 1, 1-14). Constr.: Qui labente cursu temporis (abl. absol.) natus es (et) orbi subvenis.

2. "Enlighten Thou our hearts and inflame them with Thy love, that the joys of heaven may fill the heart which abandons perishable things." Constr.: Ut voluptas cœli impleat cor deserens caduca.

3-4. "That when the tribunal of the Judge shall condemn the guilty to the flames, and a friendly voice shall call the just to the heaven due to them, may we then not be cast headlong into the black whirlpool as the food of flames, but participating in the beatific vision, may we enjoy the pleasures of heaven." Debitum: due to them, because promised to them by Christ. Constr.: Ut non volvamur esca flammaram inter nigros turbines, sed compotes vultu Dei fruamur gaudiis cœli.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall, first line altered. First line of Original Text: Vox clara ecce intonat. There are twenty-seven translations, seven of which are from the Original Text. The Annus Sanctus contains three translations. This beautiful hymn breathes the spirit of Advent: it is an excellent summary of the Epistle (Rom. 13, 11-14), and of the Gospel (Luke 21, 25-33) of the first Sunday of Advent. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on Sundays and week-days during Advent.

1. "Lo, a clear voice exhorts, penetrating everything darksome: Let dreams be banished afar: Jesus shines forth from heaven." Clara vox: These words are probably an allusion to the great preacher of penance, St. John the Baptist, who said of himself: Ego vox clamantis in deserto: dirigite viam Domini, sicut dixit Isaias propheta (John 1, 23: Is. 40, 3). Redarguit: lit., to contradict, refute; to admonish, urge to penance. This stanza might also be rendered: "Behold, a clear penetrating voice reveals the falsity of darksome things," etc.

2. "Let the slothful soul now rise, no longer remaining prostrate on the ground: a new star now shines forth to take away everything harmful." Sidus novum = Christus. Christ was the star that was to rise out of Jacob (Num. 24, 17), and take away the sins of the world (John 1, 29). Noxium, sinful.

3. "Behold, the Lamb is sent to us, to pay our debt gratuitously: together, let us all with tears pray for pardon." Agnus: In the Scriptures, the lamb is a most common symbol of Our Lord (cf. Is. 53, 7; Jer. 11, 19; John 1, 29).

4. "That, when for the second time He comes resplendent and girdles the world with fear, He may not punish us according to our deserts, but may He then lovingly protect us." Fulserit = fulgens advenerit.

CHRISTMAS-TIDE

³ Memento, rerum Conditor,
 Nostri quod olim corporis,
 Sacrata ab alvo Virginis
 Nascendo, formam sumpseris.

Salvation's Author, call to mind
 How, taking form of humankind,
 Born of a Virgin undefiled,
 Thou in man's flesh becam'st a Child.

⁴ Testatur hoc præsens dies,
 Currens per anni circulum,
 Quod solus e sinu Patris
 Mundi salus adveneris.

Thus testifies the present day,
 Through every year in long array,
 That Thou, salvation's source alone,
 Proceededst from the Father's throne.

⁵ Hunc astra, tellus, æquora,
 Hunc omne quod cælo subest,
 Salutis Auctorem novæ
 Novo salutat cantico.

The heavens above, the rolling main
 And all that earth's wide realms contain,
 With joyous voice now loudly
 sing
 The glory of their new-born King.

⁶ Et nos, beata quos sacri
 Rigavit unda sanguinis;
 Natalis ob diem tui
 Hymni tributum solvimus.

And we who, by Thy precious
 Blood
 From sin redeemed, are marked for God,
 On this the day that saw Thy birth,
 Sing the new song of ransomed earth.

⁷ Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
 Qui natus es de Virgine,
 Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu
 In sempiterna sæcula.

O Lord, the Virgin-born, to Thee
 Eternal praise and glory be,
 Whom with the Father we adore
 And Holy Ghost forevermore.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 6th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale, Father Potter, and the Evening Office, 1710. First line of Original Text: Christe, Re- demptor omnium. There are twenty-five translations, six of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins on Christmas Day.

1. "Jesus, the Redeemer of all, who, being the equal of the Father's glory, was begotten of the Sovereign Father before the beginning of light." The three Persons of the Holy Trinity are co-equal, co-eternal, and consubstantial.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

2. "Thou light and splendor of the Father, Thou never-failing hope of all, give ear to the prayers which Thy servants throughout the world pour forth." In the hymns, Christ is repeatedly styled, lux, jubar, lumen, and splendor Patris. Cum sit splendor gloriæ et figura substantiæ ejus (1 Heb. 1, 3).

3. "Remember, O Creator of the world, that in being born Thou didst once assume the form of our body from the sacred womb of a Virgin."

4. "The present day (the Feast of Christmas) recurring in the course of each year, bears witness to this, that Thou alone didst come forth from the bosom of the Father, the salvation of the world." Solus = Filius unigenitus.

5. "The stars, the earth, and the seas, and every creature under heaven doth greet Him with a new canticle, as the author of the new salvation." Salutis novæ: the New Law with its Sacraments and other means of grace.

6. "We also, whom the sacred stream of Thy blood hath cleansed, pay Thee the tribute of a hymn on Thy birthday."

A solis ortus cardine

A SOLIS ortus cardine
Ad usque terræ limitem,
Christum canamus Principem,
Natum Maria Virgine.

FROM lands that see the sun arise
To earth's remotest boundaries,
The Virgin-born to-day we sing,
The Son of Mary, Christ the King.

♫ Beatus auctor sæculi
Servile corpus induit:
Ut carne carnem liberans,
Ne perderet quos condidit.

Blest Author of this earthly frame,
To take a servant's form He came,
That, liberating flesh by flesh,
Whom He had made might live afresh.

♫ Castæ Parentis viscera
Cœlestis intrat gratia:
Venter Puellæ bajulat
Secreta, quæ non noverat.

In that chaste parent's holy womb Celestial grace hath found its
home;
And she, as earthly bride unknown,
Yet calls that Offspring blest her own.

AUTHOR: Sedulius, 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are eighteen translations, two of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on Christmas Day. This is a part (from A to G) of an alphabetical hymn, the stanzas of which begin with successive letters of the alphabet. This hymn and No. 46, Crudelis Herodes Deum, are parts of the same hymn. Together they give in verse a devout description of the life of Christ.

1. "From the beginning of the rising of the sun, to the uttermost bounds of the earth, let us sing Christ, the Lord, born of the Virgin Mary." Cardine, lit., a hinge, also in astron. a pole: cardo mundi, cardo cœli. A solis ortu usque ad occasum laudabile nomen Domini (Ps. 112, 3).

2. "The Blessed Creator of the world assumed a servile body, that by flesh, He might liberate flesh, lest He lose those whom He had created." Servile corpus: formam servi accipiens (Phil. 2, 7). Ut carne carnem liberans: That by His incarnation He might liberate mankind from the power of the devil.

3. "A heavenly grace enters the bosom of the chaste Mother: the womb of a virgin bears secrets, which she had not thought of." Gratia, in the sense of the "Author of grace." Secreta: the incarnate Son of God. Non noverat: Mary had no foreknowledge of the mystery that was to be wrought in her womb.

4. "The mansion of her modest bosom suddenly becomes the temple of God: unsullied, knowing not man, she conceived in her womb a Son." Nesciens virum, (cf. Luke 1, 34-41).

5. "The Mother brought forth Him whom Gabriel had predicted, whom the Baptist, exulting had perceived, though still enclosed in the womb of his mother." Puerpera, from puer and parere. Baptista gestiens: Et factum est, ut audivit salutationem Mariæ Elisabeth, exultavit infans in utero ejus: et repleta est Spiritu sancto Elisabeth (Luke 1, 41). The first chapter of St. Luke's Gospel is very beautiful. It contains two sublime canticles, the Magnificat (verses 46-55), and the Benedictus (verses 68-79).

6. "He deigned to lie on hay, nor did He disdain the crib: and He, by whose providence not even a bird suffers hunger, is fed with a little milk." Præsepe, is, manger, crib; this word occurs in several forms; see Glossary.

7. "The choir of Saints rejoices, the Angels hymn their God, and the Shepherd, the Creator of all, became known to the shepherds." For the Scriptural references in this stanza, read Luke 2, 13-18.

AUTHOR unknown. 18th cent. TRANSLATION by Canon Oakeley. There are forty translations. The complete hymn consists of eight stanzas, four of which are commonly used at Benediction during Christmastide. There are four translations of this hymn in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus; the one by J. C. Earle is a translation of the complete hymn. The Adeste Fideles is not found in the Breviary or Missal. It is a beautiful invitation to the faithful "to come to Bethlehem" in spirit, and worship the new-born Saviour.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

“With the exception of the Dies Iræ and the Stabat Mater,” says W. J. Grattan-Flood, Mus.D., “it is doubtful if there is a more popular hymn in our churches than the Adeste Fideles” (The Dolphin, Dec., 1905). The above translation is literal. In l. 15, Io is an interj. expressing great joy. Line 17, aula cœlestium, the court of the blessed, the heavenly court.

the Holy Innocents. This hymn is a cento from the twelfth and last poem in the Cathemerinon of Prudentius, and in its full form it contains 208 lines. First line of complete hymn: Quicumque Christum quæritis. Four beautiful centos from this hymn were included in the Breviary by Pius V (1568). One of these centos begins with the first line of the complete hymn. The following are the four centos, their composition, and their liturgical use:

1. Quicumque Christum quæritis (ll. 1-4; 37-44; 85-88). Transfiguration.

2. O sola magnarum urbium (ll. 77-80; 5-8; 61-64; 69-72). Epiphany.

3. Audit tyrannus anxius (ll. 93-100; 133-136). Holy Innocents.

4. Salvete flores martyrum (ll. 125-132). Holy Innocents.

There is an article in the Cath. Encycl., treating of all four hymns, under the general heading: Quicumque Christum quæritis.

1. "The anxious tyrant hears that the King of kings is come, who would rule the people of Israel and possess the royal throne of David." Tyrannus anxius: Audiens autem Herodes rex, turbatus est, et omnis Jerosolyma cum illo (Matt. 2, 3). Regum Princeps: Jesus Christ—the prince of the kings of the earth (Apoc. 1, 5). Nomen Israel = populus Israel. Regiam (sc. sedem). Et dabit illi Dominus Deus sedem David patris ejus (Luke 1, 32).

2. "Rendered frantic by the message, he cries out: 'A successor is at hand, we are driven away: go, executioner, take the sword, drench the cradles with blood!'" Satelles, sing. for pl., attendants, bodyguard, soldiers. For the Scriptural account of the massacre of the Holy Innocents, see Matt. 2, 16-18. See also the articles on Holy Innocents and Herod, in the Cath. Encycl.

3. "But what availeth so great an outrage? What profiteth Herod this crime? Among so many slain, Christ alone is safely borne away." Unus = solus. Funera, lit., funerals; corpses, also death, esp. a violent death.

ALL hail, ye little Martyr flowers,
Sweet rosebuds cut in dawning

Ye fell as bloom before the wind.

With crowns and palms in tender

And innocent, ye seem to play.

All glory, as is ever meet
To Father and to Paraclete.

AUTHOR: Prudentius (348-413). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Athelstan Riley. There are about twenty-five translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Holy Innocents. This hymn is a cento from the Cathemerinon. See the Notes on the preceding hymn.

1. "Hail, flowers of the martyrs, whom on the very threshold of life, the persecutor of Christ snatched away even as the whirlwind, the budding roses." Lucis, lit., light; fig., life; or in a mystical sense, Christ.

2. "As the first sacrifice for Christ, a tender flock of victims, with sweet simplicity, ye play with your palms and crowns at the very altar side." Aram sub ipsam: The Original Text has ante for sub. Vidi subtus altare animas interfectorum propter verbum Dei (Apoc. 6, 9). This stanza has been greatly admired. It presents a picture of great beauty. The following is Father Caswall's translation of this hymn, of which Monsignor Henry says: "Not to speak of the beauty and fidelity of the rendering, the trochaic rhythm vividly conveys the sense of the suddenness of the onslaught, the ruthlessness and swiftness of the destruction." (Cath. Encycl. Vol. XII, p. 607).

As Thou our prize wilt be;
Jesu, be Thou our glory now,
And through eternity.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

AUTHOR: St. Bernard (1091-1153). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. LITURGICAL USE: This and the two following centos are used on the Feast of the Holy Name, which is celebrated on the Sunday between the Circumcision and the Epiphany, or failing such a Sunday, on January 2d.

The complete hymn as found in the Benedictine edition of the Opera of St. Bernard contains forty-eight stanzas. There are six translations of the complete hymn. Many centos from the hymn, including the three given here for Vespers, Matins, and Lauds, have been translated more frequently. There are two translations of these three centos in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus.

The Jesu dulcis memoria is a hymn of surpassing sweetness, and it has been universally accorded a place among the greatest hymns of the Church. According to Mr. James Mearns, the assistant editor of Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology, this hymn is "The finest and most characteristic specimen of St. Bernard's 'subjective loveliness' and its honied sweetness vindicates his title of 'Doctor Melifluus.'" Father Caswall's much admired translation preserves much of the "honied sweetness" of the original.

The ascription of this hymn to St. Bernard has been called in question. Dom Pothier has discovered a copy of it in manuscripts of about the year 1070, in which it is ascribed to a Benedictine abbess. Father Blume, S.J., in the article on Hymnody in the Cath. Encycl. pronounces against its ascription to St. Bernard. On the other hand Mr. James Mearns says: "This hymn has been generally (and there seems little reason to doubt correctly) ascribed to St. Bernard." (Dict. of Hymnol.) There is an article on this hymn in the Index Vol. of the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Jesus! how sweet is the very thought! giving true joys of heart; but surpassing honey and all sweetness is His sweet presence." Supply est in lines 1 and 4. The Holy Name has Jesu in all the cases except the nom. and acc.

2. "Nothing more sweet can be sung, nothing more pleasant can be heard, nothing more lovely can be thought of, than Jesus, the Son of God."

THE HOLY NAME

3. "O Jesus, the hope of penitents, how kind art Thou to those who pray! How good to those who seek Thee! But what to those who find!" This question is answered in the following stanza.

4. "No tongue can tell, nor can written word express it: only one who knows from experience can say what it means to love Jesus."

5. "Mayest Thou, O Jesus, be our joy, as Thou wilt be our reward: in Thee be our glory forever."

MATINS

Jesu Rex admirabilis

JESU Rex admirabilis,
Et triumphator nobilis,
Dulcedo ineffabilis,
Totus desiderabilis.

O JESU, King most wonderful
Thou conqueror renowned,
Thou sweetness most ineffable,
In whom all joys are found!

² Quando cor nostrum visitas,
Tunc lucet ei veritas,
Mundi vilescit vanitas,
Et intus fervet caritas.

When once Thou visitest the heart,
Then truth begins to shine;
Then earthly vanities depart;
Then kindles love divine.

³ Jesu dulcedo cordium,
Fons vivus, lumen mentium,
Excedens omne gaudium,
Et omne desiderium.

O Jesu, light of all below,
Thou fount of life and fire,
Surpassing all the joys we know,
And all we can desire:

⁴ Jesum omnes agnoscite,
Amorem ejus poscite:
Jesum ardentem quærite,
Quærendo inardescite.

May every heart confess Thy Name,
And ever Thee adore;
And, seeking Thee, itself inflame
To seek Thee more and more.

⁵ Te nostra Jesu vox sonet,
Nostri te mores exprimant,
Te corda nostra diligant,
Et nunc, et in perpetuum.

Thee may our tongues forever bless;
Thee may we love alone;
And ever in our lives express
The image of Thine own.

AUTHORSHIP, TRANSLATION, etc., as in the preceding hymn.

1. "O Jesus, admirable king and noble conqueror, sweetness ineffable, wholly to be desired." Totus, wholly, altogether, above all else.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

2. "When Thou dost visit our heart, then truth illuminates it; the vanity of the world becomes contemptible, and charity glows within."

3. "O Jesus, sweetness of hearts, living fountain, light of intellects, Thou dost surpass all joys and all desires."

4. "Let all confess Jesus, let all earnestly ask for His love; let all zealously seek Jesus, and in seeking Him become enkindled."

5. "Thee, O Jesus, may our voices praise; may the whole course of our lives (mores) give testimony of Thee; may our hearts love Thee now and forever."

LAUDS

Jesu decus angelicum

JESU decus angelicum,
In aure dulce canticum,
In ore mel mirificum,
In corde nectar cœlicum.

O JESU, Thou the Beauty art
Of Angel-worlds above;
Thy name is music to the heart,
Enchanting it with love.

² Qui te gustant, esuriunt;
Qui bibunt, adhuc sitiunt;
Desiderare nesciunt,
Nisi Jesum, quem diligunt.

Celestial Sweetness unalloyed!
Who eat Thee hunger still;
Who drink of Thee still feel a void,
Which naught but Thou can fill.

³ O Jesu mi dulcissime,
Spes suspirantis animæ!
Te quærunt piæ lacrimæ,
Te clamor mentis intimæ.

O my sweet Jesu! hear the sighs
Which unto Thee I send;
To Thee mine inmost spirit cries
My being's hope and end!

⁴ Mane nobiscum Domine,
Et nos illustra lumine;
Pulsa mentis caligine,
Mundum reple dulcedine.

Stay with us, Lord, and with Thy light
Illumine the soul's abyss;
Scatter the darkness of our night,
And fill the world with bliss.

⁵ Jesu flos Matris Virginis,
Amor nostræ dulcedinis,
Tibi laus, honor nominis,
Regnum beatitudinis.

O Jesu, spotless Virgin-flower,
Our life and joy; to Thee
Be praise, beatitude, and power,
Through all eternity.

AUTHORSHIP, TRANSLATION, etc., as in the preceding hymns.

THE EPIPHANY

1. "O Jesus, glory of the Angels, Thou art a sweet canticle to the ear, wondrous honey to the mouth, heavenly nectar to the heart."

2. "Those who taste of Thee still hunger; those who drink of Thee still thirst; they know not to desire ought else but Jesus whom they love." Ego sum panis vitæ: qui venit ad me, non esuriet: et qui credit in me, non sitiet unquam (John 6, 35).

3. "O my most sweet Jesus, the hope of my sighing soul; loving tears and the cry of my inmost heart seek after Thee."

4. "Stay with us, O Lord, and illuminate us with Thy light; the darkness of the mind having been dispelled, fill the world with Thy sweetness."

5. "O Jesus, flower of the Virgin-Mother, love of our sweetness, to Thee be praise, honor of name, kingdom of blessedness."

AUTHOR: Sedulius, 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are about twenty-five translations, eight of which, including both texts, are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn on the Feast of the Epiphany. First line of Original Text: Hostis Herodes impie. The texts differ only in the first two lines. In the Original Text these lines read:

Hostis Herodes impie
Christum venire quid times?

This hymn is a continuation of No. 39, A solis ortus cardine. The word Epiphany signifies appearance or manifestation. This manifestation was threefold: To the Gentiles in the persons of the Magi (Matt. 2, 1-12); to the Jews at the Baptism of Christ in the Jordan (Mark 1, 9-11); to the Apostles when Christ wrought His first miracle at the marriage feast at Cana (John 2, 1-11). In the hymn, it will be observed that a stanza is devoted to each of the three manifestations.

Read the articles on Epiphany, Herod, Magi and Cana, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Cruel Herod, why dost thou fear the coming of the Divine King? He taketh not away earthly kingdoms, who bestoweth heavenly ones." Regnum meum non est de hoc mundo (John 18, 36).

2. "The Magi proceeded, following the star, which they saw leading the way: by the aid of light, they seek the Light: by their gifts they acknowledge Him to be God." In the East it was customary when visiting kings or princes to offer them appropriate gifts. The gifts offered by the

THE EPIPHANY

Magi were expressive of their belief in Christ's royal generation, in His divine nature, and in His human nature. Gold, the noblest of the metals, hence a gift suitable for a king, was symbolical of His royal generation: frankincense is a symbol of prayer, and was therefore, an acknowledgment of His Divinity; and myrrh, which is used in embalming, was expressive of His mortality as man.

3. "The Heavenly Lamb touched the cleansing bath of the limpid waters: by washing us, He took away (sustulit) sins which He Himself had not committed (detulit)." Ecce agnus Dei, ecce qui tollit peccatum mundi (John 1, 29). "It is the teaching of St. Thomas that the Baptism of Christ was the occasion when He gave to Christian Baptism its power of conferring grace; but that the necessity of this Sacrament was not intimated to men till after the Resurrection" (Father Hunter's Outlines of Dogmatic Theology, Vol. II, p. 532).

4. "A new manifestation of power: the water of the jars becomes red, and the water which was bidden to issue forth as wine, changed its nature." Hydriæ is the subject, and aquæ the genitive of contents. Constr.: Et unda (quæ) jussa (est) vinum fundere, mutavit originem. The following is the Catholic poet Crashaw's beautiful epigram on the miracle at Cana:

Lympha pudica Deum vidit et erubuit.

The modest water saw its God and blushed.

Father Caswall's translation is lofty, dignified, and musical; it is more extensively used than all others combined. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Epiphany. This hymn is a cento from the Quicumque Christum quæritis. See hymn 41. Read the articles on Bethlehem, Saba, Magi, and Epiphany, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "O highly favored Bethlehem, greater than the great cities, to whom it was given to bring forth from heaven the Prince of salvation, in human form." Sola, unique, singularly honored. Magnarum urbium = magnis urbibus (abl.), a Graecism. This construction is more common with pronouns than with nouns (cf. Kaulen's Handbuch zur Vulgata, pp. 258-260).

2. "And a star which surpassed the disk of the sun in beauty and in splendor, announces to the nations that God has come clothed in earthly flesh." Quem = et.

3. "As soon as the Magi behold Him, they bring forth their Eastern gifts; and prostrate, together with their prayers, they offer incense, myrrh, and royal gold." Videre = viderunt. Et procidentes adoraverunt eum; et apertis thesauris suis obtulerunt ei munera, aurum, thus, et myrrham (Matt. 2, 11).

4. "The gold and the fragrant odor of Sabean incense proclaim Him King and God, and the dust of myrrh foreshadows the tomb." Sabæus, adj., from Saba, the chief

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are twelve translations. LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn on Sundays and week-days during Lent.

1. "Taught by mystic use, let us observe this fast, which is completed in the well known tenfold round of days taken four times." More mystico, sacred tradition. The Lenten fast is of very ancient, if not of apostolic origin. A similar fast was observed by the prophets Moses (Ex. 34, 28) and Elias (III Kings 19, 7-8). Deno, see denu in the Glossary. Some texts have denum (= denorum). The following is Neale's translation of this stanza rewritten in Hymns Ancient and Modern:

PROPER OF THE SEASON

By precepts taught of ages past,
Now let us keep again the fast
Which, year by year, in order meet
Of forty days is made complete.

2. "The law and the prophets first revealed this; afterwards Christ, the king and maker of all seasons, sanctified it." Hoc, sc. jejunium, the Lenten fast. Lex et prophetæ: By the law is meant the Mosaic Law, the Pentateuch; by the prophets, the later books of the Old Testament. Lex et prophetæ usque ad Joannem (Luke 16, 16).

3. "Let us, therefore, use more sparingly words, food, and drink, sleep and jests, and let us remain severely steadfast on our guard."

4. "Moreover, let us avoid those hurtful things which subvert fickle souls; and let us give no occasion for the tyranny of the cunning foe."

5-6. "May we, weeping before the Judge, soften His avenging wrath; let us cry aloud with suppliant voices, and prostrate let us all say: 'By our sins, O God, we have offended Thy goodness; pour out upon us from on high, O forgiver of sins, Thy mercy.'"

7. "Remember that we are Thy creatures (tui plasmatis) though frail; we beseech Thee that Thou give not to another the honor of Thy Name." Plasmatis, the genitive denoting possession with esse; of Thy making, creation. Alteri, to Satan, the enemy of the human race.

8. "Pardon the evil we have done; increase the good for which we pray, that we may at length be able to please Thee here and in eternity."

And give the world a better day.

Now days of grace with mercy flow,
O Lord, the gift of tears bestow,
To wash our stains in every part,
Whilst heavenly fire consumes the heart.

Rise, crystal tears, from that same source
From whence our sins derive their course;
Nor cease, till hardened hearts
relent,
And softened by your streams,
repent.

Behold, the happy days return,
The days of joy for them that mourn;
May we of their indulgence share,
And bless the God that grants our prayer.

May heaven and earth aloud proclaim
The Trinity's almighty fame;
And we, restored to grace, rejoice
In newness both of heart and voice.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 6th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION from the Primer of 1706, probably by John Dryden; first three lines altered. There are twelve translations. First line of Original Text: Jam Christe sol justitiæ. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on Sundays and week-days during Lent. "In this hymn Lent is regarded as a season of waiting and penitential preparation for the Second Creation at Easter" (Dict. of Hymnology, p. 576). According to Duffield "It expresses the early Christian attitude towards God's works, connecting the looked-for Easter with the renewal of the world by spring" (Latin Hymn-Writers and Their Hymns, p. 335).

1. "O Jesus, Sun of salvation, shine Thou in our inmost souls, till, the night having been dispelled, more welcome day is born anew to the world." This is a hymn for Lauds, which was said at daybreak. As the sun at daybreak dispels the darkness, in like manner we entreat the Sun of salvation, the true Light of the world, to flood our hearts with the quickening beams of His grace.

2. "Having given this acceptable time, grant also that we cleanse with floods of tears the victim of our heart, which may gladsome charity consume by its flames." Tempus acceptabile, a time of grace; Lent is preëminently a time of grace. Victima, something offered in sacrifice. There is an allusion here to the purification of the victims of sacrifice in the Old Law, and to their destruction in whole or in part by fire. Such for example were the holocausts, the peace-offerings, and the sacrifices of propitiation. So too shall "the victim which is our heart" be purified by tears of sorrow, and consumed by the flames of an ardent charity. Ecce nunc tempus acceptabile, ecce nunc dies salutis (II Cor. 6, 2).

3. "From the selfsame source whence sins arose, shall ceaseless tears arise, if but the rod of penance break the icy coldness of the heart." Fonte, "the source" is the heart of man. Ab intus enim de corde hominum malæ cogitationes procedunt, adulteria, fornicationes, homicidia (Mark 7, 21). Virga: The rod is a symbol of chastisement, and here, of self-inflicted chastisement.

4. "The day comes, Thy day, on which all shall bloom anew; then may we too rejoice, led on the way by Thy right hand." Dies: The day alluded to may be either Judgment Day or the coming Easter Day.

5. "O loving Trinity, may the whole fabric of the universe humbly adore Thee, and we, renewed by Thy grace, would sing Thee a new song of praise." Prona, prostrate.

AUTHOR: Venantius Fortunatus (530-609). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by W. K. Blount. There are about forty translations, ten of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. According to Julian's Dict. of Hymnology the above translation, dating from 1670, is by far the best rendering of the Vexilla Regis in common use; while J. M. Neale's translation, in various forms, is more widely used than all others put together (p. 1221). Neale's translation of the Original Text is in the Baltimore Manual of Prayers, p. 612. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn from Passion Sunday to Wednesday of Holy Week. It is also the Vespers hymn on the Feasts of the Finding (May 3) and of the Exaltation (Sept. 14) of the Holy Cross. The Vexilla Regis was originally intended as a Processional Hymn, and it is still so used on Good Friday, when the Blessed Sacrament is carried from the Repository to the High Altar. Neale justly styles the Vexilla Regis "a world-famous hymn" and "one of the grandest in the treasury of the Latin Church" (Medieval Hymns p. 6). It was composed by Fortunatus on the occasion of the reception of a relic of the True Cross, which was sent by the Emperor Justin II to St. Radegunde. Read Monsignor Henry's interesting article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "The banners of the King come forth; brightly gleams the mystery of the Cross, on which Life suffered death, and by His death, obtained for us life." Vexilla: lit. banners; here, the Cross. The vexillum was the old Roman cavalry standard, which, after Constantine, was surmounted by a Cross instead of by the Roman eagle. Mysterium: The Cross is by preëminence the symbol of man's redemption. Qua, sc. cruce. Vita: the author of life, Christ. Vitam (æternam).

2. "He was wounded by the cruel point of a spear, and there issued forth water and blood to cleanse us from the defilements of sin." Quæ, sc. vita, from the preceding stanza. Unda et sanguine: An allusion to,—sed unus militum lancea latus ejus aperuit, et continuo exivit sanguis et aqua (John 19, 34).

3. "Now is fulfilled what David foretold in faithful song, saying to the nations: 'God has reigned from a Tree.'" A ligno: "from the wood," or, "from a tree." The reference is to Ps. 95, 10: Dicite in gentibus quia Dominus regnavit a ligno. The words a ligno are not found in any present text of the Scriptures. They were, however, frequently quoted by the early Fathers; and St. Justin even accused the Jews of having erased them from the Hebrew text. If not a Scriptural, the a ligno is at least a liturgical expression still in use during Paschal time in the "Commemoration of the Cross," in both Lauds and Vespers. "The words are probably a gloss by some early Christian scribe, transferred, in course of time, from the margin into the text" (Rev. J. M'Swiney, S.J., in his Translation of the Psalms and Canticles, p. 405). In this stanza, some texts read cecinit for concinit, dicens for dicendo, and regnabit for regnavit.

4. "O beautiful and resplendent Tree adorned with the purple of the King, chosen to bear on thy worthy trunk, limbs so holy." Purpura, purple; here, the Most Precious Blood. Tangere: to touch, come in contact with.

5. "O blessed Tree upon whose branches hung the ransom of the world; it was made the balance of the body, and snatched away the (expected) prey of hell." The last two lines are obscure, and are variously rendered. Pre-tium: Empti enim estis pretio magno (I Cor. 6, 20). Statera, lit., a steelyard; a balance, beam, scales; also the value of a thing, price. "Statera corporis, the payment of the body having been made; others read facta est: many read statera sæculi, the price of the world" (March's Latin Hymns, p. 254). The following translations are good:

"The price of human-kind to pay,
And spoil the spoiler of his pray."

AUTHOR: Venantius Fortunatus (530-609). METER: Trochaic tetrameter catalectic. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are about twenty-five translations, four of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: The Pange lingua is in use in both the Missal and the Breviary. Missal use: The whole hymn (eleven stanzas) is recited or sung during the "Adoration of the Cross" in the morning service on Good Friday. Breviary use: For Office use, the hymn is divided into two equal parts with a common doxology. The first five stanzas are assigned to Matins from Passion Sunday to the Wednesday of Holy Week, inclusive. The same stanzas form the Matins hymn for the Feasts of the Finding (May 3) and of the Exaltation (Sept. 14) of the Holy Cross. The remaining five stanzas, beginning with Lustra sex, are used in Lauds whenever the Pange lingua is used in Matins. Read the article on the Pange lingua gloriosi, in the Cath. Encycl. In the opinion of Dr. Julian, this noble hymn is "one of the finest of the Latin Medieval Hymns, and perhaps the best of its author" (Dict. of Hymnology, p. 880). Neale places it "in the very first class of Latin Hymns" (Medieval Hymns, p. 1). Dr. Neale's translation above is of the Original Text. The hymn was not greatly altered by the revisers.

1. "Sing, O my tongue, the victory in that glorious combat, and, of the trophy of the Cross, sing a noble song of triumph, recounting how the Redeemer of the world, when immolated, conquered." Pange, frame, i. e., sing, celebrate in song. It has the same meaning as dic in l. 4. Daniel, in his Thes. Hymnol. lists fourteen hymns beginning with the words Pange lingua. Lauream, victory; the Original Text has prælium, which to the revisers under Urban VIII seemed tautological. Neale, however, maintains that prælium is the better word, for—"It is not to the glory of the termination of Our Lord's Conflict with the devil that the poet would have us look, but to the glory of the struggle itself, as indeed he tells us at the conclusion of the verse" (Medieval Hymns, p. 4). Certaminis: The contest between Christ and Satan for the possession of the human race (cf. Gen. 3, 15). Super = de, of, about, concerning. Trophæo: Originally the trophæum was a tree stripped of its branches and adorned with the spoils of war. Representations of the stumps of trees so adorned are often found on coins. The poet probably alludes to these early trophies in "the trophy of the Cross." Later, however, the "trophy" was a monument erected on a battle-field on the spot where the defeated enemy turned to flee (cf. Harper's Dict. of Class. Liter. and Antiq., p. 1615).

2. "Deeply grieved by the infidelity of the first-created man, when by the eating of the fatal fruit he rushed head-long to death, the Creator Himself then chose the tree that would undo the harm wrought by the former tree."

He then resolved the Cross's wood
Should make that tree's sad damage good.

Ipsè lignum tunc notavit: There is an ancient legend that the Cross of Christ sprang from a seed or bough of the Tree of Life. In her Christian Life in Song, Mrs. Charles gives the following version of the legend: "When Adam died, Seth obtained from the guardian cherubim of Paradise a branch of the tree from which Eve ate the forbidden fruit. This he planted on Golgotha, called the place of the scull, because Adam was buried there. From this tree, as the ages rolled on, were made the ark of the testimony, the pole on which the brazen serpent was lifted up, and other instruments; and from its wood, at length, then grown old and hard, was made the Cross."

3. "This work the plan of our salvation demanded, that art might outwit the art of the multiform deceiver, and thence bring the remedy whence the foe wrought the injury." Ars, the wisdom of God; artem, the cunning of Satan. Multiformis: Satan has appeared under various forms: To Eve as a serpent (Gen. 3, 1); to Christ in the desert, as a man (Matt. 4, 1-10); to the Saints in various forms; and he may appear even as an angel of light (II Cor. 11, 14). Et medelam ferret inde . . . unde: This thought is beautifully expressed in the Preface of the Cross:—Qui salutem humani generis in ligno crucis constituisti, ut unde mors oriebatur, inde vita resurgeret, et qui (the serpent) in ligno vincebat, in ligno quoque vinceretur.

4. “When, therefore, the fulness of the sacred time was come, the Son, the Creator of the world, was sent forth from His Father’s home, and, clothed in flesh, He came forth from a virginal womb.” Plenitudo temporis: Ubi venit plenitudo temporis, misit Deus Filium suum factum ex muliere (Gal. 4, 4). Arce: heaven; the bosom of the eternal Father. Carne: In human form.

5. “As an Infant, He cries, hidden in a narrow manger: the Virgin-Mother swathes His limbs wrapped up in swaddling-clothes, and a tight band binds the hands and feet of God.” The following translation of this stanza, from the Divine Office, 1763, is very beautiful:

Thus God-made-Man an Infant lies,
And in the manger weeping cries;
His sacred limbs by Mary bound,
The poorest tattered rags surround;
And God’s incarnate feet and hands
Are closely bound with swathing-bands.

—Annus Sanctus, p. 100.

Conditus: some texts have positus. Note the play on the word Conditor; the infinite Conditor of the preceding stanza is here conditus, hidden, sheltered. Fascia may be either the subject of cingit, or the ablative. In the latter case Virgo-Mater is the subj. of cingit; viz., the Virgin-Mother, with a tight band, binds the hands and feet of God. The former is preferable.

6. “When He had lived thirty years, completing the period of His earthly sojourning, the Redeemer, of His own free will, gave Himself up to His Passion, and as a Lamb to be slaughtered, He was lifted up on the tree of the Cross.” Lustræ: lustrum, a period of five years: it is here the accusative of time denoting how long. Sponte libera: Oblatus est quia ipse voluit, et non aperuit os suum: sicut ovis ad occisionem ducetur, et quasi agnus coram tondente se obmutescet, et non aperiet os suum (Is. 53, 7). Agnus: The Paschal Lamb of the Old Law was a most striking figure of Christ, the "Lamb of God." Read the article on Lamb, Paschal in the Cath. Encycl. Read also Exodus 12, 3-11.

7. "He partakes of gall; lo, He swoons: thorns, nails, and a lance pierce His tender body: water flows forth, and blood; by which flood, the earth, the sea, the stars, and the whole world is purified." Potus: perf. part. passive, used frequently in an active sense, signifying one who has drunk or partaken of something. The allusion is to the potion offered to our Blessed Lord before His crucifixion. Et dederunt ei vinum bibere cum felle mistum. Et cum gustasset, noluit bibere. (Matt. 27, 34: cf. also Mark 15, 23.) It was customary in ancient times to offer to one about to be crucified a potion to sustain him or to deaden his sensibilities. This drink Our Lord merely tasted. Languet: He grows weak; languet is entirely independent of felle potus. Quo lavantur flumine: Of the cleansing power of the Precious Blood, St. Thomas, in the Adoro Te devote sings:

Cujus una stilla salvum facere
Totum mundum quit ab omni scelere.

Whereof one only drop, in Thy sweet mercy spilt,
Would have the power to cleanse the world from all its guilt.

8. "O faithful (Tree of the) Cross! the one noble Tree among all trees: no forest yields thy like in foliage, flower, and fruit: sweet iron, sweet wood, that bear so sweet a burden." This stanza is one of great beauty. Fidelis: The Tree in Eden (Gen. 3, 1-7) was perfidious; the Tree on Calvary has become the very symbol of faith. What other tree can ever hope to bear foliage, flowers, and fruit of infinite worth and beauty!

9. "Bend thy limbs, O lofty Tree, relax thy tense fibers, and let that hardness which thy nature gave thee, unbend; and stretch on thy softened trunk the members of the heavenly King."

10. "Thou alone wast deemed worthy to bear the Victim of the world; and as an Ark, to provide a haven for a shipwrecked world; which (ark) the sacred blood poured forth from the body of the Lamb hath anointed." Arca: "In stanza 10, the Cross seems to be regarded, by a change of figure, as a ship in which the faithful safely ride over the waves of this troublesome world, after those waves have been smoothed for them by the anointing oil that flowed from the wounds of the Lamb of God" (Dict. of Hymnology, p. 880).

PROPER OF THE SEASON

11. "Eternal glory be to the Blessed Trinity; equal glory be to the Father and to the Son; equal glory to the Paraclete; may the whole world praise the Name of the One, and of the Three."

THE SEVEN DOLORS OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN

THE FRIDAY AFTER PASSION SUNDAY

Stabat Mater dolorosa

STABAT Mater dolorosa
Juxta Crucem lacrymosa,
Dum pendebat Filius.
Cujus animam gementem,
Contristatam et dolentem,
Pertransivit gladius.

² O quam tristis et afflicta
Fuit illa benedicta
Mater Unigeniti!
Quæ mœrebat, et dolebat,
Pia Mater, dum videbat
Nati pœnas inclyti.

³ Quis est homo qui non fleret,
Matrem Christi si videret
In tanto supplicio?
Quis non posset contristari,
Christi Matrem contemplari
Dolentem cum Filio?

AT the Cross her station keeping,
Stood the mournful Mother
weeping,
Close to Jesus to the last:
Through her heart, His sorrow
sharing,
All His bitter anguish bearing,
Now at length the sword had passed.

Oh, how sad and sore distressed
Was that Mother highly blest
Of the sole-begotten One!
Christ above in torment hangs;
She beneath beholds the pangs
Of her dying glorious Son.

Is there one who would not weep,
Whelmed in miseries so deep
Christ's dear Mother to behold?
Can the human heart refrain
From partaking in her pain,
In that Mother's pain untold?

PASSIONTIDE

⁴ Pro peccatis suæ gentis
Vidit Jesum in tormentis,
Et flagellis subditum:
Vidit suum dulcem Natum
Moriendo desolatum,
Dum emisit spiritum.

Bruised, derided, cursed, defiled,
She beheld her tender Child
All with bloody scourges rent;
For the sins of His own nation,
Saw Him hang in desolation,
Till His Spirit forth He sent.

⁵ Eja Mater, fons amoris,
Me sentire vim doloris
Fac, ut tecum lugeam:
Fac, ut ardeat cor meum
In amando Christum Deum
Ut sibi complaceam.

O thou Mother! fount of love!
Touch my spirit from above,
Make my heart with thine accord:
Make me feel as thou hast felt;
Make my soul to glow and melt
With the love of Christ my Lord.

55

⁶ Sancta Mater, istud agas,
Crucifixi figè plagas
Cordi meo valide:
Tui Nati vulnerati,
Tam dignati pro me pati,
Pœnas mecum divide.

Holy Mother! pierce me through;
In my heart each wound renew
Of my Saviour crucified:
Let me share with thee His pain,
Who for all my sins was slain,
Who for me in torments died.

⁷ Fac me tecum pie flere,
Crucifixo condolere,
Donec ego vixero:
Juxta Crucem tecum stare,
Et me tibi sociare
In planctu desidero.

Let me mingle tears with thee,
Mourning Him who mourned for me,
All the days that I may live:
By the Cross with thee to stay;
There with thee to weep and pray;
Is all I ask of thee to give.

56

⁸ Virgo virginum præclara,
Mihi jam non sis amara,
Fac me tecum plangere:
Fac ut portem Christi mortem,
Passionis fac consortem,
Et plagas recolorere.

Virgin of all virgins blest!
Listen to my fond request:
Let me share thy grief divine;
Let me, to my latest breath,
In my body bear the death
Of that dying Son of thine.

⁹ Fac me plagis vulnerari,
Fac me Cruce inebriari,
Et cruore Filii.
Flammis ne urar succensus,
Per te, Virgo, sim defensus
In die judicii.

Wounded with His every wound,
Steep my soul till it hath swooned
In His very Blood away;
Be to me, O Virgin, nigh,
Lest in flames I burn and die,
In that awful Judgment day.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

¹⁰ Christe, cum sit hinc exire,
Da per Matrem me venire
Ad palmam victoriæ.
Quando corpus morietur
Fac ut animæ donetur
Paradisi gloria.

Christ, when Thou shalt call me
hence,
Be Thy Mother my defence,
Be Thy Cross my victory;
While my body here decays,
May my soul Thy goodness praise,
Safe in Paradise with Thee.

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Jacopone da Todi, O.F.M. (d. 1306). METER: Trochaic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are more than sixty translations, three of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. Father Caswall's translation is by far the most extensively used. LITURGICAL USE: Sequence for the Mass of the Seven Dolors on the Friday after Passion Sunday, and on the 15th of September when another Feast of the Seven Dolors is celebrated. For Office use, the Stabat Mater is divided into three parts for Vespers, Matins and Lauds, as follows:

- 54 Vespers: Stabat Mater dolorosa.
55 Matins: Sancta Mater istud agas.
56 Lauds: Virgo virginum præclara.

The Stabat Mater is recognized as the tenderest and most pathetic hymn of the Middle Ages. In the simplest, and at the same time in the most vivid manner, it represents the Blessed Mother of God plunged in grief and weeping beneath the Cross on which her beloved Son was suffering so unmerited and so painful a death. The historical event (John 19, 25) is narrated in the first, second and fourth stanzas. The remaining stanzas are made up of reflections, affections, petitions, and resolutions arising from the contemplation of Our Lord's bitter sufferings and death. There is an excellent article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl. The same article treats of another hymn—the Stabat Mater speciosa which is a sort of imitation of the “Dolorosa.” It represents our Blessed Mother watching beside Our Lord's cradle at Bethlehem. The two hymns are probably by the same author. The Stabat Mater speciosa is given below with a translation by that “sweet and powerful ver-sifier," Denis Florence MacCarthy. Mr. MacCarthy's translations of both hymns are in the Annus Sanctus.

1. "The sorrowful Mother stood weeping beside the Cross, while her Son hung thereon: a sword pierced her sighing, compassionate, and grief-stricken soul." Stabat: Stabant autem juxta crucem Jesu mater ejus, etc. (John 19, 25). Pertransivit gladius: Et tuam ipsius animam pertransibit gladius (Luke 2, 35). Read the beautiful Canticle of Simeon (Luke 2, 29-32). The sword of Simeon's prophecy, which was to pierce the soul of the Mother, was the sword of grief that transfixed her as she stood beside the Cross on Calvary. Mary is the "Sorrowful Mother," and her Divine Son is the "Man of Sorrows" (Is. 53 3).

2. "O how sad and how afflicted was that Blessed Mother of the Only-Begotten! How she grieved and suffered, that loving Mother, when she beheld the pains of her glorious Son."

3. "Who is there that would not weep, if he should behold the Mother of Christ in such great distress? Who would be able not to grieve, if he should contemplate the Mother of Christ suffering with her Son?" Constr.: Quis posset non contristari. Contemplari = si contempleretur.

4. "For the sins of His own nation, she saw Jesus in torments and subjected to stripes. She beheld her sweet Son dying, abandoned, until He yielded up the ghost." Pro peccatis suae gentis: Ipse enim salvum faciet populum suum a peccatis eorum (Matt. 1, 21). For a history of the Passion of Our Lord, cf. Matt. 26-27; Mark 14-15; Luke 22-23; John 18-19. Emisit spiritum: Jesu autem iterum clamans voce magna, emisit spiritum (Matt. 27, 50).

5. "Ah, Mother, fount of love, make me feel the force of grief, make me weep with thee. Make my heart burn with the love of Christ, my God, that I may be pleasing to Him." Sibi, for ei or ipsi. This use of the pronouns is quite common in Late Latin and in the Vulgate; e. g., Matt. 16, 21; Mark 10, 32; Gen. 2, 18; Tobias 3, 11.

6. "Holy Mother, mayest thou bring it to pass, that the wounds of the Crucified may be deeply stamped upon my heart. Share with me the sufferings of thy wounded Son who thus deigned to suffer for me." The Prophet Zacharias had long foretold these same plagæ in the sacred members of Our Lord: Quid sunt plagæ istæ in medio manuum tuarum? Et dicet: His plagatus sum in domo eorum qui diligebant me (Zach. 13, 6). The following is D. F. MacCarthy's rendering of this stanza:

PROPER OF THE SEASON

Blessed Mother of prediction,
Stamp the marks of crucifixion
 Deeply on my stony heart,
Ever leading where thy bleeding
Son is pleading for my needing,
 Let me in His wounds take part.

7. "Grant that I may devoutly weep with thee, and suffer with the Crucified as long as I shall live. I long to stand beside the Cross with thee, and to unite myself to thee, in thy grief."

8. "O peerless Virgin of virgins, be not unfavorably disposed towards me now; grant that I may mourn with thee. Grant that I may bear about (in my body) the death of Christ; make me a sharer in His passion, and make me mindful of His sufferings." Amarus, bitter; unkind, ill-disposed. Portem mortem Christi: A reference to II Cor. 4, 10. Fac (me) consortem.

9. "Grant that I may be wounded with His wounds, that I may be inebriated with the Cross and with the Blood of thy Son. That I may not be tormented by the flames of hell, may I, O Virgin, be defended by thee on the day of Judgment." Succensus, from succendo 3, set on fire; used here pleonastically. Inebriari: As in Ps. 35, 9: Inebriabuntur ab ubertate domus tuæ: et torrente voluptatis tuæ potabis eos. Translation: "They shall be inebriated (i.e., plentifully filled, sated, filled to overflowing) with the plenty of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the torrent of thy pleasure." See also Ps. 22, 5.

10. "When, O Christ, the hour has come for me to depart hence, grant that through Thy Mother I may obtain the palm of victory. When my body shall die, grant that the glory of Paradise be given to my soul."

Stabat Mater speciosa

STABAT Mater speciosa
 Juxta fœnum gaudiosa,
 Dum jacebat parvulus;
 Cujus animam gaudentem,
 Lætābundam et ferventem
 Pertransivit jubilus.

² O quam læta et beata
 Fuit illa immaculata
 Mater unigeniti
 Quæ gaudebat et ridebat,
 Exultabat, cum videbat
 Nati partum inclyti.

³ Quisquam est, qui non gauderet,
 Christi matrem si videret
 In tanto solatio?
 Quis non possit collætari,
 Christi matrem contemplari
 Ludentem cum filio?

⁴ Pro peccatis suæ gentis
 Christum vidit cum jumentis
 Et algori subditum;
 Vidit suum dulcem natum
 Vagientem, adoratum
 Vili diversorio.

⁵ Nato Christo in præsepe
 Cœli cives canunt læte
 Cum immenso gaudio;
 Stabat senex cum puella
 Non cum verbo nec loquela
 Stupescentes cordibus.

⁶ Eja, mater, fons amoris,
 Me sentire vim ardoris
 Fac, ut tecum sentiam;

BY the crib wherein reposing,
 With His eyes in slumber
 closing,
 Lay serene her Infant-boy,
 Stood the beauteous Mother feeling Bliss that could not bear concealing,
 So her face o'erflowed with joy.

Oh, the rapture naught could smother
 Of that most Immaculate Mother
 Of the sole-begotten One;
 When with laughing heart exulting,
 She beheld her hopes resulting
 In the great birth of her Son.

Who would not with gratulation
 See the happy consolation
 Of Christ's Mother undefiled?
 Who would not be glad surveying
 Christ's dear Mother bending, praying,
 Playing with her heavenly Child?

For a sinful world's salvation,
 Christ her Son's humiliation
 She beheld and brooded o'er;
 Saw Him weak, a child, a stranger,
 Yet before Him in the manger
 Kings lie prostrate and adore.

O'er that lowly manger winging,
 Joyful hosts from heaven were singing
 Canticles of holy praise;
 While the old man and the maiden,
 Speaking naught, with hearts
 o'erladen,
 Pondered on God's wondrous ways.

Fount of love, forever flowing,
 With a burning ardor glowing,
 Make me, Mother, feel like thee;

PASSIONTIDE

This hymn is so close an imitation of the preceding hymn that its translation will not be found difficult. The following brief notes will be found quite sufficient. The numbers refer to stanzas of the hymn. TRANSLATION by Denis Florence MacCarthy.

1. Gaudiosus = gaudens, joyful. 4. Diversorium, lit., an inn; here a stable. 5. Senex cum puella; Joseph and Mary. Senex (cum = et) puella, hence the pl. Stupescentes, agreeing in sense. 7. Prone introducas, etc.: Downward press and firmly fix, etc. 8. Jesulinus and puerinus, diminutives of Jesus and puer. 9. Vitam tradere: to give life to men. 10. Tripudium, joy, delight.

AUTHOR: Theodulf, Bishop of Orleans (b. about 760; d. 821). METER: Elegiac. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are twelve translations, two of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Processional hymn on Palm Sunday. There is a pretty legend concerning the composition of this hymn. Theodulf, so runs the legend, had for some political reasons been imprisoned in a monastery in Angers. During his incarceration he wrote this hymn, which he sang from the window of his cell when the king, Louis the Pious, was passing in the procession on Palm Sunday in 821. The hymn so moved the king that he immediately ordered that the holy bishop be set at liberty and restored to his see. The legend is now discredited on historical grounds.

The hymn is based on the following passages of Scripture: Ps. 117, 25-26; Matt. 21, 1-16; Mark 11, 9-10; Luke 19, 37-38; John 12, 12-13. This is the only instance of the use of elegiac verse in the hymns of the Church. Each stanza of this species of poetry consists of a couplet composed of a dactylic hexameter and a so-called pentameter verse. The latter is the same as the former except that it omits the last half of the third foot and of the sixth foot. In the following couplet the elegiac strophe is both imitated and described by the poet Coleridge:

In the hexameter rises	the fountain's silvery column;
In the pentameter aye	falling in melody back.

The translation given below, which is also by J. M. Neale, is in the meter of the original. It is quite as literal as prose. The following words only will require any comment. 1. Cui . . . pium: to whom youthful beauty offers a loving hosanna. 3. Cætus cælicus omnis, the whole heavenly host. 5. Munia laudis: they offered their meed of praise. Melos (neut.), hymn, song. Read the articles on Hosanna, Palm Sunday, and on Palm in Christian Symbolism, in the Cath. Encycl.

GLORY and honor and laud be to Thee, King Christ the Redeemer!
Children of old in whose praise sweetest hosannas outpoured.
Israel's Monarch art Thou, and the glorious Offspring of David,
Thou that approachest, a King, blest in the name of the Lord.
Glory and honor and laud, etc.

Glory to Thee upon high, the heavenly armies are singing;
Glory to Thee upon earth, man and creation reply.
Glory and honor and laud, etc.

Met Thee with palms in their hands, that day the folk of the Hebrews;
We with our prayers and our hymns, now to Thy presence approach.
Glory and honor and laud, etc.

They to Thee proffered their praise, for to herald Thy dolorous Passion;
We to the King on His throne, utter the jubilant hymn.
Glory and honor and laud, etc.

They were then pleasing to Thee, unto Thee our devotion be pleasing;
Merciful King, kind King, who in all goodness art pleased.
Glory and honor and laud, etc.

The beautiful Paschal sequence sings the praises of the risen Christ. For the purpose of treatment it may be divided into two parts. The first part consists of an exhortation to all Christians to offer sacrifices of praise to Christ, the true Paschal Lamb, the Sinless One, who by His immolation on the Cross reconciles sinners to His Father. Death and Life engage in a most unusual combat; the Prince of Life dies, but by His very death He triumphs and now reigns in glory. The second part is in the form of a dialogue. Mary Magdalene is appealed to as a witness of the Resurrection, and she testifies:—"I saw the sepulcher of the living Christ, the glory of the risen Lord, the witness-angels at the tomb, the napkin and the winding-sheet." Then in an ecstasy of joy she proclaims to the Apostles: "Christ my hope is risen and He shall go before you into Galilee." It concludes with a testimonial of our belief in the Resurrection and with a petition for mercy. The history of the Resurrection is told in John 20; read also the beginning of Matt. 28; Mark 16; Luke 24.

EASTERTIDE

1. "To the Paschal Victim, let Christians offer the sacrifice of praise."

2. "The Lamb hath redeemed the sheep; Christ the Sinless One hath reconciled sinners to His Father."

3. "Death and Life contended in a wondrous encounter: the Prince of Life died indeed, but now reigns living."

4. "Tell us, Mary, what sawest thou on the way? I saw the sepulcher of the living Christ, I saw the glory of Him that had risen."

5. "I saw the angelic witnesses, the napkin and the linen cloths. Christ, my hope, hath risen: He shall go before you into Galilee."

6. "We know in truth that Christ hath risen from the dead: Thou, O victorious King, have mercy on us." Victimæ Paschali: cf. Exodus 12-13. Duello = bello. Confluxerunt, fought, contended. Maria: Mary Magdalene, to whom Our Lord first appeared after His resurrection.

The following is Robert Campbell's translation of the Victimæ Paschali. Note the striking difference between this translation and Miss Leeson's translation above. The difference is due to the meter. The two translations illustrate the hurried pace of the trochee and the stately tread of the iambus.

Victimæ Paschali

THE holy Paschal work is wrought,
The Victim's praise be told,
The loving Shepherd back hath brought
The sheep into His fold:
The Just and Innocent was slain
To reconcile to God again.

Death from the Lord of life hath fled—
The conflict strange is o'er;
Behold, He liveth that was dead,
And lives forevermore:
Mary, thou soughtest Him that day;
Tell what thou sawest on the way.

“I saw the empty cavern's gloom,
The garments of the prison,
The Angel-guardians of the tomb,
The glory of the Risen.”
We know that Christ hath burst the grave,
Then, victor King, Thy people save.

Praise to our victorious King,
Who hath washed us in the tide
Flowing from His piercèd side.

Praise we Him whose love divine Gives the guests His Blood for

Gives His Body for the feast,
Love the victim, love the priest.

Israel's hosts triumphant go Through the wave that drowns the AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 7th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Robert Campbell. There are about thirty translations. First line of Original Text: Ad cœnam Agni providi. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn from Low Sunday to Ascension Day. This hymn was greatly altered by the revisers under Urban VIII (1632); only three lines remained unaltered. There are ten translations of this hymn in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, both texts being represented. Of the translations of the Roman Breviary Text, Mr. Campbell's is more extensively used than all others combined. It is not so literal as some other translations, but it is a hymn of great beauty, and it is not surprising that it is found in so many hymn books.

In the Ad regias Agni dapes, there is reference to the ancient custom of administering to catechumens the sacraments of Baptism and Holy Communion. Originally there was no Mass on Holy Saturday proper. The long but beautiful ceremonies began Saturday evening and lasted throughout the night. The Litany and Mass were sung towards morning. During Mass the neophytes, vested in beautiful white robes (stolæ albæ), were admitted for the first time to the "banquet of the Lamb," i.e., to the Eucharistic table. The white garments were worn during the week following Easter, and on Low Sunday the newly baptized appeared for the first time without their white robes. It is for this reason that Low Sunday is known in the language of the Church as Dominica in Albis (depositis), i.e., the Sunday on which the newly baptized appeared after laying aside their white baptismal robes.

Read the articles on Catechumen, Holy Saturday, Baptism (esp. part XV), Red Sea (esp. the last paragraph), in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "After the passage of the Red Sea, clothed in white robes at the royal banquet of the Lamb, let us sing to Christ our King." Stolis: The stole was originally a long, beautiful, flowing outer garment. Maris rubri: The Red Sea is a symbol of Baptism. Et omnes in Moyse baptizati sunt in nube et in mari (I Cor. 10, 2). Under the leadership of Moses, who was a figure of Christ, the Jews received Baptism in figure by their passage through the Red Sea. Thus also by eating of the manna, they partook in figure of the Eucharistic manna (cf. Exodus 13). The following is Father Husenbeth's translation of this stanza:

Come to the regal feast displayed,
In robes of purest white arrayed,
The Red Sea's threatening perils past,
And sing to Christ secure at last.

2. "His divine charity gives us His sacred Blood to drink; and love, as priest, immolates the members of His august Body."

3. "The destroying Angel sees with awe the blood upon the door-posts: the sea divided flees, the foe is overwhelmed by the waters." The sprinkling of the door-posts of the Israelites with the blood of the Paschal Lamb, to preserve them from the sword of the destroying Angel, is a figure of our redemption by the Blood of Him whom the Paschal

EASTERTIDE

Lamb prefigured (cf. Ex. 12, 22-23). Divisum mare: (cf. Ex. 14, 22-31).

4. "Now Christ is our Pasch, and the same is our Paschal victim, and the pure unleavened bread of sincerity for pure souls." Victima paschalis, Paschal Lamb. Itaque epulemur, non in fermento veteri, neque in fermento malitiæ et nequitiae, sed in azymis sinceritatis et veritatis (I Cor. 5, 8). Leaven is a symbol of corruption, hence of sin: unleavened bread is symbolical of purity and of freedom from corruption.

5. "O true Victim of heaven, by whom hell was vanquished, the bonds of death were broken, and the rewards of life regained." Cui = a quo: in the passive, this use of the dative is quite common.

6. "Hell having been subdued, Christ as victor displays His trophies; and, heaven opened, He drags behind Him the vanquished king of darkness." Trahit (post se).

7. "That Thou, O Jesus, mayest be an everlasting Paschal joy to our hearts, deliver us re-born to life, from a dire death of sin."

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 6th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION a cento. There are ten translations. LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn from Low Sunday till Ascension Day. This hymn is a revision of the Original Text, Rex æternæ Domine, the first line of which was, in the revision of 1568, altered to Rex sempiternæ Domine (Benedictine Breviary Text); this in turn was altered in 1632 to the Roman Breviary Text, Rex sempiternæ cœlitum. In its original form, it contained sixteen stanzas. It is mentioned in the Rule of Aurelianus of Arles (d. 555) and by St. Bede (d. 735) in his De Arte Metrica.

1. "O eternal King of the blessed, Creator of all things, Son ever equal to the Father, before all ages:" The hymn is addressed to the Son by whom all things were made (cf. John 1, 1-14; Col. 1,12-22). Cœlitum, from cœles, itis.

2. "Who as Creator, when the world was made, didst bestow upon Adam the image of Thy countenance, and didst yoke a noble spirit with the slime of the earth." Imago: Faciamus hominem ad imaginem et similitudinem nostram (Gen. 1, 26). Formavit igitur Dominus Deus hominem de limo terræ, et inspiravit in faciem ejus spiraculum vitæ, et factus est homo in animam viventem (Gen. 2, 7).

3. "When the envy and deception of the devil had disfigured the human race, Thou, the Maker, clothed in flesh didst restore the lost form." Formam, beauty. Livor = invidia, envy, malice.

4. "As Thou wast once born of a Virgin, so art Thou now born from the tomb; and Thou dost bid us buried with Thee, to arise from the dead." (cf. Rom. 6, 4.)

5. "Thou art the eternal Shepherd who dost cleanse Thy flock in the waters of Baptism: that is the laver of souls, that is the sepulcher of sin." The purification of the soul by washing is a common figure in the Old Testament. Amplius lava me ab iniquitate mea: et a peccato meo munda me (Ps. 50, 4).

6. "As Redeemer fastened to the Cross, which was long our due, Thou didst lavishly give Thy Blood as the price of our salvation." Debitæ agrees with cruci; on account of our sins, the Cross (i.e., crucifixion) was long and justly due us.

7. "That Thou, O Jesus, mayest be an everlasting Paschal joy to our hearts, deliver us re-born to life, from a dire death of sin."

To God the Father let us sing,
To God the Son, our risen King,
And equally let us adore
The Spirit, God forevermore.

EASTERTIDE

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 4th or 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Robert Campbell. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn at Lauds from Low Sunday to the Ascension. In its complete form this hymn comprises forty-four lines. For Breviary use it is divided into three parts. These parts are given here as Hymns 62, 63 and 64. In each hymn the stanza beginning Tu sis perennis mentium and the doxology form no part of the original hymn. The hymn was greatly altered by the revisers under Urban VIII (1632). The first lines of the three parts of the Original Text and of the Roman Breviary Text are as follows:

Roman Breviary Text	Original Text
62 Aurora cælum purpurat	Aurora lucis rutilat
63 Tristes erant Apostoli	Tristes erant Apostoli
64 Paschale mundo gaudium	Claro Paschali gaudio

Including both texts, there are twenty-seven translations of No. 62; there are about fifteen translations each of the Nos. 63 and 64. The Annus Sanctus contains four translations, one of which is from the Original Text. It also contains two translations of Sermone blando angelus, which begins with the sixth stanza of the Original Text. There is an article on Aurora lucis rutilat in the Cath. Encycl. It is worthy of note that this is the only instance in the Cath. Encycl. in which the first line of the Original Text is used as a title instead of the first line of the Revised Text of Urban VIII—the Roman Breviary Text. LITURGICAL USE: No. 62 is the hymn for Lauds from Low Sunday to the Ascension. No. 63 is assigned to Vespers and Matins, and No. 64 to Lauds, in the Common Office of Apostles and Evangelists during Paschal Time.

1. "The dawn is purpling the sky; the air resounds with hymns of praise; the exulting earth shouts for joy; trembling hell rages."

2. "While He the almighty King leads forth the liberated host of the fathers from the darksome cavern of death to the light of life." Inferno specu = Limbo. There is an article on Limbo in the Cath. Encycl. Senatus, a council of elders; a body of venerable and distinguished persons such as the patriarchs, prophets, etc., who awaited in Limbo the coming of the Messias.

3. "Whose sepulcher, surrounded by an ample guard, a stone seals; (nevertheless) as a conqueror He triumphs, and He buries death in His own sepulcher." Illi autem abeuntes munierunt sepulchrum, signantes lapidem cum custodibus (Matt. 27, 66). Absorpta est mors in victoria. Ubi est, mors, victoria tua? Ubi est, mors, stimulus tuus? (I Cor. 15, 54-55).

4. "Enough of death, enough of tears, enough of sorrows! The conqueror of death has risen, the resplendent Angel cries." Sat = satis: Enough time have ye given to death, to weeping and to sorrows. Exstinctor, destroyer, annihilator.

5. "That Thou, O Jesus, mayest be the everlasting Paschal joy of our hearts, deliver us re-born to life, from a dire death of sin."

Hymn for Lauds in the Common Office of Apostles and Evangelists in Eastertide.

1. "A more beauteous sun proclaims to the world the joys of Easter, when the Apostles behold Jesus resplendent with a new light." The "new light" is that which emanates from His glorified body. The sun is now "more beauteous" for at His death it was darkened.

2. "They wonder to see the wounds in the flesh of Christ shine like stars, and what they see, as faithful witnesses, they proclaim." Vulnera: That the marks of the nails and spear were plainly visible in the glorified body of Christ is evident from the testimony of St. Thomas (cf. John 20, 27-28).

3. "O Christ, King most merciful, possess Thou our hearts, that our tongues may return due thanks to Thy Name."

2. "By what mercy wert Thou overcome that Thou wouldst bear our sins, and innocent, wouldst suffer death to free us from death?" Ipse autem vulneratus est propter iniquitates nostras, attritus est propter scelera nostra (Is. 53, 5).

3. "Thou didst break open the lower regions, and remove the chains of them that were bound; as a conqueror in a noble triumph, Thou dost now sit at the right hand of the Father." Infernum chaos, Limbo; "He descended into hell" (Creed). Ad dexteram Patris sedes: Dixit Dominus Domino meo: sede a dextris meis (Ps. 109, 1; Matt. 22, 44); Dominus = Pater; Domino = Filio; sede, abide, be. The expression "sit Thou at my right hand" signifies the place of highest honor, but it implies no particular posture of body.

4. "May Thy mercy constrain Thee to repair our loss, and in the contemplation of Thy countenance, mayest Thou gladden us with blessed light." Vultus compotes, participating in the beatific vision. See the article on Beatific Vision, and Part III of the article on Heaven, in the Cath. Encycl.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

⁴ Tremunt videntes Angeli
Versam vicem mortalium:
Peccat caro, mundat caro,
Regnat Deus Dei caro.

Yea, Angels tremble when they see
How changed is our humanity;
That Flesh hath purged what flesh had stained,
And God, the flesh of God, hath reigned.

⁵ Sis ipse nostrum gaudium,
Manens olympto præmium,
Mundi regis qui fabricam,
Mundana vincens gaudia.

Be Thou our joy, O mighty Lord,
As Thou wilt be our great reward;
Earth's joys to Thee are nothing worth,
Thou joy and crown of heaven and earth.

⁶ Hinc te precantes quæsumus,
Ignosce culpis omnibus,
Et corda sursum subleva
Ad te superna gratia.

To Thee we therefore humbly pray
That Thou wouldst purge our sins
away,
And draw our hearts by cords of grace
To Thy celestial dwelling-place.

⁷ Ut cum repente cœperis
Clarere nube iudicis,
Pœnas repellas debitas,
Reddas coronas perditas.

So when the Judgment day shall come,
And all must rise to meet their doom,
Thou wilt remit the debts we owe,
And our lost crowns again bestow.

⁸ Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
Qui victor in cœlum redis,
Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu,
In sempiterna sæcula.

All glory, Lord, to Thee we pay,
Ascending o'er the stars to-day;
All glory, as is ever meet,
To Father and to Paraclete.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 5th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale and others. There are fifteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins from Ascension to Pentecost.

1. "O eternal and sovereign King, and Redeemer of the faithful, to whom the annihilation of death brought a triumph of the greatest glory:"

2. "Thou didst ascend above the orbits of the stars, whither the sovereignty over all things summoned Thee, which sovereignty was given Thee from heaven, not by men." Cœlitus, adv. from above, by the Father. Data est mihi omnis potestas in cœlo et in terra (Matt. 28, 18).

3. "So that the threefold fabric of the universe, creatures (condita) of heaven, of earth, and of hell, may now in submission bend the knee to Thee." Condita = creata. Machina, order, structure, fabric, kingdom. Ut in nomine Jesu omne genu flectatur cœlestium, terrestrium, et infernorum (Phil. 2, 10).

4. "The Angels tremble, beholding the altered lot of mortals: flesh sinned, Flesh cleanses from sin, the God-Man reigns as God." Dei caro: lit., "the flesh of God reigns as God." Vicem, lot, estate, condition; versam, changed, reversed.

5. "Be Thou Thyself our joy, our abiding reward in heaven, Thou who, surpassing all earthly joys, dost rule over the fabric of the universe."

6. "Therefore, praying we beseech Thee, pardon all our sins, and by Thy heavenly grace raise aloft our hearts to Thee."

7. "That when Thou dost unexpectedly begin to shine in splendor on a cloud as judge, Thou mayest remit the punishments due, and restore our lost crowns." Et tunc videbunt Filium hominis venientem in nube cum potestate magna, et majestate (Luke 21, 27).

WHITSUNTIDE

Veni, Sancte Spiritus

VENI, Sancte Spiritus,
Et emitte cœlitus
Lucis tuæ radium.
Veni pater pauperum,
Veni dator munerum,
Veni lumen cordium.

HOLY SPIRIT, come and shine
On our souls with beams
divine,
Issuing from Thy radiance bright.
Come, O Father of the poor,
Ever bounteous of Thy store,
Come, our hearts' unfailing light.

² Consolator optime,
Dulcis hospes animæ,
Dulce refrigerium.

Come, Consoler, kindest, best,
Come, our bosom's dearest guest,
Sweet refreshment, sweet repose.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

In labore requies,
In æstu temperies,
In fletu solatium.

Rest in labor, coolness sweet,
Tempering the burning heat,
Truest comfort of our woes.

³ O lux beatissima,
Reple cordis intima
Tuorum fidelium.
Sine tuo numine,
Nihil est in homine,
Nihil est innoxium.

O divinest light, impart
Unto every faithful heart Plenteous streams from love's bright flood.
But for Thy blest Deity,
Nothing pure in man could be;
Nothing harmless, nothing good.

⁴ Lava quod est sordidum,
Riga quod est aridum,
Sana quod est saucium.
Flecte quod est rigidum,
Fove quod est frigidum,
Rege quod est devium.

Wash away each sinful stain;
Gently shed Thy gracious rain
On the dry and fruitless soul.
Heal each wound and bend each will,
Warm our hearts benumbed and chill,
All our wayward steps control.

⁵ Da tuis fidelibus,
In te confidentibus,
Sacrum septenarium.
Da virtutis meritum,
Da salutis exitum,
Da perenne gaudium.

Unto all Thy faithful just,
Who in Thee confide and trust,
Deign the sevenfold gift to send.
Grant us virtue's blest increase,
Grant a death of hope and peace,
Grant the joys that never end.

AUTHOR: Probably by Pope Innocent III (1161-1216).
METER: Trochaic dimeter catalectic. TRANSLATION by Father Aylward, O.P. There are about forty translations; of these Father Caswall's is the most widely used. There are six translations in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Sequence for Whitsunday and throughout the octave. In medieval times the Veni Sancte Spiritus was known as "The Golden Sequence." In the opinion of critics it is justly regarded as one of the greatest masterpieces of sacred Latin poetry. Trench considers it the loveliest of all the hymns in the whole circle of sacred Latin poetry, and adds that it could only have been composed by one who had been acquainted with many sorrows, and also with many consolations (Sacred Latin Poetry, p. 195). "The Sequence for Whitsunday," says Dr. Gehr, "can have come but from a heart wholly inflamed with the fire of the Holy Ghost. It is an incomparable hymn, breathing of the sweetness of Paradise, and regaling us with heaven's sweetest fragrance. Only the soul buried in deep recollection can suspect and taste the wealth of deep thought and affections this Pentecost hymn contains, and that, too, in a form remarkable as much for beauty as for brevity" (The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, p. 464). There is an article on the Veni Sancte Spiritus, in the Cath. Encycl.

In studying this hymn the richness of the rhyme is deserving of special note. In each of the six-line stanzas, lines 1 and 2, 3 and 6, 4 and 5 rhyme; and every third line throughout the hymn ends in ium.

The introductory and thrice repeated Veni in the first stanza is expressive of the intense longing of a world-buffed, sin-harried soul for the advent of the "best consoler." The similar repetition of the verb Da in the closing stanza is equally expressive of earnestness and of loving confidence in the "giver of gifts."

1. "Come Holy Spirit, and send forth from heaven the ray of Thy light. Come, Father of the poor; come, giver of gifts; come, light of hearts." Pater pauperum, i.e., the poor in spirit (Matt. 5, 3) who may either be destitute of the goods of this world, or detached from them, "as having nothing, and possessing all things" (II Cor. 6, 10). Dator munerum: The Holy Spirit is the dispenser of the countless gifts or graces which Christ merited for us.

2. "Thou best consoler, sweet guest of the soul, sweet coolness: in labor, rest; in heat, refreshment; in tears, solace." Consolator, the Latin rendering of the Greek Paracletus, consoler, comforter.

3. "O most blessed Light, fill Thou the inmost recesses of the hearts of Thy faithful! Without Thy divine assistance there is nothing in man, nothing harmless."

4. "Cleanse what is base, bedew what is parched, heal what is wounded; bend what is rigid, warm what is chilled, guide what is astray." Lava, wash—by Baptism and Penance; riga, bedew with Thy grace; sana, heal what is wounded by sin; flecte, bend what is fixed—the stubborn will; fove, warm what is cold—our hearts; rege, guide sinners.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

5. "Give to Thy faithful confiding in Thee Thy sevenfold gifts. Give them the reward of virtue; give them the death of safety (a happy death); give them eternal joy." Sacrum septenarium, the sacred sevenfold gifts, viz., wisdom, understanding, counsel, fortitude, knowledge, piety, and the fear of the Lord (cf. Is. 11, 2-3).

Veni Creator Spiritus

VENI Creator Spiritus,
Mentes tuorum visita,
Imple superna gratia,
Quæ tu creasti pectora.

CREATOR-SPIRIT, all-Divine,
Come, visit every soul of Thine,
And fill with Thy celestial flame
The hearts which Thou Thyself didst frame.

² Qui diceris Paraclitus, Altissimi donum Dei,
Fons vivus, ignis, caritas,
Et spiritalis unctio.

O gift of God, Thine is the sweet
Consoling name of Paraclete—
And spring of life and fire and love
And unction flowing from above.

³ Tu septiformis munere,
Digitus paternæ dexteræ,
Tu rite promissum Patris,
Sermone ditans guttura.

The mystic sevenfold gifts are Thine,
Finger of God's right hand
divine;
The Father's promise sent to teach
The tongue a rich and heavenly speech.

⁴ Accende lumen sensibus:
Infunde amorem cordibus:
Infirma nostri corporis
Virtute firmans perpeti.

Kindle with fire brought from above
Each sense, and fill our hearts with
love;
And grant our flesh, so weak and frail,
The strength of Thine which cannot fail.

⁵ Hostem repellas longius,
Pacemque dones protinus:
Ductore sic te prævio,
Vitemus omne noxium.

Drive far away our deadly foe,
And grant us Thy true peace to know;
So we, led by Thy guidance still,
May safely pass through every ill.

Teque utriusque Spiritum
Credamus omni tempore.

To us, through Thee, the grace be shown
To know the Father and the Son;
And Spirit of Them both, may we Forever rest our faith in Thee.

⁷ Deo Patri sit gloria,
Et Filio, qui a mortuis
Surrexit, ac Paraclito,
In sæculorum sæcula.

To Sire and Son be praises meet,
And to the Holy Paraclete;
And may Christ send us from above
That Holy Spirit's gift of love.

AUTHOR: Probably by Rabanus Maurus (776-856).
METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Aylward, O.P. There are about sixty translations, eight of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Terce on Whitsunday and throughout the octave. Terce (the 3d hour, 9:00 A. M.) was the hour on which the Holy Ghost descended upon the Apostles (Acts 2, 15). The hymn is used on many other solemn occasions in liturgical and extra-liturgical functions as an invocation to the Holy Spirit. With the exception of the Te Deum, there is probably no other hymn so extensively used in the Church as the Veni Creator Spiritus.

The authorship has been variously ascribed to Rabanus Maurus, Charlemagne, St. Ambrose, and to St. Gregory the Great. Read the articles on the Veni Creator Spiritus, Paraclete, and on Holy Ghost, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Come, Creator Spirit, visit the souls of Thy children, and fill with heavenly grace the hearts which Thou hast made." Creator: The three Divine Persons concur equally in their external operation; thus the Father created, the Son created, and the Holy Ghost created.

2. "Thou who art called the Paraclete, the gift of God most high, the living fountain, fire, love, and spiritual unction." Paracletus: the Paraclete, the Holy Spirit; a Greek word signifying—the consoler, comforter. In the Scriptures the word occurs only in St. John 14, 16; 14, 26; 15, 26; 16, 7. Donum: The Holy Spirit is called the "gift of God most high." To receive the gift of the Holy Ghost (Acts 2, 38) is equivalent to receiving the Holy Ghost with

His gifts. Fons vivus: Sed aqua, quam ego dabo ei, fiet in eo fons aquæ salientis in vitam æternam (John 4, 14). Ignis: Earthly fire illuminates, enkindles, consumes, and purifies from dross; so too, in its nature, is the fire of the Holy Spirit—enlightening, love-enkindling, sin-destroying, and purifying. This fire manifests itself in works of charity, and especially in preaching with zeal and fervor the word of God. Caritas: Deus caritas est, et qui manet in caritate, in Deo manet, et Deus in eo (I John 4, 16). Spiritualis = Spiritualis; The grace of God is called unction or anointing because the effects produced by it in the spiritual order are analogous to those produced by ointment in the natural order. It cools, refreshes, exhilarates, strengthens, heals, enriches, etc.

3. "Thou art sevenfold in Thy gifts, the finger of the Father's right hand; Thou art the express promise of the Father, endowing tongues with speech." Septiformis: The seven gifts of the Holy Ghost are enumerated by the Prophet Isaias: Et requiescet super eum spiritus Domini; spiritus sapientiæ et intellectus, spiritus consilii et fortitudinis, spiritus scientiæ et pietatis, et replebit eum spiritus timoris Domini (Is. 11, 2-3). Digitus Dei: The Holy Spirit is called the "finger of God" as may be seen from the following parallel passages: Si in digito Dei ejicio dæmonia (Luke 11, 20). Si autem ego in Spiritu Dei ejicio dæmones (Matt. 12, 28). Rite, explicit, distinctly stated. Promissum, i = promissio. Et ego mitto promissum Patris mei in vos (Luke 24, 49). Sed expectarent promissionem Patris (Acts 1, 4). Sermone: A reference to the gift of tongues (Acts 2, 4).

4. "Enkindle Thy light within our minds, infuse Thy love into our hearts; strengthen the weakness of our flesh by Thy never-failing power."

5. "Drive far away our enemy, and forthwith grant us peace; so that while Thou leadest the way as our guide, we may avoid everything harmful."

6. "Grant that through Thee we may know the Father; through Thee, the Son; and may we ever believe in Thee, the Spirit of Them both."

- NOW Christ, ascending whence
 He came,
 Had mounted o'er the starry frame,
 The Holy Ghost on man below,
 The Father's promise, to bestow.
- The solemn time was drawing
 nigh,
 Replete with heav'nly mystery,
 On seven days' sevenfold circles borne,
 That first and blessèd Whitsun-
 morn.
- When the third hour shone all around,
 There came a rushing mighty sound,
 And told the Apostles, while in prayer,
 That, as was promised, God was there.
- Forth from the Father's light it came,
 That beautiful and kindly flame:
 To fill with fervor of His word
 The spirits faithful to their Lord.
- With joy the Apostles' breasts are fired,
 By God the Holy Ghost inspired:
 And straight, in divers kinds of
 speech,
 The wondrous works of God they preach.
- To men of every race they speak,
 Alike Barbarian, Roman, Greek:
 From the same lips, with awe and fear,
 All men their native accents hear.

7 *Judæa tunc incredula,
Vesana torvo spiritu,
Madere musto sobrios

But Juda's sons, e'en faithless yet,
With mad infuriate rage beset,
To mock Christ's followers combine,
As drunken all with new-made

Confounding their malignant lie
By Joel's ancient prophecy.

9 *Deo Patri sit gloria,

In sæculorum sæcula.*

To God the Father let us sing,
To God the Son, our risen King,
And equally let us adore
The Spirit, God forevermore.

AUTHOR: Ambrosian, 4th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION: First four stanzas by J. M. Neale; remainder by G. H. Palmer and J. W. Doran. There are about fifteen translations, three of which are in the Annus Sanc-
tus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on Whitsunday and throughout the octave. The hymn is a metrical setting of Acts 2, 1-16.

1. "Christ had already ascended on high, returning whence He came, that He might send the Holy Spirit, who was to be received as the gift of the Father." Fruendum:
fut. part. of fruor, signifying one who or that which is to be enjoyed; here rather in the sense of "to be imparted." Munere, by the liberality, generosity, etc. The Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and the Son, and was sent by the Father and the Son.

2. "The solemn day drew nigh, on which the earth, having revolved seven times in the mystical sevenfold, announces the blessed time." Dies, Pentecost. Septemplici = hebdomas, a period of seven days. It is styled mystical because of the well known mysterious significance of the number seven. The meaning of the stanza is that seven times seven revolutions of the earth take place between Easter and Pentecost. The Pentecost of the Jews was celebrated on the fiftieth day after the Passover or Jewish

WHITSUNTIDE

Easter. The Easter and Pentecost of the Jews were figures of the Christian festivals. The Pentecost of the Old Law was the festival on which was celebrated the "ingathering" of, and also the thanksgiving for the harvest (cf. Ex. 34, 22; Deut. 16, 9-10). See also the article on Whitsunday, in the Cath. Encycl.

Behold the appointed morn appear
In solemn mystery sublime!
Seven times sevenfold this earthly sphere
Revolving, marked the blessed time.

—J. D. Chambers.

3. "When at the third hour of day the whole world suddenly resounds, and announces to the praying Apostles that God is come." Deum = Spiritum Sanctum.

4. "Of the Father's light, therefore, is that beauteous, kindly flame, which fills with the fervor of the Word the hearts of those believing in Christ." Fidus is generally followed by the dative, but in poetry also by the genitive. Or, fida pectora, Christ's faithful souls. Calore verbi: This may be interpreted as in Neale's version, viz. "To fill with fervor of His word." It would then refer to the gift of fervid eloquence with which the Apostles were endowed. Or Verbum might preferably be rendered: the Word, the eternal Son of God. Note the following:

To warm each faithful breast below
With Christ, the Lord's all-quickening glow.

—Father Aylward.

5. "Filled therewith (sc. calore verbi), their hearts, inspired by the Holy Ghost, rejoice, and speaking divers tongues, they proclaim the wondrous works of God."

6. "At one and the same time, they (each one) spoke to the astonished people in the tongues of all, and they were understood by all, Greeks, Romans, and Barbarians." Noti (sunt). Cunctis, etc., are in the dative with the passive, not the ablative. Read the article on Tongues, Gift of, in the Cath. Encycl.

7. "Then faithless Judea, rendered insane by its savage spirit, accuses the sober, faithful followers of Christ of being drunk with new wine." Judæa, i.e., the Jews.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

8. "But by the miracles wrought, Peter opposes them, and shows that the perfidious Jews speak falsely, proving it by the testimony of Joel" (cf. Joel 2, 28).

⁶ Dudum sacrata pectora
Tua replesti gratia:
Dimitte nostra crimina,
Et da quieta tempora.

ROUND roll the weeks our hearts to greet,
With blissful joy returning;
For lo! the Holy Paraclete
On twelve bright brows sits burning:

With quivering flame He lights on each,
In fashion like a tongue, to teach
That eloquent they are of speech,
Their hearts with true love yearn-
ing.

While with all tongues they speak to all,
The nations deem them maddened,
And drunk with wine the Prophets
call,
Whom God's good Spirit glad-dened;

A marvel this—in mystery done—
The holy Paschaltide outrun,
By numbers told, whose reckoning won
Remission for the saddened.

O God most Holy, Thee we pray,
With reverent brow low bending,
Grant us the Spirit's gifts to-day—
The gifts from heaven descending;

And, since, Thy grace hath deigned to bide
Within our breasts once sanctified,
Deign, Lord, to cast our sins aside,
Henceforth calm seasons sending.

WHITSUNTIDE

7 Deo Patri sit gloria,

To God the Father, laud and praise,
Praise to the Son be given;
Praise to the Spirit of all grace,
The fount of graces seven—

As was of old, all worlds before,
Is now and shall be evermore,
When time and change are spent and o'er—
All praise in earth and heaven.

AUTHOR: Ascribed to St. Hilary, Bishop of Poitiers (d. 368), but on insufficient evidence. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by W. J. Blew. There are about twenty translations. The Annus Sanctus contains three translations, and a fragment of a fourth. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on Whitsunday and throughout the octave.

1. "The circle of the year has again brought back to us blessed joys, when the Spirit, the Comforter, came down upon the Apostles."

2. "The fire with tremulous flame assumed the shape of a tongue, that they might be eloquent in speech and fervent in charity." Et apparuerunt illis dispertitæ linguæ tamquam ignis, seditque supra singulos eorum (Acts 2, 3).

3. "Speaking in the tongues of all, the multitudes of the Gentiles are amazed: they deemed as drunk with new wine, those whom the Holy Ghost had filled."

4. "These things were wrought mystically, when the Paschal time was completed, in the sacred circle of days in which by law remission occurred." Circulo = numero, as in the Original Text. Remissio: The allusion is to the annus remissionis (Ezech. 46, 17), or Year of Jubilee, which in the Old Law occurred every fifty years (cf. Lev. 25). During the Year of Jubilee, debts were remitted, slaves liberated, etc. Read the article on Jubilee, in the Cath. Encycl. Read also the article on Sabbatical Year, as both are referred to in Lev. 25.

5. "With bowed heads, we now beseech Thee, O most loving God, to bestow upon us the gifts of the Holy Ghost, which were sent down from heaven." Largire, imper. of largior.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

6. "Formerly Thou didst fill with Thy grace sacred breasts; pardon now our sins and grant us peaceful days." The first two lines of this stanza may refer either to our own breasts sanctified in Baptism, or to the breasts of the Apostles which were sanctified in so wondrous a manner on the day of Pentecost. Note the elaborate English doxology.

E'en death itself; and all for one
Who was Thine enemy.

Then why, O blessèd Jesus Christ,
Should I not love Thee well,
Not for the sake of winning heaven,
Or of escaping hell;

Not with the hope of gaining aught,
Not seeking a reward;
But as Thyself hast lovèd me,
O ever-loving Lord?

E'en so I love Thee, and will love,
And in Thy praise will sing,
Solely because Thou art my God,
And my eternal King.

AUTHOR: St. Francis Xavier (1506-1552). "It seems fairly certain that the original was a Spanish or Portuguese sonnet, and was written by St. Francis Xavier in the East Indies about 1546" (Dict. of Hymnology, p. 1679). There are several Latin versions; the author of the above version is not known. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are about twenty-five translations.

CORPUS CHRISTI

Although this hymn is not found in the Breviary or Missal it is deservedly very popular. There is an article on O Deus ego amo te in the Cath. Encycl. The article treats of two Latin hymns beginning with the same first line; both hymns are attributed to St. Francis Xavier. Of these hymns Dr. Duffield says: "They are transfused and shot through by a personal sense of absorption into the divine love, which has fused and crystallized them in its fiercest heat." And to their author, he pays this beautiful tribute: "It is impossible to study his life without a conviction there was in it a devout and gallant purpose to bless the world And in the two hymns which bear his name we are able to discover that fine attar which is the precious residuum of many crushed and fragrant aspirations, which grew above the thorns of sharp trial and were strewn at last upon the wind-swept beach of that poor Pisgah island from which he truly beheld the distant Land" (Latin Hymn-Writers and Their Hymns, pp. 298-315). The hymn offers no difficulty to the translator.

CORPUS CHRISTI

PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS

The next five hymns are the great Eucharistic hymns of St. Thomas Aquinas (1227-1274). They were written at the request of Pope Urban IV, on the occasion of the institution of the Feast of Corpus Christi in 1264. The hymns of the Angelic Doctor are remarkable for their smoothness and clearness, and for their logical conciseness and dogmatic precision. They are pervaded throughout by a spirit of the profoundest piety so characteristic of the Angel of the Schools. It is fitting that a great Doctor of the Church and a great Saint should have confined his hymn-writing to a single subject, and that, the sweetest and profoundest of all subjects, the Most Holy Sacrament of the Altar.

The hymns taken collectively contain an admirable summary of the Catholic doctrine of the Holy Eucharist. "The Lauda Sion," says Archbishop Bagshawe, is in itself "a condensed compendium of exact theology" (Breviary Hymns and Missal Sequences, Preface). Several of the clear-cut, doctrinal statements that are found in the Lauda Sion occur again and again in the other hymns. To obviate repetitions in the Notes, and to afford additional aids to the proper understanding of the hymns, the following doctrinal statements from authoritative sources may be found useful:

PROPER OF THE SEASON

1. "It has always been believed in the Church of God that immediately after the consecration, the true Body of Our Lord and His true Blood exist under the species of bread and wine, together with His Soul and Divinity: the Body under the species of bread, and the Blood under the species of wine, by force of the words; but the Body under the species of wine, and the Blood under the species of bread, and the Soul under both by force of the natural connection and concomitance by which the parts of the Lord Christ, who rose from the dead to die no more, are linked together: and the Divinity by reason of Its admirable Hypostatic Union with the Body and Soul. Wherefore it is most true that there is as much contained under either species as under both, for Christ exists whole and entire under the species of bread, and under every part of the species, whole too and entire under the species of wine and under its parts" (Council of Trent, Sess. 13, Ch. 3. Quoted from the Outlines of Dogmatic Theology, by Father Hunter, S.J. Vol. 3, p. 258).

2. The following is from the Profession of Faith of Pope Pius IV, which was drawn up shortly after the conclusion of the Council of Trent: "I profess . . . that in the most Holy Sacrament of the Eucharist, there is truly, really, and substantially, the Body and Blood, together with the Soul and Divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ, and that there is made a conversion of the whole substance of the bread into the Body, and of the whole substance of the wine into the Blood; which conversion the Catholic Church calls Transubstantiation. I also confess, that under either kind alone, Christ is received whole and entire, and a true Sacrament" (From Father Devine's The Creed Explained, p. 55).

3. "Since the species of bread and wine are not the proper, but only the assumed species of the Body and Blood of Christ, what is done to the species cannot therefore be said to be done to the Body and Blood of Christ itself. If, for instance, the former are divided or broken, the Body of Christ is not thereby divided or broken. But as the Body of Christ exists permanently under the species, and is really present wherever the species are, it is actually borne from place to place, as are the species. We may rightly say, however, that the Sacrament is broken (fracto demum sacramento); for the species are an essential part of the Sacrament" (Father Wilmer's Handbook of the Christian Religion, p. 334).

4. "Every day the Eucharistic mysteries place Our Lord in a state analogous to that which He took upon Himself in the Incarnation. The Eucharistic species subsist independently of their proper substance, as the human nature of the Word Incarnate subsisted independently of His natural personality. . . . Not without reason does the Church, in her offices and Eucharistic hymns, constantly bring these two mysteries together, the Incarnation and Transubstantiation" (From The Eucharistic Life of Christ, in Father Matthew Russell's Jesus Is Waiting, p. 87). The following paragraph expresses briefly and authoritatively the teaching of the Church concerning the Incarnation and the Person of Christ.

5. "But it is also necessary for eternal salvation, that he also believe faithfully the Incarnation of our Lord Jesus Christ. Now the right faith is, that we believe and confess, that our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, is both God and man. He is God of the substance of His Father, begotten before the world; and He is man of the substance of His Mother, born in the world. Perfect God and perfect man; of rational soul and human flesh subsisting. Equal to the Father according to His Divinity; less than the Father according to His humanity. Who, although He is both God and man, yet He is not two, but one Christ. One, not by the conversion of the Godhead into flesh, but by the assuming of human nature unto God. One altogether, not by confusion of substance, but by unity of person. For as the rational soul and the body constitutes one man, so God and man is one Christ” (From the Creed of St. Athanasius). Such was the Christ who was born for us at Bethlehem; the Good Shepherd who sought out the lost sheep of the house of Israel; the great High Priest who gave Himself to His disciples with His own hands at the Last Supper; and who as Priest and Victim offered Himself on Calvary, and daily offers Himself on countless altars from the rising till the setting of the sun.

6. “Christ is entirely present under each species and under each particle of either species. Christ is entirely present—with His flesh and blood, His body and soul, His manhood and Godhead under each species. Christ gave His disciples the same body that He possessed, and on our altars bread is changed into the same body which is now glorified in heaven; for the words: This is My body, would not be true, unless the bread were changed into the living body of Christ as it now exists. So, too, the wine is changed into the blood of the living Christ. But where the body of the living Christ is there is also His blood, and His soul, and divinity; and where His blood is there is also His body, soul, and divinity—the entire Christ.” “Christ is wholly present in each particle of either species so that he who receives one particle of the host receives the whole Christ” (Wilmer’s Handbook, p. 334).

7. The parallel passages in the Scriptures referring directly to the Institution of the Holy Eucharist are the following: St. Matt. 26, 26-28; St. Mark 14, 22-24; St. Luke 22, 19-20; St. Paul I Cor. 11, 23-25. The following is from St. Luke: “And taking bread, he gave thanks, and broke, and gave to them, saying: This is my body which is given for you. Do this for a commemoration of me. In like manner the chalice also, after he had supped, saying: This is the chalice, the new testament in my blood, which shall be shed for you.” See also the words of promise (St. John 6, 48-59) which were uttered by Our Lord about one year before the institution of the Holy Eucharist.

8. Types: By types, in the Scriptures, are meant such persons and things in the Old Law as prefigured persons and things in the New. The Old Law itself and the various sacrifices it prescribed were but the types or shadows, not the reality, of future good things promised (cf. Heb. 10, 1-19). The principal types mentioned in the hymns are:

(a) The Paschal Lamb (Exod. 12). The Paschal Lamb is the most expressive type or figure of Christ mentioned in the Old Testament. It was slain the day before the Passover; it was to be without blemish; it was to be offered to God and then eaten; not a bone of it was to be broken; its blood sprinkled on the door-posts of the Israelites preserved them from temporal death, as Christ's Blood shed on the Cross preserves us from eternal death. It might also be noted that a lamb is remarkable for its gentleness; it submits to unmerited suffering without complaint (Is. 53, 7; Acts 8, 32); in the Old Law it was slain for sins not its own; Christ is the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world (cf. John 1, 29-36); He is the Lamb which was slain from the beginning of the world (Apoc. 13, 8), i.e., in the foreknowledge of God.

(b) Manna: (Exod. 16). Manna was the miraculous bread of the Israelites during their forty years' sojourn in the desert; it came down from heaven every morning, and it was consumed in the morning; it was small and white; and such was its nature that "neither had he more that had gathered more, nor did he find less that had provided less" (Exod. 16, 18).

(c) Isaac (Gen. 22). Isaac was a type of Christ in that he was the well beloved and only-begotten son of his father Abraham; He carried on his shoulders the wood on which he was to be sacrificed; he was an obedient and willing victim; his life, as recorded in Gen. 15-35, pictures him as pre-eminently a man of peace, whose willing sacrifice on Mount Moria was typical of the greater Sacrifice on Mount Calvary.

(d) Azymes (Exod. 12-13). The azyme-bread was unleavened bread prescribed by the Mosaic Law for the Feast of the Passover. There was also a Feast of the Azymes (of the Unleavened Bread) which continued for seven days. The Azymes and Passover were practically one and the same feast. Unleavened bread is a type of sincerity, truth, moral integrity, exemption from the corrupting leaven of sin, etc. (cf. I Cor. 5, 8).

9. In the Cath. Encycl., read the following articles: Corpus Christi; Eucharist; Pasch; Supper, Last; Azymes; Lamb, Paschal; Manna; Isaac; Types in Scripture; and the beginning of each of the two articles on Host.

The same work contains seven articles on the hymns of St. Thomas. These articles, listed under the following titles, are from the pen of the eminent hymnologist, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor H. T. Henry, Litt.D.: Lauda Sion, Adoro Te Devote, Sacris Solemniis, Pange Lingua, Tantum Ergo, Verbum Supernum, and O Salutaris. Monsignor Henry's Eucharistica contains translations of all these hymns and devotes to them more than thirty pages of comment.

PRAISE, O Sion, praise thy Saviour,
Shepherd, Prince, with glad behavior,
Praise in hymn and canticle:
Sing His glory without measure,
For the merit of your Treasure
Never shall your praises fill.

Wondrous theme of mortal singing,
Living Bread and Bread life-bringing,
Sing we on this joyful day:
At the Lord's own table given
To the twelve as Bread from Heaven,
Doubting not we firmly say.

Sing His praise with voice
sonorous;
Every heart shall hear the chorus
Swell in melody sublime:
For this day the Shepherd gave us
Flesh and Blood to feed and save us,
Lasting to the end of time.

Non confractus, non divisus:
Integer accipitur.
Sumit unus, sumunt mille:
Quantum isti, tantum ille:

- At the new King's sacred table,
The new Law's new Pasch is able
To succeed the ancient Rite:
Old to new its place hath given,
Truth has far the shadows driven,
Darkness flees before the Light.
- And as He hath done and planned it—
"Do this"—hear His love command it,
"For a memory of me."
Learnèd, Lord, in Thy own

Bread and wine, in sweet compliance,
As a Host we offer Thee.
- Thus in faith the Christian heareth:
That Christ's Flesh as bread ap-peareth,
And as wine His Precious
Blood:
Though we feel it not nor see it,
Living Faith that doth decree it
All defects of sense makes good.
- Lo! beneath the species dual (Signs not things), is hid a jewel
Far beyond creation's reach!
Though His Flesh as food
abideth,
And His Blood as drink—He hideth
Undivided under each.
- Whoso eateth It can never Break the Body, rend or sever;
Christ entire our hearts doth fill:
Thousands eat the Bread of Heaven,
Yet as much to one is given:
Christ, though eaten, bideth still.

Good and bad, they come to greet
Him:
Unto life the former eat Him,
And the latter unto death;
These find death and those find
heaven;
See, from the same life-seed given,
How the harvest differeth!

In each part the same love-token,
The same Christ, our hearts

For no power the Thing divideth—
'Tis the symbols He provideth,
While the Saviour still abideth
Undiminished as before.

Hail, angelic Bread of Heaven,
Now the pilgrim's hoping-leaven,
Yea, the Bread to children given That to dogs must not be thrown:
In the figures contemplated,
'Twas with Isaac immolated,
By the Lamb 'twas antedated,
In the Manna it was known.

¹² Bone Pastor, panis vere,

O Good Shepherd, still confessing
Love, in spite of our transgress-

CORPUS CHRISTI

Trochaic dimeter, in great part. TRANSLATION by Monsignor Henry. There are about twenty translations, two of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Sequence for the Feast of Corpus Christi, and throughout the octave.

1. "Praise, O Sion, thy Saviour, praise thy Leader and thy Shepherd in hymns and canticles. As much as thou canst, so much darest thou, for He is above all praise, nor art thou able to praise Him enough." Sion: the faithful, the Church, see Glossary. Major: Benedicentes Dominum, exaltate illum quantum potestis: major enim est omni laude (cf. Ecclus. 43, 32-34).

2. "To-day there is given us a special theme of praise, the Bread both living and life-giving, which, it is not to be doubted, was given to the assembly of the brethren, twelve in number, at the table of the holy Supper." Quem . . . datum esse. For duodenæ see denus in the Glossary.

3. "Let our praise be full and sounding; let the jubiliations of the soul be joyous and becoming; for that solemn day is now being celebrated, on which is commemorated the first institution of this table." Mensæ, table, the Holy Eucharist.

4. "At this table of the new King, the new Pasch of the New Law puts an end to the ancient Pasch. The new supplants the old, truth puts to flight the shadow, day banishes night." Pascha: the Pasch, Passover (cf. Exod. 12-13). Phase: This is another form of Pascha and has the same meaning (cf. Exod. 12, 21; 34, 25; Num. 9, 4). The English word Phase occurs only in the Douay Bible. The expressions "The new supplants the old," etc., refer to the institution of the New Sacrifice foretold by Malachias (1, 10-11), of which the sacrifices of the Old Law were but shadows, types, and figures.

5. "What Christ did at that Supper, the same He commanded to be done in remembrance of Him. Taught by His sacred precepts, we consecrate bread and wine into the Victim of salvation."

6. "This is the dogma given to Christians, that bread is changed into Flesh and wine into Blood. What thou dost not understand, what thou dost not see, a lively faith confirms in a supernatural manner." Præter rerum ordinem:

PROPER OF THE SEASON

In an extraordinary manner, transcending the evidences of the senses and of the intellect.

7. "Under different species (different) in externals (signis) only, and not in reality (rebus), wondrous substances lie hidden. Flesh is food, Blood is drink: nevertheless Christ remains entire under each species." The species of bread and wine differ in their external appearances, in taste, color, form, etc., but under each species there is one and the same divine substance, "Christus totus."

8. "By the recipient the whole (Christ) is received; He is neither cut, broken, nor divided. One receives Him; a thousand receive Him: as much as the thousand receive, so much does the one receive; though eaten He is not diminished."

9. "The good receive Him, the bad receive Him, but with what unequal consequences of life or death. It is death to the unworthy, life to the worthy: behold then of a like reception, how unlike may be the result!"

10. "When the Sacrament is broken, doubt not, but remember, that there is just as much hidden in a fragment, as there is in the whole. There is no division of the substance, only a breaking of the species takes place, by which neither the state nor stature of the substance signified is diminished."

11. "Lo, the Bread of Angels is made the food of earthly pilgrims: truly it is the Bread of children, let it not be cast to dogs. It was prefigured in types,—when Isaac was immolated, when the Paschal Lamb was sacrificed, when Manna was given to the fathers." Filiorum . . . canibus: The children are the worthy; the dogs are the unworthy. Non est bonum sumere panem filiorum et mittere canibus (Matt. 15, 26). These words were addressed by Our Lord to the Chanaanite woman; the children alluded to by Christ are the Jews, the seed of Abraham; the dogs are the Gentiles who were so designated on account of their idolatry and other sinful practices.

12. "O Good Shepherd, True Bread, O Jesus, have mercy on us: feed us and protect us: make us see good things in the land of the living. Thou who knowest all things and canst do all things, who here feedest us mortals, make us there be Thy guests, the co-heirs, and companions of the heavenly citizens." Terra viventium: Credo videre bona Domini in terra viventium (Ps. 26, 13).

By His word to Flesh He turns;
Wine into His Blood He changes:
What though sense no change
discerns?
Only be the heart in earnest,
Faith her lesson quickly learns.

Lo! o'er ancient forms departing,
Newer rites of grace prevail;
Faith for all defects supplying,
Where the feeble senses fail.

See "Preliminary Observations" above. METER: Trochaic tetrameter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are about twenty-five translations, eight of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn on the Feast of Corpus Christi: the Tantum Ergo and doxology are sung during Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. It is used also as a processional hymn on Holy Thursday, Corpus Christi, and during the Forty Hours' Adoration.

The Pange Lingua is pre-eminently the hymn of the Most Blessed Sacrament. It is the most beautiful of the great Eucharistic hymns of St. Thomas. "This hymn," says Dr. Neale, "contests the second place among those of the Western Church with the Vexilla Regis, the Stabat Mater, the Jesu dulcis memoria, the Ad regias Agni dapes, the Ad Supernam, and one or two others, leaving the Dies Iræ in its unapproachable glory. It has been a bow of Ulysses to translators" (Medieval Hymns, p. 179). The Pange Lingua of St. Thomas is, according to Dr. Julian—"One of the finest of medieval Latin hymns; a wonderful union of sweetness of melody with clear-cut dogmatic teaching" (Dict. of Hymnology, p. 878). With the addition of rhyme, St. Thomas imitates in this beautiful hymn the Pange Lingua of Fortunatus.

1. "Sing, O my tongue, the mystery of the glorious Body and of the precious Blood, which the King of the Gentiles, the fruit of a noble womb, shed for the redemption of the world."

2. "Given to us, and born for us of a stainless Virgin, He dwelt on earth sowing the seed of the word, and closed in a wondrous manner the days of His earthly sojourning." Nobis datus: Parvulus enim natus est nobis et filius datus est nobis . . . et vocabitur nomen ejus, Admirabilis, Consiliarius, Deus Fortis, Pater futuri sæculi, Princeps pacis

CORPUS CHRISTI

(Is. 9, 6). Sparso verbi semine: Our Lord is the sower in the beautiful "Parable of the Sower" (Matt. 13; Mark 4; Luke 8); the seed is the good tidings of the kingdom of God, which Christ came on earth to sow in the hearts of men. Miro clausit ordine; What this "wondrous manner" was is explained in the next two stanzas.

3. "On the night of the Last Supper, reclining with His brethren—the Law having been fully complied with in regard to legal meats—with His own hands, He gives Himself as Food to the assembled twelve." Turbæ duodenæ, to the assembly twelve in number. For duodenæ, see denu in the Glossary. Cibis in legalibus (cf. Exod. 12, 3-11).

4. "The Word-made-Flesh changes by His word true bread into His Flesh; and wine becomes the Blood of Christ; and if the intellect does not grasp this, faith alone suffices to make sure the sincere heart." This stanza, on account of the many verbal and real antitheses it contains, has been "the great crux of the translator" (Neale). In the article on the Pange Lingua in the Cath. Encycl. there are seven translations of this stanza and much interesting comment. Verbum caro: the Incarnate Word, the God-Man, the Word-made-Flesh (cf. John 1, 1-14).

5. "Let us therefore, prostrate, adore so great a Sacrament, and let the Old Law give way to the New Ordinance; let faith supplement the weakness of the senses." Et antiquum . . . ritui: and let the Old Law (with its typic sacrifices and Paschal Lamb) give way to the New Rite (in which the Lamb of God is sacrificed). Cernui, adj., prostrate, profoundly bowed; with deep humility.

6. "To the Father and to the Son be praise, glory, salvation, honor, power, and benediction also! and to Him proceeding from Them both be equal praise."

CORPUS CHRISTI

Per tuas semitas duc nos quo tendimus, Ad lucem, quam inhabitas.	As we our homage pay; And in Thy footsteps bright Conduct us on our way To where Thou dwell'st in cloud- less light.
--	--

See "Preliminary Observations" above. METER: Asclepiadic and Glyconic. TRANSLATION, a cento based on the translation by J. D. Chambers. There are about fifteen translations, two of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn for the Feast of Corpus Christi. The meter imitates the classical meter of Horace, but like all the hymns of St. Thomas, it is purely accentual. On account of the rhyme, the Asclepiadic lines may be conveniently divided at the cæsura.

1. "With this sacred solemnity let our joys be blended, and from our inmost heart let praises resound; let old things depart, let all be new—hearts, words, and works." Vetera: the olden rites, the Pasch and its attendant ceremonies; or, sin, sinful habits, the leaven of malice and wickedness (I Cor. 5, 7-8). Nova: let all things be new, or renewed by the grace of God.

2. "Of that night, the Last Supper is recalled to mind, at which we believe that Christ gave the lamb and the leavenless bread to His brethren, according to the legal precepts given to the ancient fathers." (cf. Exod. 12-13.)

3. "After the typic lamb, and when the meal was ended, we profess that Our Lord, with His own hands, gave His Body to His brethren; He so gave It that the whole was given to all, and the whole to each." Totum (sc. corpus).

4. "He gave to the weak His Body as food, and He gave to the sad the cup of His Blood, saying: Receive ye the cup which I give to you, drink ye all of it."

5. "Thus He instituted this Sacrifice (Sacrament) the administration of which He willed should be entrusted to priests alone, whom it thus behooves to receive it themselves, and to give it to others."

6. "The Bread of Angels becomes the Bread of men; the Bread of Heaven puts an end to types; O wondrous thing, the poor, the servant, and the lowly, eat their Lord!" Panis angelicus and panis cœlicus are Scriptural allusions to the manna of old, which was a type of the Manna of the New Law. Et pluit illis manna ad manducandum, et panem cœli dedit eis. Panem angelorum manducavit homo: cibaria misit eis in abundantia (Ps. 77, 24-25).

7. "O triune Deity, we beseech Thee, that Thou visit us, as we adore Thee; lead us by Thy ways, whither we direct our steps, to the light wherein Thou dost dwell."

CORPUS CHRISTI

See the "Preliminary Observations" above. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale; the last two stanzas by Father Caswall. There are about twenty-five translations, four of which are in the Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of Corpus Christi. The O Salutaris is familiar from its frequent use in Benediction. In this beautiful hymn St. Thomas imitates the hymn Verbum Supernum, No. 36. The fourth stanza is an admirable example of perfect form and condensed meaning. It so pleased Rousseau that he would have given all his poetry to be its author.

1. "The Heavenly Word going forth, yet not leaving the right hand of His Father, went forth to His allotted work, and arrived at the evening of His life." Verbum: the Word, the Eternal Son of the Father (cf. John 1, 1-14). Dexteram: the place of honor and dignity; by the incarnation Christ did not relinquish this. Opus: Christ said: Me oportet operari opera ejus qui misit me, etc. (John 9, 4).

2. "When about to be delivered over to His enemies, by a disciple, to be put to death, He first gave Himself to His disciples as the Bread of Life."

3. "To them He gave His Flesh and His Blood under a twofold species, that He might wholly feed man, who is of a twofold nature." The Holy Eucharist is primarily the food of the soul; but on account of the intimate union of the body and soul, what promotes the health and vigor of the soul, by a sort of redundancy augments the powers of the body. The Holy Eucharist is a figure of that bread which Elias ate, "and walked in the strength of that food forty days and forty nights" (cf. III Kings 19, 6-8).

4. "By being born, He gave Himself to us as our companion; at the table, He gave Himself as our food; dying He gave Himself as our ransom; now reigning in glory He gives Himself as our reward." Se nascens, by His incarnation. Convalescens (convescor), while eating with His apostles at the Last Supper, He gave, etc. Se moriens, when dying on the Cross, He gave, etc.

5. "O Saving Victim, that openest the gate of heaven; hostile attacks oppress us, give us strength, bring us aid." Hostia, victim, host, sacrifice. According to St. Paul,

PROPER OF THE SEASON

Christ “delivered Himself for us, an oblation and a sacrifice (hostiam) to God for an odor of sweetness” (Eph. 5, 2; Rom. 12, 1). Bella: hostile assaults of the world, the flesh, and the devil. Militia est vita hominis super terram (Job 7, 1).

6. “Eternal glory be to the Triune God, who giveth us life without end in our native land above.”

79 Adoro te devote, latens Deitas

ADORO te devote, latens Deitas, Quæ sub his figuris vere latitas: Tibi se cor meum totum subjicit, Quia te contemplans, totum de- ficit.	HIDDEN God, devoutly I adore Thee, Truly present underneath these veils: All my heart subdues itself before Thee, Since it all before Thee faints and fails.
² Visus, tactus, gustus in te fallitur, Sed auditu solo tuto creditur. Credo quidquid dixit Dei Filius, Nil hoc verbo veritatis verius.	Not to sight, or taste, or touch be credit, Hearing only do we trust secure; I believe, for God the Son hath said it— Word of Truth that ever shall endure.
³ In cruce latebat sola Deitas, At hic latet simul et humanitas: Ambo tamen credens, atque con- fitens, Peto quod petivit latro pœnitens.	On the Cross was veiled Thy Godhead’s splendor, Here Thy Manhood lieth hidden too; Unto both alike my faith I render, And, as sued the contrite thief, I sue.
⁴ Plagas, sicut Thomas, non in- tueor: Deum tamen meum te confiteor. Fac me tibi semper magis cre- dere, In te spem habere, te diligere.	Though I look not on Thy wounds with Thomas, Thee, my Lord, and Thee, my God, I call: Make me more and more believe Thy promise, Hope in Thee, and love Thee over all.

See "Preliminary Observations" above. METER: Trochaic trimeter, catalectic. The first line has a syllable of anacrusis, i.e., an upward beat before beginning the regular meter. TRANSLATION by Justice John O'Hagan. There are about twenty-five translations. The Adoro Te Devote is found in the "Thanksgiving after Mass" in the front part of the Missal. A part of it is frequently sung in Benediction. It is an excellent example of rhymed prayer expressed in the simplest language.

1. "I devoutly adore Thee, O hidden Deity, who truly liest hidden under these figures. My whole heart subjects itself to Thee, for it finds itself wholly lost in contemplating Thee."

2. "Sight, touch, and taste are each deceived in Thee, but by hearing only can we safely believe: I believe whatever the Son of God hath said; nothing can be more true than this word of Him who is the Truth." Veritas: Ego sum via, et veritas, et vita (John 14, 6). Christ is the source and fountain of all truth.

3. "On the Cross was hidden Thy Divinity alone, but here Thy Humanity also lies concealed; nevertheless believing and confessing both, I pray for what the penitent thief did pray." Petivit latro pœnitens: Et dicebat ad Jesum: Domine, memento mei, cum veneris in regnum tuum (Luke 23, 42).

4. "Thy Wounds, I do not see, as Thomas did, yet do I confess Thee to be my God: make me ever more and more believe in Thee, put my hope in Thee, and love Thee." Plagas sicut Thomas: (cf. John 20, 27-28).

5. "O Memorial of the Lord's death, O Living Bread that givest life to man: grant to my soul ever to live on Thee, and that Thou mayest ever taste sweet to it." Illi (sc. menti).

6. "O loving Pelican, Jesus Lord, cleanse me, unclean, in Thy Blood, one drop of which hath power to save the whole world from all its sin." Pie pelicane: The pelican is a symbol of Christ and of charity. There is a legend that when food fails, the pelican feeds her young with her own blood. When she is thus represented in Christian art, she is said to be "in her piety," i. e., standing over her nest with her wings extended, and wounding her breast from which fall drops of blood.

7. "O Jesus, Thou whom veiled I now behold, I beseech Thee that what I so thirst for may happen: that beholding Thee with Thy countenance unveiled, I may be happy in the vision of Thy glory." See the articles on Beatific Vision, and on Heaven, esp. Part III, in the Cath. Encycl.

Ave verum Corpus natum

AVE verum Corpus natum
De Maria Virgine,
Vere passum, immolatum
In cruce pro homine,
Cujus latus perforatum
Unda fluxit et sanguine,
Esto nobis prægustatum
Mortis in examine.
O clemens, O pie,
O dulcis Jesu, Fili Mariæ.

HAIL, true Body, truly born
Of the Virgin Mary mild,
Truly offered, racked and torn,
On the Cross, for man defiled,
From whose love-pierced, sacred side
Flowed Thy true Blood's saving tide:
Be a foretaste sweet to me
In my death's great agony,
O Thou loving, gentle One,
Sweetest Jesus, Mary's Son.

CORPUS CHRISTI

AUTHOR: Probably by Pope Innocent VI (d. 1362).
METER: Trochaic tetrameter catalectic. TRANSLATION by Father Edward F. Garesché, S.J. There are ten translations. This beautiful little hymn was formerly sung at the Elevation of the Host in Mass. It is not found in the Breviary or Missal. The Latin texts differ slightly.

1. "Hail, true Body, born of the Virgin Mary, which truly suffered and was immolated on the Cross for man; whose pierced side streamed with Water and with Blood. Be Thou to us a foretaste (of heaven) when we are in the agony of death. O clement, O loving, O sweet Jesus, Son of Mary."

Anima Christi

A NIMA Christi, sanctifica me.
Corpus Christi, salva me.
Sanguis Christi, inebria me.
Aqua lateris Christi, lava me.
Passio Christi, conforta me.
O bone Jesu, exaudi me.
Intra tua vulnera absconde me.
Ne permittas me separari a te.
Ab hoste maligno defende me.
In hora mortis meæ voca me.
Et jube me venire ad te.
Ut cum sanctis tuis laudem te.
In sæcula sæculorum. Amen.

S ANCTIFY me wholly, Soul of Christ adored;
Be my sure Salvation, Body of the Lord:
Fill and satisfy me, O Thou Blood
unpriced:
Wash me, Sacred Water, from the side of Christ.
Passion of my Saviour, be my strength in need:
Good and gracious Jesus, to my prayer give heed:
In Thy Wounds most precious let me refuge find:
All the power malignant of the
foeman bind:
At death's final hour, call me to Thy face:
Bid me stand beside Thee in the heavenly place:
There with Saints and Angels I shall sing to Thee
Through the countless ages of eternity.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

in the Church. It is, however, found in most Missals and Breviaries in the "Thanksgiving after Mass." This beautiful prayer has been richly indulgenced for priests who recite it after Mass.

The Anima Christi is popularly believed to have been composed by St. Ignatius of Loyola, who places it at the beginning of his Spiritual Exercises, and frequently refers to it. But as the Anima Christi dates from 1330 or earlier, and St. Ignatius was born in 1491, it is impossible that he should have been the author of it. See the article on the Anima Christi in the Cath. Encycl. The popular metrical translation "Soul of my Saviour sanctify my breast" dates from 1882; its author is not known.

FEAST OF THE SACRED HEART

THE FRIDAY AFTER THE OCTAVE OF CORPUS CHRISTI

82

Auctor beate sæculi

A UCTOR beate sæculi,
Christe Redemptor omnium:
Lumen Patris de lumine,
Deusque verus de Deo.

O CHRIST, the world's Creator
bright,
Who didst mankind from sin
redeem,
Light from the Father's glorious
Light,
True God of God, in bliss supreme.

² Amor coegit te tuus
Mortale corpus sumere,
Ut novus Adam redderes,
Quod vetus ille abstulerat.

Thy love compelled Thee to assume
A mortal body, man to save;
Reversing the old Adam's doom;
Our ransom the New Adam gave.

³ Ille amor almus artifex
Terræ marisque, et siderum,
Errata patrum miserans,
Et nostra rumpens vincula.

That love which gloriously framed all—
The earth, the stars, and wondrous sea—
Took pity on our parents' fall,
Broke all our bonds and set us
free.

THE SACRED HEART

⁴Non corde discedat tuo
Vis illa amoris inclyti:
Hoc fonte gentes hauriant
Remissionis gratiam.

O Saviour, let Thy potent love
Flow ever from Thy bounteous
Heart;
To nations that pure fount above
The grace of pardon will impart.

⁵Percussum ad hoc est lancea,
Passumque ad hoc est vulnera:
Ut nos lavaret sordibus,
Unda fluente, et sanguine.

His Heart for this was opened wide,
And wounded by the soldier's spear,
That freely from His sacred side Might flow the streams our souls to clear.

⁶Decus Parenti, et Filio,
Sanctoque sit Spiritui,
Quibus potestas, gloria
Regnumque in omne est sæculum.

Glory to Father and to Son,
And to the Holy Ghost the same,
To whom all power, when time is
done,
And endless rule, in endless fame.

AUTHOR: Unknown, 18 cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Husenbeth. There are eight translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers. Of the five hymns given here in honor of the Sacred Heart, the Annus Sanctus contains two translations of Nos. 82, 83, 84, and one each of Nos. 85 and 86. These hymns are evidently the work of the same author. "Their play of fancy and of imagination, their rhetorical finish, their condensed phraseology, give clear intimations of a skill which has profited by the models constructed by St. Ambrose. They abound, too, in Biblical allusions, every stanza recalling some type, or figure, or prophecy, or fulfilment" (Msgr. Henry, in his Eucharistica, p. 235).

1. "O Blessed Creator of the world, Christ, the Redeemer of all, Light of the Father's Light, and true God of God." The words Lumen de lumine, Deus verus de Deo (vero) are from the Nicene Creed. They express the doctrine of the eternal generation of the Word, the Creator of all things (John 1, 1-3).

2. "Thy love constrained Thee to assume a mortal body, that the New Adam might restore what the old Adam had taken away." For the parallel between Christ and Adam, see Rom. 5, 12-21.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

3. "That love, the gracious builder of the earth and sea and stars, took pity on the sins of our fathers, and broke our chains." Amor and artifex are in apposition. Patrum, the just of the Old Law.

4. "May the power of Thy wondrous love not depart from Thy Heart: let the nations draw from that fount the grace of pardon."

5. "For this It was pierced with a lance, for this It suffered wounds, that It might cleanse us from our sins by the issuing forth of Water and Blood." Cor is the subject, from the preceding stanza. Ad hoc, for this purpose.

6. "Glory be to the Father and to the Son and to the Holy Ghost, to whom be power and glory and kingdom forever and ever."

LO, how the savage crew
Of our proud sins hath rent
The Heart of our all-gracious God,
That Heart so innocent.

The soldier's quivering lance
Our guilt it was that drave,
Our wicked deeds that to its point
Such cruel sharpness gave.

O wounded Heart, whence sprang
The Church, the Saviour's bride;
Thou Door of our Salvation's Ark
Set in its mystic side.

Thou holy fount, whence flows
The sacred sevenfold flood,
Where we our filthy robes may cleanse
In the Lamb's saving Blood:

By sorrowful relapse,
Thee will we rend no more;
But like the flames, those types of
 love,
Strive heavenward to soar.

TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are six translations.
LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn for the Feast of the Sacred Heart.

1. "Behold, how the haughty and savage horde of our sins hath wounded the innocent Heart of God, who deserveth not such treatment." Merentis, of God not deserving, etc.

2. "Our sins guide the lance of the hesitating soldier, and mortal sin doth sharpen the iron of the cruel shaft." Vibrantis militis; The soldier is represented as hesitating, uncertain of the exact place where he should insert the spear to pierce the Saviour's Heart: our sins guided the spear. Cuspidis: cuspis, a point, esp. the head of a spear.

3. "From that pierced Heart was born the Church united with Christ: that entrance was made in the side of the Ark for the salvation of the human race." Genti ad salutem, for the human race, for their deliverance.

4. "From It unfailing grace flows forth like a sevenfold flood, that therein, in the Blood of the Lamb, we may wash our sullied robes." In Baptism we are presented with a stola candida, a snow-white garment, which is symbolical of the sanctifying grace which adorns the soul. By sin this stola candida becomes a stola sordida. Et laverunt stolas suas, et dealbaverunt eas in sanguine Agni (Apoc. 7, 14: see also 22, 14). Septiformis fluvius, the seven sacraments.

5. "It were shameful to turn again to sins, which lacerate that blessed Heart; but let us in our hearts emulate the flames, which are types of love."

6. "Grant us this, O Christ, this, O Father, this, O Holy Spirit, to whom be power and glory and kingdom forever."

TRANSLATION from the Marquess of Bute's Roman Breviary. There are seven translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Sacred Heart. The above translation and one by Rosa Mulholland—"O tender Heart, strong ark which doth enshrine," are found in several hymnals. Both are in the Annus Sanctus.

THE SACRED HEART

1. "O Heart, Thou ark, which dost contain the law, not the law of ancient servitude, but of grace, of pardon, and of mercy." The Old Law was a law of servitude, and was eminently suited to the hard-heartedness of the Jews. It was a law of fear and bondage given amid thunders, and appropriately engraved on stone. The New Law, on the contrary, is a law of love and liberty engraved by the Holy Spirit on the hearts of the faithful.

2. "O Heart, undefiled sanctuary of the New Law, temple more sacred than that of old, and veil more useful than that which was rent." Vetusto (templo); scisso (velo). Velum, cf. Matt. 27, 51.

3. "Thy love hath willed that Thou be wounded with an open wound, that we might (see and) venerate the wounds of Thy invisible love." Ictus, blow, stroke, stab. Patenti, abl. of pres. part. of patere, 2, to be open.

4. "Under this symbol of love, He suffered in a bloody and mystical manner; and Christ as priest offered a twofold sacrifice." The twofold sacrifice is that of Calvary (cruenta) and the Mass (mystica).

5. "Who would not love in return one loving him? Who, redeemed, would not love (his Redeemer), and choose in that Heart an eternal dwelling place?"

TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are six translations. Father Caswall's translation is a great favorite with hymn book compilers, both Catholic and non-Catholic.
LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins in an Office of the Sacred Heart granted by special concession. This and the following hymn are not found in the latest edition of the Breviary.

1. "All ye who seek an unfailling consolation in adversity, whether uneasy guilt gnaws at you, or punishment, its companion, oppresses you."

2. "Approach that Heart disclosed by a wound, the gentle Heart of Jesus, who, as an innocent lamb, gave Himself up to be sacrificed." Jesu is the genitive after Cor.

3. "Ye hear how, with the sweetest words He invites all: 'Come ye whom labor doth weigh down, and a weight of sins doth oppress.' " Venite ad me omnes qui laboratis et onerati estis, et ego reficiam vos (Matt. 11, 28).

4. "What is more meek than the Heart of Jesus? Even those who had fastened Jesus to the Cross, It excuses, and It implores the Father that as an avenger He destroy not the godless." Pater, dimitte illis: non enim sciunt, quid faciunt (Luke 23, 34).

5. "O Heart, the delight of the Blessed, O Heart, the surest hope of mortals, lo, attracted by these words, we suppliantly come to Thee." Hisce vocibus, viz., in the two preceding stanzas.

6. "Cleanse Thou our wounds in the Blood flowing from Thee; grant a new heart to all, who sighing invoke Thee." Novum cor, a new life.

Summi Parentis Filio

SUMMI Parentis Filio,
Patri futuri sæculi,
Pacis beatæ Principi,
Promamus ore canticum.

O THOU, the Son of God most
High,
Thou Father of the life to be,
O Prince of Peace, to Thee we cry,
We bring our song of praise to Thee.

² Qui vulneratus pectore
Amoris ictum pertulit,
Amoris urens ignibus
Ipsum qui amantem diligunt.

Thy Heart was wounded by the blow
Ordained of everlasting love;
Such love among Thy flocks below
Thou kindlest at the fires above.

³ Jesu, doloris victima,
Quis te innocentem compulit,
Dura ut apertum lancea
Latus pateret vulnere?

Dear Christ in pity for our woe
Thou didst Thyself as victim give,
The cruel pangs to undergo,
To ope Thy breast that man might live.

⁴ O fons amoris inclyte!
O vena aquarum limpida,
O flamma adurens crimina!
O cordis ardens caritas!

O sacred fount of love sublime,
O living spring of waters free,
O fire to cleanse away all crime,
O Heart aflame with charity.

⁵ In Corde, Jesu, jugiter
Reconde nos, ut uberi
Dono fruamur gratiæ,
Cœlique tandem præmiis.

Lord, keep us ever in Thy Heart,
Thy tender love to feel and know,
The joys of heaven to us impart,
When we shall leave these walks below.

⁶ Semper Parenti, et Filio,
Sit laus, honor, sit gloria,
Sancto simul Paraclito
In sæculorum sæcula.

Glory to Father and to Son,
And to the Holy Ghost the same,
To whom all power, when time is
done,
And endless rule, in endless fame.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

AUTHOR: Unknown, 18th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by D. J. Donahoe. There are five translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds in an Office of the Sacred Heart granted by special concession. Like the preceding hymn it is not found in the latest edition of the Breviary.

1. "Let us sing a hymn of praise to the Son of the most High Father, to the Father of the world to come, to the Prince of blessed peace." Patri futuri sæculi: These words and Princeps pacis, refer to Christ, and are taken literally from Isaias 9, 6.

2. "He who, wounded in the breast, endured out of love the stroke, doth enkindle with the flames of love those who reciprocate His love." Constr.: Urens (eos) ignibus amoris qui ipsum amantem diligunt.

3. "O Jesus, Victim of sorrow, who drove Thee, innocent, thereto, that Thy side, opened by a cruel spear, should be exposed to injury?" Dura, hard, unfeeling. Vulneri, hurt, wounding.

4. "O glorious fount of love! O limpid spring of waters! O flame that burnest away sins! O the glowing love of that Heart!"

5. "In Thy Heart, O Jesus, hide us forever, that we may enjoy rich gifts of grace, and in the end, the rewards of heaven."

6. "Be praise, honor, and glory to the Father and Son forever; and likewise, through all ages to the Holy Paraclete."

PROPER OF THE SEASON

- ¹¹ *Iuste iudex ultionis,
Donum fac remissionis
Ante diem rationis.*
- O just avenging Judge, I pray,
For pity take my sins away,
Before the great accounting-day.
- ¹² *Ingemisco tamquam reus:
Culpa rubet vultus meus:
Supplicanti parce, Deus.*
- I groan beneath the guilt, which Thou
Canst read upon my blushing
brow;
But spare, O God, Thy suppliant
now.
- ¹³ *Qui Mariam absolvisti,
Et latronem exaudisti,
Mihi quoque spem dedisti.*
- Thou who didst Mary's sins unbind,
And mercy for the robber find,
Dost fill with hope my anxious mind.
- ¹⁴ *Preces meæ non sunt dignæ:
Sed tu bonus fac benigne,
Ne perenni cremer igne.*
- My feeble prayers can make no claim,
Yet, gracious Lord, for Thy great
Name,
Redeem me from the quenchless flame.
- ¹⁵ *Inter oves locum præsta,
Et ab hædis me sequestra,
Statuens in parte dextra.*
- At Thy right hand, give me a place
Among Thy sheep, a child of
grace,
Far from the goats' accursed race.
- ¹⁶ *Confutatis maledictis,
Flammis acribus addictis:
Voca me cum benedictis.*
- Yea, when Thy justly kindled ire
Shall sinners hurl to endless fire,
Oh, call me to Thy chosen choir.
- ¹⁷ *Oro supplex et acclinis,
Cor contritum quasi cinis:
Gere curam mei finis.*
- In suppliant prayer I prostrate bend,
My contrite heart like ashes rend,
Regard, O Lord, my latter end.
- ¹⁸ *Lacrimosa dies illa,
Qua resurget ex favilla,
Judicandus homo reus.
Huic ergo parce, Deus:
Pie Jesu, Domine,
Dona eis requiem.*
- Oh, on that day, that tearful day,
When man to judgment wakes
from clay,
Be thou the trembling sinner's stay,
And spare him, God, we humbly
pray.
Yea, grant to all, O Saviour Blest,
Who die in Thee, the Saints' sweet rest.

DIES IRÆ

AUTHOR: Thomas of Celano, 13th cent. METER: Trochaic dimeter. TRANSLATION, a cento: stanzas 1-5, 10, 14, 17, 18, by W. F. Wingfield, the remainder by Father Aylward, O.P. There are, or rather were, in 1895, some 234 recorded English translations of this world-famous hymn. There are four translations in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Sequence in Requiem Masses. It is very probable that the Dies Iræ was composed as a sequence for the first Sunday in Advent.

The exquisite beauty of the Latin original has continually lured translators to attempt to reproduce this noble hymn in the vernacular. The great number of the translations is an eloquent witness of this fact. It is freely acknowledged that no adequate translation has yet appeared. Dr. Coles, a Newark physician, who made eighteen translations of the hymn, maintains that no single version can reflect the totality of the original. The untranslatableness of the hymn is acknowledged by the Rev. Mr. Duffield, whose sixth version, in his opinion, has not carried him "one inch" beyond the first.

Some idea of the difficulties that confront the translator may be obtained from the following apologia of Dr. Coles for having made so many versions:—"To preserve, in connection with the utmost fidelity and strictness of rendering, all the rhythmic merits of the Latin original,—to attain to a vital likeness as well as to an exact literalness, at the same time that nothing is sacrificed of its musical sonorousness and billowy grandeur, easy and graceful in its swing as the ocean on its bed,—to make the verbal copy, otherwise cold and dead, glow with the fire of lyric passion,—to reflect, and that too by means of a single version, the manifold aspects of the many-sided original, exhausting at once its wonderful fulness and pregnancy,—to cause the white light of the primitive so to pass through the medium of another language as that it shall undergo no refraction whatever,—would be desirable, certainly, were it practicable; but so much as this it were unreasonable to expect in a single version" (Dies Iræ in Thirteen Original Versions, p. 33).

Some idea of the intangible beauty and consequent un-

PROPER OF THE SEASON

translatableness of the hymn may be obtained from the judicious opinions of eminent critics. Thus Mr. Saintsbury: "Rhyme, alliteration, cadence, and adjustment of vowel and consonant values, all these things receive perfect expression in it, or, at least in the first thirteen stanzas, for the last four are a little inferior. It is quite astonishing to reflect upon the careful art or felicitous accident of such a line as

Tuba mirum spargens sonum, with the thud of the trochee falling in each instant on a different vowel; and still more on the continuous sequence of five stanzas, from Judex ergo to non sit cassus in which a word could not be displaced or replaced by another without loss. The climax of verbal harmony corresponding to and expressing religious passion and religious awe, is reached in the last,

Quærens me sedisti lassus,
Redemisti crucem passus:
Tantus labor non sit cassus!—

where the sudden change from the dominant e sound (except in the rhyme foot) of the first two lines to the a's of the last is simply miraculous, and miraculously assisted by what may be called the internal sub-rhyme of sedisti and redemisti. This latter effect can rarely be attempted without a jingle: there is no jingle here, only an ineffable melody. After the Dies Iræ, no poet could say that any effect of poetry was, as far as sound goes, unattainable; though few could have hoped to equal it, and perhaps no one except Dante and Shakespeare has fully done so" (Flourishing of Romance, p. 9).

According to Dr. Duffield, the Dies Iræ "gives us a new conception of the powers of the Latin tongue. Its wonderful wedding of sense and sound—the u assonance in the second stanza, the o assonance in the third, the a and i assonance in the fourth, for instance—the sense of organ music that runs through the hymn, even unaccompanied, as distinctly as through the opening verses of Lowell's Vision of Sir Launfal and the transitions as clearly marked in sound as in meaning from lofty adoration to pathetic entreaty, impart a grandeur and dignity to the Dies Iræ which are unique in this kind of writing. Then the wonderful adaptation of the triple rhyme to the theme—like blow following blow of hammer upon anvil, as Daniel says—impresses every reader” (Latin Hymns, p. 249).

Scriptural references: The hymn is replete with Scriptural references to both the Old and New Testaments. The actual Judgment scene will be found in detail in Matt. 24, 27-31; Luke 21, 25-27; Apoc. 20, 12-15.

Analysis: (a) The first six stanzas are descriptive. They picture with remarkable brevity and detail the Judgment scene of the Scriptures.

(b) The remaining stanzas are lyric in character and express the anguish of one of the multitude there present in spirit—his pleading before the Judge, who, while on earth, sought him unceasingly over the hard and thorny ways from Bethlehem to Calvary; and now, in anticipation of the Judgment, pleads before a Saviour of infinite mercy, who, on Judgment Day, will be a Judge of infinite justice, before whom scarcely the just will be secure.

(c) The seventh stanza serves to connect the descriptive with the lyric part of the hymn. In it the soul acknowledges the futility of expecting aid from creatures—for even the Saints and Angels will be judged.

(d) The eighth stanza represents Christ in the twofold character of “King of awful majesty” in the Last Judgment, and “Fount of loving piety” in the present life.

(e) The next six stanzas (9-14) develop the thought of God’s mercy. They comprise two divisions of three stanzas each. The last stanza of each division contains an appropriate prayer. The first division (stanzas 9-11) deals with the first basis on which an appeal for mercy may rest, viz., on the labors and sufferings of Christ. The second division (12-14) deals with the second basis on which an appeal for mercy may rest, viz., on the repentance of the sinner.

(f) In the fifteenth stanza the Scriptural division of the sheep (the just) from the goats (the reprobates) is set before us: in the sixteenth stanza the picture of the Judgment is concluded with the “depart ye cursed,” and “come ye blessed” of the Scriptures.

PROPER OF THE SEASON

There is a very interesting article on the Dies Iræ, in the Cath. Encycl. A scholarly and extensive series of articles on the Dies Iræ appeared in The Dolphin, from Nov., 1904, to May, 1905. The series, 144 pages in all, consists of Notes on the Dies Iræ by the Rev. Mr. Warren, M.A., a collaborator in Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology, and of Comments on the Notes of Mr. Warren, by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. H. T. Henry, Litt.D. To these articles the editor is greatly indebted. In the article on Judgment, in the Cath. Encycl., read the last section, which treats of the General Judgment.

The following is Sir Walter Scott's greatly admired condensed rendering of the Dies Iræ which is found in his Lay of the Last Minstrel. It consists of only twelve lines.

87B

THAT Day of wrath, that dreadful day,
When heaven and earth shall pass away,
What power shall be the sinner's stay?
How shall he meet that dreadful day?

When, shrivelling like a parchèd scroll,
The flaming heavens together roll;
When louder yet, and yet more dread,
Swells the high trump that wakes the dead:

O, on that day, that wrathful day,
When man to judgment wakes from clay,
Be Thou the trembling sinner's stay,
Though heaven and earth shall pass away!

The metrical translations of the respective stanzas, given below, are from various authors whose translations are mentioned by Mr. Warren as among the best.

The stanzas are uniformly in trochaic sevens, thus forming a fine cento.

1. "That day of wrath, that day shall reduce the world to glowing embers, David with the Sibyl being witness."

DIES IRÆ

87C

AH that day of wrath and woe,
When the fire that seers foreknow
All the world shall overflow.
—Canon Bright

Dies iræ, dies illa: These words of “startling suddenness” with which the poet ushers in his theme are from the Prophet Sophonias: Dies iræ, dies illa, dies tribulationis et angustię, dies calamitatis et miserię, dies tenebrarum et caliginis, dies nebulę et turbinis, dies tubę et clangoris (Soph. 1, 15-16). Solvat: (cf. II Peter 3, 10). Teste David: (cf. Pss. 10, 7; 49, 3-6; and esp. 101, 26-28). Sibylla: If any particular Sibyl is meant it is the Erythręan Sibyl, the author of the well-known acrostic on the name of Christ. However, “David and the Sibyl” here stand for Jew and Gentile, the witnesses respectively of inspiration and of mere natural religion. See the article on Sibylline Oracles, in the Cath. Encycl.

2. “How great shall be the trembling, when the Judge shall come to investigate rigidly all things.”

O what trembling shall appear
When His coming shall be near Who shall all things strictly clear.
—Dean Alford

For the Scriptural account of the Judge’s coming to judge the world, cf. Luke 21, 25-27. Stricte discussurus: To search and thoroughly lay bare.

3. “The trumpet scattering a wondrous sound through the sepulchers of the whole world shall gather all before the throne.”

At the unearthly trump’s command
Heard in graves of every land
All before the throne must stand.
—Canon Bright

Tuba: Et mittet angelos suos cum tuba et voce magna: et congregabunt electos ejus a quattuor ventis, a summis cęlorum usque ad terminos eorum (Matt. 24, 31).

PROPER OF THE SEASON

4. "Death and Nature shall stand aghast, when the creature shall rise again to answer to the Judge."

Death shall shrink and Nature quake
When all creatures shall awake,
Answer to their God to make.

—Dean Alford

Et dedit mare mortuos qui in eo erant: et mors et infernus dederunt mortuos suos qui in ipsis erant; et judicatum est de singulis secundum opera ipsorum (Apoc. 20, 13).

5. "The written Book shall be brought forth, in which all is contained whence the world is to be judged."

Then the volume shall be spread
And the writing shall be read
Which shall judge the quick and dead.

—Isaac Williams

Liber: Et vidi mortuos magnos et pusillos stantes in conspectu throni, et libri aperti sunt; et alius liber apertus est, qui est vitæ; et judicati sunt mortui ex his quæ scripta erant in libris secundum opera ipsorum (Apoc. 20, 12). The "Book" is the Book of Life which contains a most detailed record of each one's life, even of his most secret thoughts and idle words.

6. "When therefore the Judge shall be seated, whatsoever is hidden shall be brought to light; nothing shall remain unpunished."

When the Judge His place has ta'en
All things hid shall be made plain,
Nothing unavenged remain.

—Abp. Trench

With this stanza the epic or narrative part of the hymn closes, the remaining stanzas are lyric in character.

7. "What shall I, wretched, then say? What patron shall I entreat, when even the just shall hardly be without anxiety?"

What shall wretched I then plead,
Who for me shall intercede,
When the righteous scarce is freed?

—Isaac Williams

DIES IRÆ

Patronus, advocate, counsel. Cum vix justus: Et si justus vix salvabitur, impius et peccator ubi parebunt? (I Peter, 4, 18).

8. "King of awful majesty, who savest freely those who are to be saved, save me, O Fount of mercy."

King of dread, whose mercy free
Saveth those that saved shall be,
Fount of pity, pity me.

—Lord Lindsey

Salvandos: Read the articles on Elect, Salvation, and parts of the article on Grace, in the Cath. Encycl.

9. "Remember, O loving Jesus, that for my sake Thou didst come upon earth: let me not, then, be lost on that day."

Jesus, 'twas my debt to pay
Thou didst wend Thy weary way;
Keep me on that dreadful day.
—Messenger of the Sacred Heart, England.

Tuæ viæ: Christ's whole life on earth,—

"From the poor manger to the bitter cross."

Ne me perdas: Quia quos dedisti mihi, non perdidisti ex eis quemquam (John 18, 9).

10. "Seeking me Thou satest weary; suffering the Cross, Thou didst redeem me; let not so great a labor be in vain."

Weary satest Thou seeking me,
Diedst redeeming on the tree;
Not in vain such toil can be.

—Mrs. E. Charles

Sedisti lassus: Jesus was often weary seeking the lost sheep of the house of Israel, but the poet here undoubtedly had in mind the touching picture of Our Lord resting at Jacob's well, and awaiting the Samaritan woman (John 4, 6). Dr. Johnson could not repeat this touching verse without shedding tears.

11. "Just Judge of vengeance, grant the gift of pardon ere the day of accounting."

PROPER OF THE SEASON

Thou just Judge of wrath severe,
Grant my sins remission here,
Ere Thy reckoning day appear.

—Dean Alford

Ultionis: Mea est ultio, et ego retribuam in tempore (Deut. 32, 35).

12. "I groan like one condemned; my face reddens with guilt; the suppliant spare, O God."

Sighs and tears my sorrow speak,
Shame and grief are on my cheek,
Mercy, mercy, Lord, I seek.

—Dr. Schaff

Reus is here taken in the sense of one condemned rather than one accused, as the line following would seem to imply.

13. "Thou who didst absolve Mary, and didst hearken to the thief, to me also Thou hast given hope."

Thou who Mary didst forgive
And who badst the robber live,
Hope to me dost also give.

—Abp. Trench

Mariam absolvisti: Mary Magdalen, who, whether named or not, is the sinner referred to by the four Evangelists; Matt. 26, 7; Mark 14, 3; Luke 7, 48; 10, 38-42; John 12, 2-3. Latronem: the penitent thief. Et dicebat ad Jesum: Domine, memento mei, cum veneris in regnum tuum. Et dixit illi Jesus: Amen dico tibi, hodie mecum eris in paradiso (Luke 23, 42-43).

14. "Unworthy are my prayers; but do Thou who art good benignly grant that I burn not in everlasting fire."

Though my prayers deserve no hire,
Yet good Lord, grant my desire,
I may 'scape eternal fire.

—James Dymock

15. "Amid Thy sheep appoint me a place, and separate me from the goats, placing me at Thy right hand."

DIES IRÆ

Mid Thy sheep my place command,
From the goats far off to stand,
Set me, Lord, at Thy right hand.

—Abp. Trench

Et statuit oves quidem a dextris suis, hædos autem a sinistris (Matt. 25, 33).

16. "The accursed having been silenced and given over to the bitter flames, call me with the blessed."

When the curst are put to shame,
Cast into devouring flame,
With the blest then call my name.

—Dr. Schaff

Confutatis: The wicked will be silenced when they hear from the lips of Our Lord: Amen, dico vobis: quamdiu non fecistis uni de minoribus his, nec mihi fecistis (Matt. 25, 45).

17. "Kneeling and prostrate I pray, with a heart contrite as though crushed to ashes; have a care of my last hour."

Contrite, suppliant, I pray,
Ashes on my heart I lay;
Care Thou for me on that day.

—Mrs. E. Charles

Contritum, utterly crushed.

18. "Doleful shall be that day on which guilty man shall rise from the glowing embers to be judged: spare him, then, O God. Merciful Jesus, Lord, grant them rest."

Full of tears the day shall prove
When from ashes rising move
To the judgment guilty men:
Spare, Thou God of mercy, then.
Lord, all-pitying, Jesu Blest,
Grant them Thine eternal rest.

—Isaac Williams

Dr. W. J. Irons' much admired translation is given below. It is more extensively used than any other translation of the Dies Iræ. Dr. Irons' translation was made from the Paris Missal Text but it is generally edited to conform to the Text of the Roman Missal. Judging from the number of hymn-books and other books that contain this translation it is quite probable that a few million copies of it are printed each year. It is said that the sale of Hymns Ancient and Modern (H. A. & M.) alone exceeds one million copies annually. Dr. Irons' translation is in our own Baltimore Manual of Prayers, and in the London Catholic Truth Society's Book of Sequences. The translation retains the exact meter and rhyme scheme of the original.

87D

DAY of wrath and doom impending,
David's word with Sibyl's blending!
Heaven and earth in ashes ending!

O, what fear man's bosom rendeth,
When from heaven the Judge descendeth,
On whose sentence all dependeth!

Wondrous sound the trumpet flingeth,
Through earth's sepulchers it ringeth,
All before the throne it bringeth.

Death is struck, and nature quaking,
All creation is awaking,
To its Judge an answer making.

Lo! the book exactly worded,
Wherein all hath been recorded;
Thence shall judgment be awarded.

When the Judge His seat attaineth,
And each hidden deed arraigneth,
Nothing unavenged remaineth.

What shall I, frail man, be pleading?
Who for me be interceding,
When the just are mercy needing?

King of majesty tremendous,
Who dost free salvation send us,
Fount of pity, then befriend us!

Think, kind Jesu! my salvation
Caused Thy wondrous Incarnation;
Leave me not to reprobation.

DIES IRÆ

Faint and weary Thou hast sought me,
On the Cross of suffering bought me;
Shall such grace be vainly brought me?

Righteous Judge! for sin's pollution
Grant Thy gift of absolution,
Ere that day of retribution.

Guilty, now I pour my moaning,
All my shame with anguish owning;
Spare, O God, Thy suppliant groaning!

Through the sinful woman shriven,
Through the dying thief forgiven,
Thou to me a hope hast given.

Worthless are my prayers and sighing,
Yet, good Lord, in grace complying,
Rescue me from fires undying.

With Thy favored sheep O place me,
Nor among the goats abase me,
But to Thy right hand upraise me.

While the wicked are confounded,
Doomed to flames of woe unbounded,
Call me with Thy Saints surrounded.

Low I kneel, with heart submission,
Crushed to ashes in contrition;
Help me in my last condition!

Ah! that day of tears and mourning!
From the dust of earth returning,
Man for judgment must prepare him;
Spare, O God, in mercy spare him!
Lord all-pitying, Jesu Blest,
Grant them Thine eternal rest.

PART III

The Proper of the Saints

It will be observed that with a few noteworthy exceptions the hymns in honor of the Saints have not been translated as often as the remaining hymns of the Breviary. This is in part explained by the fact that the cultus of a Saint is more or less national in character, and the Breviary contains few hymns in honor of Saints who are especially venerated in English-speaking countries.

And Holy Ghost eternally.

AUTHOR: Unknown, 17th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are at least four translations. This hymn first appeared in the Office of the Purity of the Blessed Virgin, authorized by Pope Benedict XIV, in 1751. Present LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception.

1. "Illustrious guardian of virgins, chaste Mother of God, portal of the heavenly court, our hope, the joy of heaven." Cælestis aulæ janua = Janua cæli, Gate of heaven (Litany).

2. "Thou lily among the thorns, dove all-beauteous, rod from the root (of Jesse) producing a healing balm for our wounds." Rubeta, orum, thorns. Sicut lilium inter spinas, sic amica mea inter filias (Cant. 2, 2). Columba: Surge, propera, amica mea, columba mea, formosa mea, et veni (Cant. 2, 10). In the Scriptures the dove is a symbol of innocence and purity, and also of tender and devoted affection. Virga: Egredietur virga de radice Jesse et flos de radice ejus ascendet (Is. 11, 1). Jesse was the father of David, and was, therefore, a lineal ancestor of the Blessed Virgin.

3. "Thou tower inaccessible to the dragon, star friendly to the shipwrecked, protect us from deception, and guide us by thy light." Turris—Turris Davidica, Tower of David (Litany: cf. Cant. 4, 4).

ST. PETER'S CHAIR AT ROME

4. "Dispel the shadows of error, remove treacherous shoals; among so many waves, reveal a safe path to those astray."

vinclis super terram strinxeris. This hymn is a part of a longer hymn beginning: Felix per omnes festum mundi cardines. There are nine stanzas in the complete hymn. In addition to several anonymous translations in the early Primers, there are ten later translations, three of which are translations of the complete hymn. This hymn is evidently later than, and modeled on, the Decora lux which is used on the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul (June 29).

1. "Whatsoever thou shalt bind on earth with chains, O Peter, shall be bound in the stronghold of the skies, and what here the power bestowed upon thee doth loosen, shall be loosed in heaven's exalted height; at the end of the world thou shalt judge mankind." This stanza contains a metrical rendering of Matt. 16, 19: Et tibi dabo claves regni cœlorum. Et quodcumque ligaveris super terram, erit ligatum et in cœlis: et quodcumque solveris super terram, erit solutum et in cœlis. Judicabis: Cf. Matt. 19, 28.

2. "To God the Father be glory through endless ages; Eternal Son, may we sing Thy glorious praises; Heavenly Spirit, to Thee be honor and glory: unceasingly may the Holy Trinity be praised through all eternity."

Martinæ celebri

MARTINÆ celebri plaudite
nomini
Cives Romulei, plaudite gloriæ:
Insignem meritis dicite Virginem,
Christi dicite Martyrem.

WITH joyous songs, great
Rome, Martina's fame extol,
Her glowing praises tell, and all her mighty deeds;
A Virgin pure and chaste, she leads a stainless life,
And for her Lord a Martyr bleeds.

² Hæc dum conspicuis orta paren-tibus
Inter delicias, inter amabiles
Luxus illecebras ditibus affluit
Faustæ muneribus domus.

A happy home is hers, and all that makes this world
So sweet, and fresh, and fair, to those who love its wiles:
From noblest parents sprung, 'mid wealth, and love, and joy,
Her life speeds on, 'mid naught
but smiles.

³ Vitæ despiciens commoda, dedi-
cat

Christi pauperibus distribuens
opes,
Quærit præmia cœlitum.

These pleasures soon she spurns—her wealth she gladly gives To Christ's own blessed poor—herself, to God above;
No other wealth she seeks save her own spotless Spouse,
Forever blest in His pure love.

⁴ A nobis abigas lubrica gaudia

O Thou, the Martyrs' strength, all cheating joys expel,
And fill us with Thy bright and never-fading love;
Show us the beam divine, which forms the crowning joy,
God, Three in One, of bliss above.

AUTHOR: Pope Urban VIII (1568-1644). METER: Asclepiadic and Glyconic. TRANSLATION by Father Potter. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: The complete hymn is divided into three parts of three stanzas each and is used as follows:

- 92 Vespers: Martinæ celebri
 93 Matins: Non illam crucians
 94 Lauds: Tu natale solum

The same doxology A nobis abigas is used at the end of each part.

1. "Praise, O citizens of Rome, the illustrious name of Martina, praise her glory; celebrate in song a Virgin rendered illustrious by her merits; sing a Martyr of Christ." Romulei, adj., of Romulus.

2. "As she was born of distinguished parents, she lived amid pleasures, amid the fascinating allurements of luxury, and she abounded in the rich gifts of a prosperous house." Constr.: Affluit ditibus muneribus domus faustæ.

3. "But despising the comforts of life, she dedicates herself to the Lord of creation, and with a lavish hand she distributes her riches among the poor of Christ, and seeks for herself the reward of the Blessed." St. Martina was left an orphan at an early age. As soon as she obtained possession of her property, she distributed it among the poor of Rome.

4. "O God, Three and One, Thou who dost mightily assist the Martyrs, drive far from us dangerous pleasures: grant to Thy servants the light wherewith Thou dost graciously bless their souls." Jubar, the light of glory.

This is a continuation of the preceding hymn. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall.

1. "Neither the agonizing hook, nor wild beasts, nor the rods with their painful wounds shake her constancy; thereupon Angels descend from the abodes of the Blessed and strengthen her with heavenly food." Ungula, a claw-shaped torturing hook.

2. "And even the lion, laying aside his savage nature, with friendly gaping jaws lays himself down at her feet: thee, at length, Martina, the sword delivers up to death and enrolls thee among the hosts of heaven." St. Martina was beheaded in 228, in the persecution under Alexander Severus.

3. "The altar which smokes, redolent with the odors of incense, unceasingly invokes thee with prayers, and it destroys and annihilates by the omen of thy name baneful idol-worship." Auspicium, divination by means of birds. The word is here used in the sense of idolatry, heathen worship in general. Omine: The "omen" alluded to is a reference to the derivation of the Saint's name Martina (the warlike) from Mars, Martis, the god of war. The "warfare" she waged was on the idols in the vicinity of Rome, many of whose altars were overthrown by her prayers.

This is a continuation of the preceding hymn. TRANSLATION by Father Wallace, O.S.B.

1. "Protect thy native land and give to Christian nations the repose of holy peace: banish the din of arms and dreadful wars to Thracian fields." Christiadum = Christianorum, Christians. In fines Thracios: afar, to the remotest regions.

PROPER OF SAINTS

2. "And uniting the armies of kings under the banner of the Cross, deliver Jerusalem from bondage, and as an avenger of innocent blood, utterly destroy the hostile power (of the Turks)." Solymæ, poetical form of Hierosolyma, orum, Jerusalem.

3. "Thou, our pillar of strength, our illustrious ornament, behold the benevolent disposition of our hearts; graciously accept the prayers of Rome, who in a loving manner sings thy praises and honors thee."

O HIGHEST Hope of mortals,
Blest Light of Saints above,
O Jesu, on whose boyhood
Home smiled with kindly love;

And thou whose bosom nursed
Him,
O Mary, highly graced,
Whose breast gave milk to Jesus,
Whose arms thy God embraced;

And thou of all men chosen
To guard the Virgin's fame,
To whom God's Son refused not
A Father's gracious name;

Born for the nation's healing,
Of Jesse's lineage high,
Behold the suppliants kneeling,
O hear the sinners' cry!

The sun returned to evening,
Dusks all the twilight air:
We, lingering here before you,
Pour out our heartfelt prayer.

While endless ages run.

AUTHOR: Pope Leo XIII (1810-1903). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION from the Marquess of Bute's Roman Breviary. There are three translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers on the Feast of the Holy Family.

1. "O blessed Light of the Saints, and supreme hope of mortals, O Jesus, upon whose birth domestic affection smiled;" Cui . . . orto.

2. "O Mary, rich in grace, thou alone wast able to nourish Jesus at thy chaste breast, giving Him kisses with thy milk;"

3. "And thou, of the ancient fathers, the chosen guardian of the Virgin, whom the Divine Child did call by the sweet name of Father,"

4. "Both having sprung from the noble root of Jesse, for the salvation of mankind, hearken to us, your suppliants, who stand at your altars." De stirpe Jesse: Et egredietur virga de radice Jesse, et flos de radice ejus ascendet (Is. 11, 1). Jesse was the father of David. Both Mary and Joseph were of the house of David.

5. "When the sun declining towards evening takes away from things their beauty, we remaining here pour forth our prayers from the bottom of our hearts." Hic, viz., in the church.

6. "The grace of every virtue with which your home abounded, vouchsafe that we too may be able to reproduce the same in our home lives." Constr.: Ut detur, nos hanc gratiam referre posse in moribus nostris domesticis.

AUTHOR: Pope Leo XIII (1810-1903). METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION by Monsignor Henry. There are two translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of the Holy Family.

1. "The sacred temples are already resplendent with lamps; the altar is wreathed round with garlands, and in loving honor vessels of incense smoke and emit a pleasant odor." Acerra, an incense-box, a censer.

2. "Would it not be pleasing to celebrate in song the royal birth of the Son from the sovereign Father? And to sing of the house of David and of the illustrious names of that ancient family?" Ortus, pl., both the temporal and the eternal birth of the Son.

3. "To us it is more agreeable to call to mind the little house at Nazareth, and the simple mode of life therein; more agreeable to relate in song the hidden life of Jesus."

4. "As a wanderer, under the guidance of an Angel, suffering much, the Child quickly returns from the distant banks of the Nile and is safe in His father's house." Paterno refers to St. Joseph, His foster-father.

5. "Jesus grows up in His hidden life, working faithfully at the same humble profession as St. Joseph; and of His own accord He devotes Himself to the profession of carpentering."

6. "May perspiration moisten My limbs," He said, "before they become wet with My Blood poured forth; this toil must also be suffered in expiating the sins of the human race." Pœnam luere, to suffer, undergo punishment.

7. "The loving Mother sits beside her beloved Son; the good bride, beside her spouse, happy if she can lighten the labors of the weary with affectionate attention."

8. "O ye who have endured pains and toil, who were not unacquainted with misfortune, help the poor whom dire poverty oppresses in their struggle against necessitous conditions." This and the following stanza call to mind Pope Leo's great Encyclical Rerum novarum which treats of the relations between capital and labor (1891).

9. "Banish from men pride, with which ample wealth bedecks itself; grant us equanimity in the affairs of life: behold with a benign countenance all who invoke the Most High." Columen, lit., a height; heaven.

10. "Praise be to Thee, O Jesus, who givest the holy precepts of life, who reignest with the sovereign Father and the Holy Spirit.

AUTHOR: UNKNOWN. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Archbishop Bagshawe; there are no other translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of the Blessed Virgin Mary Immaculate at Lourdes.

This Feast was authorized by Pope Leo XIII, and was extended to the entire Church by Pope Pius X, in 1907. The Office with its three proper hymns appeared only recently in the Breviary.

The hymns are translated by Archbishop Bagshawe, in his Breviary Hymns and Missal Sequences. With the exception of the hymn for Matins they are also translated by the Benedictines of Stanbrook, in their The Day Hours of the Church.

To understand many allusions in these hymns, the article on Lourdes, in the Cath. Encycl. should be consulted. This is especially true of the hymn Omnis expertem.

1. "We praise thee with jubilation, O stainless Mother of God; for our praises, graciously bestow upon us thy favor."

2. "We guilty descendants of Adam are brought forth a sin-infected people; thou alone, O Virgin, we believe art free from our first father's infection." Crederis, passive, thou art believed. The dogma of the Immaculate Conception was proclaimed by Pope Pius IX, Dec. 8, 1854. Read the article on Immaculate Conception, in the Cath. Encycl.

3. "Thou dost crush with thy heel the head of the envious dragon, and dost alone preserve the glory of a stainless origin." Vestigio: lit., a footprint; that part of the foot which makes a print—the sole. It is here used in the sense of calcaneum, the heel. Ipsa conteret caput tuum, et tu insidiaberis calcaneo ejus (Gen. 3, 15).

4. "O thou, the glory of the human race, who takest away the reproach of Eve, protect thy suppliants, and encourage us who waver."

5. "Do thou mightily frustrate the cunning and the assaults of the old serpent, and through thee may we enjoy the everlasting joys of heaven."

In noctis umbra plebs tua
Te, Virgo, supplex invocat.

O ROSY dawn! that dost proclaim
Salvation's happy day,
To thee, O Virgin, 'mid night's shades,
Thy people humbly pray.

² Torrens nefastis fluctibus
Cunctos trahens voragine,
Leni residit æquore
Cum transit Arca fœderis.

The torrent, that engulfs all those Within its whirlpool drawn,
Rests calm as o'er its softened wave
The ark of God is borne.

³ Dum torret arescens humus,
Tu rore sola spargeris;

The serpent rears his head aloft
Disgorging poisoned spleen;
But thou his proud, inflated head
Dost crush with power as Queen.

⁵ Mater benigna, respice
Fletus precesque supplicum,
Et dimicantes tartari
Victrix tuere ab hostibus.

O loving Mother, hear our prayer,
As suppliant we cry;
Protect us in our strife with hell
Who dost its power defy.

⁶ Jesu, tibi sit gloria,
Qui natus es de Virgine,
Cum Patre, et almo Spiritu,
In sempiterna sæcula.

O Jesu, born of Virgin bright,
All glory be to Thee,
With Father and with Paraclete,
Through all eternity.

APPARITION OF THE BLESSED VIRGIN

AUTHOR: Unknown. METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by the Benedictines of Stanbrook. There are two translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds. See the note on the preceding hymn.

1. "O dawn that goeth before the sun, joyous herald of our salvation, thy people, O Virgin, suppliantly invoke thee amid the shades of night." Mary was the dawn that preceded the rising Sun of Justice.

2. "The torrent with its inauspicious waves which draws all men into the whirlpool, subsides into a placid sea while the Ark of the Covenant is passing." Arca fœderis, Ark of the Covenant (Litany); for an explanation of this title of our Blessed Lady, see the last paragraph of the article on Ark, in the Cath. Encycl. The Ark of the Covenant was the most sacred object the Israelites possessed, and it was the material symbol of the Divine presence (cf. Exod. 25, 10-22; Josue 3-4).

3. "When the dry earth is parched, thou alone art besprinkled with dew; when the earth on every side is wet with dew, thou alone dost remain untouched" (cf. Judges 6, 37).

4. "The serpent vomiting forth his fatal poison lifts his head, but thou unconquered (Maid) dost crush the swollen head of the dragon." (Cf. Gen. 3, 4-15).

5. "O loving Mother, behold the tears and prayers of thy suppliants, and victoriously defend those in battle with the hosts of hell."

1. "The supreme teacher of faith solemnly affirms that Mary is free from all stain; the faithful everywhere rejoicing celebrate the triumph of the Virgin." Summus magister: Pope Pius IX, who proclaimed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, Dec. 8, 1854.

2. "The Virgin revealing herself in all comeliness to an humble maid reassures the trembling girl, and with sacred lips declares herself to have been conceived without sin." The lowly maid to whom the Blessed Virgin appeared on eighteen different occasions was a fourteen-year-old girl, Bernadette Soubiroux. On one occasion she revealed her identity saying: "I am the Immaculate Conception."

3. "O fortunate grotto, honored by the apparition of the Blessed Mother! O hallowed rock, whence living waters in full stream gush forth!" The reference is to the mysterious spring from which flows the wonder-working water of Lourdes.

4. "Hither in troops do pious pilgrims come from our own country; hither from the foreign lands suppliant pilgrims come, and implore the aid of the powerful Virgin." Huc: hither, to Lourdes in France. Nearly five million pilgrims, in 5,297 pilgrimages visited Lourdes from 1867 to 1908.

5. "The Mother receives the tears of the petitioners and grants to the afflicted the desired health; having obtained their wish the pilgrims return to their own countries." Precantum for precantium.

6. "O Virgin, thou who dost compassionate the misfortunes of thy suppliants, ever alleviate our sufferings and obtain for the afflicted the blessed joys of eternal life."

THE SEVEN HOLY FOUNDERS

(1892). LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins. With the exception of the hymn Matris sub almæ numine, the five hymns formerly in use on the Feast of the Seven Founders have been omitted from the latest editions of the Breviary. The five hymns were translated by Archbishop Bagshawe and Father Wallace, O.S.B. Julian's Dictionary of Hymnology mentions no translations of the hymns in honor of the Seven Holy Founders. Read the article on Servites, Order of, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "While wars were raging and blood-stained cities groaned with fratricidal carnage, the Virgin appeared ever manifesting the new gifts of a mother." Bella: The bloody feuds and dissensions among the Italian cities from the 11th to the 13th century are familiar to the student of history. St. Alexis, the last of the Seven Founders, died in 1310.

2. "Behold, in her grief, she calls unto herself seven faithful servants that they might recall to mind the sufferings which Jesus endured, and which she, the sharer of His sufferings, endured beneath the Cross of her Son." The object of the Servite Order is to preach everywhere compassion for the sufferings of Jesus crucified and of Mary desolate, as well as hatred for sin, the accursed cause of them both (cf. Servite Manual, p. xiv).

3. "Without hesitation they obey their Lady's call: spurning their stately palaces and wealth, they withdraw afar from the city into the hidden recesses of Mount Senario." The Blessed Virgin first appeared to the Seven Holy Founders in 1233. She exhorted them to leave the world and dedicate themselves, under her auspices, to the service of God. This they did without delay.

4. "Here they afflict their bodies with dire punishments, atoning for the sins of guilty men: here by their prayers and by their abundant tears they avert the anger of God."

5. "The Mother greatly encourages them and tells them that they should wear a garb indicative of mourning; the pious undertakings of the holy company prosper; wondrous things become manifest." Mira, miracles.

6. "A young vine becoming green in winter proclaims the glory of the Fathers: children unweaned proclaim them by name to be Mary's own Servants." The miracle of the vine occurred in March while the mountain was still covered with hoar frost. The vine which had been planted the preceding year, grew miraculously in a single night, and was covered at once with foliage, flowers, and fruit—a symbol of the speedy increase of their little community as was revealed to the bishop of Florence. Puelli: On two different occasions infants cried out in the street: "Behold the servants of Mary."

AUTHOR: Vincent Tarozzi, 19th cent. METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION by Charles Kegan Paul. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Seven Holy Founders.

1. "The Fathers spent their lives in obscurity,—yet as seven lilies of snow-white beauty they seemed to Peter to shine—well pleasing to the Virgin high exalted." Petro: St. Peter of Verona saw in a vision a mountain covered with flowers, among which were seven lilies, dazzling white, of exquisite perfume. Mary herself explained the vision—the flowers were the Religious on Mount Senario, the seven lilies were the Seven Founders.

2. "And now divine charity impelling them, they traverse cities and wander everywhere, if perchance they might be able to fix the Sorrows of the Mother in the souls of all."

3. "By this means they are able to restrain blind passions; they unite (in the bonds of love) fierce hearts ignorant of peace; the words of the pious preachers raise up the dejected and recall sinners."

4. "At last the Virgin leading forth her servants accompanies them to the heavenly regions, and with jeweled garlands she adorns her servants forever blessed."

5. "O may they now hear the sighs of those assembled in prayer; may they behold their difficult labors; and may they with loving inspirations be favorable to our prayers."

103

Matris sub almæ

MATRIS sub almæ numine
Septena proles nascitur:
Ipsa vocante, ad arduum
Tendit Senari verticem.

BY Mary's inspiration led,
A sevenfold offspring comes to light;
At Mary's call away they sped
To Mount Senario's rugged height.

PROPER OF SAINTS

² Quos terra fructus proferet
Dum sacra proles germinat,
Uvis repente turgitis
Onusta vitis præmonet.

What fruits of grace the earth shall bear
When they have sown their seeds
divine!
Christ's vine shall bud with clusters rare,
Empurpled with the ruddy wine.

³ Virtute claros nobili
Mors sancta cælo consecrat:
Tenent olympi limina
Servi fideles Virginis.

A holy death to heaven speeds
The souls with virtue's glory crowned;
When Mary for her servants
pleads,
Heaven's blessed portals they have found.

⁴ Cohors beata Numinis
Regno potita respice
Quos hinc recedens fraudibus
Cinctos relinquis hostium.

O happy souls who now obtain
The Kingdom, and the scepter
bear!
Look down on us who still remain
Where Satan spreads his subtle snare.

⁵ Ergo, per almæ vulnera
Matris rogamus supplices,
Mentis tenebras disjice,
Cordis procellas comprime.

Therefore on bended knee we pray,
For sake of Mary's bitter grief;
Chase darkness from our mind
away,
And give our troubled hearts relief.

⁶ Tu nos, beata Trinitas,
Perfunde sancto robore,
Possimus ut feliciter
Exempla patrum subsequi.

And Thou, O Trinity Divine!
Confirm us in Thy holy grace!
That so we may our hearts incline
To walk in these Thy servants' ways.

1. "Under the fostering care of the Blessed Mother, a sevenfold progeny comes into being: she calls them, and they direct their steps to the lofty summit of Mount Senario." Proles is the subject of nascitur and tendit.

2. "The vine suddenly laden with bursting clusters foreshadows what rich fruits the earth shall produce when this sacred progeny expands." The miraculous vine is referred to in Hymn 101.

3. "A holy death doth consecrate to God those rendered illustrious by great virtue: the faithful servants of the Virgin possess mansions in heaven."

4. "O blessed band who have obtained possession of the Kingdom of God; departing hence, look down on those whom you leave behind, surrounded by the snares of enemies."

5. "Suppliantly, therefore, we ask through the wounds of a loving Mother,—dispel the darkness of our minds, and restrain the passions of our souls."

AUTHOR: UNKNOWN, 17th cent. METER: Asclepiadic and Glyconic. TRANSLATION by Father Potter. There are seven translations. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn on the Feast of St. Joseph. Of the three hymns given here for the Feast of St. Joseph, the first two are used also in the office of the Solemnity of St. Joseph, which is celebrated on the Wednesday before the third Sunday after Easter.

1. "May the hosts of heavenly spirits praise thee, O Joseph; may all the choirs of Christendom resound with thy name, thou who, renowned for merits, wast united in chaste wedlock to the glorious Virgin."

2. "When thou didst wonder at thy bride grown great with her august Child, sorely wert thou afflicted with doubt; but an Angel taught thee that the Child was conceived by a breath of the Holy Spirit." (Cf. Matt. 1, 18-21). Flaminis: flamen, from flo 1, to blow, just as spiritus is from spiro, to blow.

3. "Thou dost embrace the new-born Lord, and dost follow Him, a fugitive, to remote parts of Egypt: lost in

AUTHOR: UNKNOWN, 17th cent. METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION by Alan G. McDougall. There are six translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of St. Joseph.

1. "Thou art, O Joseph, the glory of the Blessed, the sure hope of our life, and the pillar of the world: graciously accept the praises we now joyfully sing to thee."

2. "The Creator of the world appointed thee the spouse of the most pure Virgin, and He willed that thou be called the father of the Word; and He made thee a minister of salvation." Ministrum, instrument.

3. "Rejoicing thou didst behold the Redeemer lying in the stable, Him whose advent the choir of prophets had foretold; and thou didst humbly adore the new-born God."

4. "God, the King of kings, and the Ruler of the world, at whose nod the hosts of hell tremble, whom the heavens prostrate serve, makes Himself subject to thee." Se subdit: Et erat subditus illis (Luke 2, 51).

5. "Never-ending praise be to the most high Trinity who didst bestow upon thee heavenly honors, and may the same grant us, through thy merits, the joys of a blessed life."

Surgentis vitii, non dubios agens
Per vestigia gressus,
Quo veri via dirigit!

Every rising motion checked
Which might lead thy heart astray,
How thou didst thy course direct
Whither virtue showed the way.

⁴ Sit rerum Domino jugis honor

AUTHOR: Pope Urban VIII (1568-1644). METER: Lines 1, 2 of each stanza, Asclepiadic; line 4 is Glyconic; line 3 is the same as line 4 but catalectic. This and the following hymn are the only hymns in the Breviary written in this meter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Lauds. Read the article on St. Hermengild, in the Cath.

ST. HERMENGILD

Encycl. Note the spelling—Hermengild or Hermenegild.

1. "Brave Hermengild, shining light for the throne of Spain, the glory of the martyrs whom love for Christ hath enrolled among the august choirs of heaven." St. Hermengild was martyred in 585.

2. "How persistently didst thou persevere in the allegiance promised to God! Nothing was more dear to thee than this, and thou didst cautiously avoid hurtful things that please." Constr.: Nil potius tibi proponis quo = quam illud, sc. obsequium. Noxia, earthly honors, etc.

3. "How well thou didst restrain the passions which furnish food for incipient vice, making no hesitating steps along the path whither the way of truth directs!"

4. "To the Father, the Lord of creation, be perpetual honor; may the mouths of Thy suppliants praise the Son, and let them glorify with sovereign praise the Holy Spirit."

PROPER OF SAINTS

This is a continuation of the preceding hymn. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of St. Hermengild.

1. "By no blandishments could thy father seduce thee, nor wert thou captivated by the leisure of a life of affluence, nor by the sparkling of gems, nor by the desire of reigning."

2. "The sharp edge of the sword, with dire threats, did not terrify thee, nor did the destructive rage of the executioner; for thou didst prefer the abiding joys of the Blessed to transitory ones."

3. "Do thou now from the mansions of the Blessed graciously protect us, and with willing ear receive our prayers, while we celebrate in song the martyr's palm obtained by thy death."

Martyr Dei Venantius

MARTYR Dei Venantius,
Lux et decus Camertium,
Tortore victo et iudice,
Lætus triumphum concinit.

VENANTIUS, hail! God's Martyr bright,
Thy country's honor and her light;
Who didst with joy thy triumph
sing,
Thy judge and tortures conquering.

² Annis puer, post vincula,
Post carceres, post verbera,
Longa fame frementibus
Cibus datur lionibus.

A child in years, he heeds no pain,
Nor dungeon damp, nor galling chain;
The tender youth for food is thrown
To lions, mad with hunger grown.

³ Sed ejus innocentiae
Parcit leonum immanitas,
Pedesque lambunt Martyris,
Iræ famisque immemores.

O wondrous sight! the beasts of prey
Their food reject, and turn away;
Then tamely lick the Martyr's feet,
A tribute to his virtue meet.

Then downwards hung, his mouth exposed
To clouds of smoke beneath disposed,
Whilst with slow torches, burning clear,
His naked breasts and sides they sear.

⁵ Sit laus Patri, sit Filio,
Tibique sancte Spiritus:
Da per preces Venantii
Beata nobis gaudia.

Praise to the Father, and the Son,
And Holy Spirit, Three in One;
Oh! grant that through this Martyr's prayer,
Your blissful joy we all may share.

TRANSLATION by Father Potter. There are four translations.
LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers. St. Venantius was martyred at the age of fifteen, in the year 250.

1. "Venantius, the Martyr of God, the light and glory of the people of Camarino, having triumphed over torturer and judge, now joyfully blends his voice with the song of triumph." Camertium, gen. pl. Camertes, ium, the inhabitants of Camerino, which was known in ancient times as Camers. Abp. Bagshawe renders this line: "Who Latium light and glory brings." As a matter of fact Camerino is not in Latium but in Umbria some ninety miles northeast of Rome. Father Caswall's translation in his Lyra Catholica is scarcely less happy: "Camertium's light, her joy and prize."

2. "A child in years, after chains and imprisonment and stripes, he is given as food to lions raging from long hunger."

3. "But the ferocity of the lions spares his innocence, and unmindful of their rage and hunger they lick the Martyr's feet."

4. "With head hung downward he is forced to inhale smoke, and a flaming torch scorches his ribs and his flesh on either side." Viscera is used to signify the flesh lying under the skin.

5. "Be praise to the Father, and the Son, and to Thee,

PROPER OF SAINTS

TO be the Lamb's celestial bride
Is Juliana's one desire;
For this she quits her father's
home,
And leads the sacred virgin choir.

By day, by night, she mourns her Spouse
Nailed to the Cross, with ceaseless
tears,
Till in herself, through very grief,
The image of that Spouse appears.

Like Him, all wounds, she kneels transfixed
Before the Virgin-Mother's shrine;
And still the more she weeps, the more Mounts up the flame of love
divine.

That love so deep the Lord repaid
His handmaid on her dying bed;
When, with the Food of heavenly life,
By miracle her soul He fed.

AUTHOR: Francesco Maria Lorenzini (1680-1743).
METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall.
There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins. St. Juliana was the foundress of the Third Order of Servites. She died in the year 1341.

1. "When thou, O Juliana, didst seek the nuptials of the Heavenly Lamb, thou didst abandon thy father's house and lead a choir of virgins." For an explanation of the term
"Nuptials of the Heavenly Lamb," see the article on Marriage, Mystical, in the Cath. Encycl.

2. "By day and night thou didst bewail thy Spouse fastened to the Cross, till pierced with a sword of sorrow thou didst bear the image of thy Spouse." Cuspide, a sharp point.

3. "Yea, with a sevenfold wound thou didst weep at the feet of the Mother of God, but by thy tears, the charity infused increased and rendered more keen the poignancy (flammas) of thy grief." Septiformi vulnere: The seven Sorrows of our Blessed Mother. Flammas, sc. doloris.
Tears of sorrow increase the love of God in our hearts and thereby render the greatest sorrows more endurable.

4. "Hence it was that exhausted by the approach of death, in no ordinary manner did God console and nourish thee, spreading out before thee Heavenly Food." There is reference in this stanza to a miraculous image found on the Saint's breast after her death. "Being unable to receive Holy Communion because of constant vomiting, she requested the priest to spread a corporal on her breast and lay the Host on it. Shortly afterwards the Host disappeared and Juliana expired, and the image of a cross, such as had been on the Host, was found on her breast" (Cath. Encycl.).

5. "Eternal Creator of the world, Eternal Son equal to the Father, and Spirit equal to both: to Thee alone (O Trinity) be glory."

AUTHOR: Paul the Deacon (720-799). METER: Sapphic

NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST

and Adonic. TRANSLATION, a cento from The Hymner, based on a translation by W. J. Blew, in the meter of the original. There are about twenty translations of this beautiful hymn. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers. The hymns given below for Matins and Lauds are parts of this hymn. The translations are in blank verse. In reading care should be taken to observe the caesura which in Sapphic verse occurs generally after the fifth syllable. There is an article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl., and another on Paulus Diaconus its author.

1. "That thy servants may be able to sing thy deeds of wonder with pleasant voices, remove, O holy John, the guilt of our sin-polluted lips." Laxis fibris is intended to express a good condition of the voice, freedom from hoarseness, etc., "with vocal cords well strung." St. John is invoked for ailments of the throat, and he is even considered a special patron of singers. The Saint's miraculous birth is recorded in detail in Luke 1. The whole chapter should be read. Zachary, the father of the Precursor, lost his voice on account of his disbelief in the Angel's promise (Luke 1, 19), and again "his tongue was loosed" (laxis fibris) at the naming of John (Luke 1, 64). This stanza is of special interest to musicians as the syllables marked in italics were those chosen by Guido of Arezzo (990-1050) for the syllabic naming of the notes Ut, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La. The famuli mentioned in this stanza are the choir who (as Zachary recovered his voice at the naming of John) would implore their patron to endow them with voices worthy of singing the praises of one so illustrious.

2. "A messenger from highest heaven discloses in due order to thy father that thou wouldst be born great, thy name, and the whole course of the life thou wouldst lead." Nuntius, the Archangel Gabriel (Luke 1, 19). Nomen, John (Luke 1, 13). Seriem vitæ gerendæ (cf. Luke 1, 15-17).

3. "He (Zachary) doubtful of the heavenly promise lost the power of ready speech; but when born, thou didst restore the organs of the lost voice." The disbelief of Zachary is recorded in Luke 1, 18; the penalty in verse 20; the restoration of the power of speech in verse 64.

PROPER OF SAINTS

4. "Still resting in the concealed abode of the womb, thou didst perceive thy King reposing in His chamber: thereupon both parents by the merits of their son revealed hidden things." The last two lines of this stanza are obscure. In the translation given above the two parents are Zachary and Elisabeth; and the mysteries they uttered are Elisabeth's "Blessed art thou among women," etc. (Luke 1, 42-45), and Zachary's "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel," etc. (Luke 68-79). However, there is no lack of translators who ignore the masculine uterque and the singular nati and translate quite as literally as Archbishop Bagshawe:

"The two Mothers then, on account of their Babes, Things hidden unfold."

In this interpretation the two parents are Mary and Elisabeth, and the whole stanza gives us a picture of the Visitation. The "hidden things" uttered by Elisabeth are the same as those mentioned above (Luke 1, 42-45), and Our Lady replies in her incomparable Magnificat (Luke 1, 46-55). This is the better interpretation.

5. "Glory be to the Father, and to the only-begotten Son, and to Thee, O Spirit, power eternally equal to Them both, one God, forever and ever."

1. "From thy tenderest years, fleeing the throngs of men, thou didst seek the caves of the desert, lest thou stain thy life by the slightest sin of the tongue." (Cf. Luke 1, 80.)

2. "The camel furnished the rough covering for thy sacred members; thy girdle, the sheep provided; the fountain furnished thy drink, and honey together with locusts thy food." Præbuit, this is the predicate of the whole stanza. Compare this stanza with Matt. 3, 4.

3. "The rest of the Prophets only foretold with prophetic spirit the Light that was to come: but thou with thy finger didst point out Him who taketh away the sins of the world." Indice prodis: Ecce agnus Dei, ecce qui tollit peccatum mundi (John 1, 29).

4. "Throughout the space of the wide world there was no one born who was more holy than John, who was deemed

NATIVITY OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST

TRANSLATION by M. J. Blacker and G. H. Palmer. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds.

1. "O thrice happy thou, and of exalted merit, knowing no stain upon thy snow-white purity; thou mightiest of martyrs, friend of solitude, greatest of prophets." Nemorum, nemus, a grove, forest, a place of solitude: some texts have eremi; eremus, desert, wilderness, solitude.

2. "Crowns enriched with thrice tenfold increase adorn some; others a double crown adorns; but a triple crown with fruitage heaped up with a hundred twinings adorns thee." Constr.: Serta (crowns, garlands) aucta ter denis crementis (increase, fruit) coronat alios, quosdam duplicata serta coronant; te ornant trina fructu cumulata serta centum nexibus. The stanza plainly refers to the Parable of the Sower, some of whose seed falling on good ground "brought forth fruit, some an hundredfold, some sixtyfold, and some thirtyfold" (Matt. 13, 8). Our Lord Himself explains the meaning of this parable (Matt. 13, 18-23). The triple crown ascribed to St. John is probably that referred to in the preceding stanza, viz., that of martyr, hermit, and prophet. Note the following:

Some crowns with glory thirtyfold are shining:
Others, a double flower and fruit combining:
Thy trinal chaplet bears an intertwining Hundredfold fruitage.

—H. T. Henry.

3. "Now rendered powerful by thy rich merits, pluck out the stony hardness of our hearts, make plain the rough way, and make straight the crooked paths." (Cf. Luke 3, 4-5.)

4. "So that the loving Creator and Redeemer of the world, coming, may becomingly condescend to direct His blessed footsteps into our hearts free from all stain of sin."

5. "With songs of praise let the heavenly citizens extol Thee, God, One and Three; suppliantly we pray for pardon: spare Thy redeemed ones."

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Elpis, the wife of the philosopher Boethius. She died about 493. METER: Iambic trimeter. TRANSLATION by Msgr. Canon L. Hall. First line of Original Text: Aurea luce et decore roseo. The hymn was considerably altered by the revisers under Pope Urban VIII, in 1632. Including both texts there are at least twelve translations. The complete hymn consists of six stanzas, including the doxology. The order of the stanzas in the complete hymn is as follows: Decora lux; Mundi magister; Beate Pastor Petre; Egregie Doctor Paule; O Roma felix; Sit Trinitati. Note the use made of parts of this hymn on the Feasts of St. Peter's Chair (hymn 90), and of the Conversion of St. Paul (hymn 91).

SS. PETER AND PAUL

1. "The beauteous Light of Eternity hath flooded with blissful fires this golden day which crowns the Princes of the Apostles, and opens unto the guilty a free way to heaven." God is "the beauteous Light of Eternity." The "blessed fires" are His graces and blessings. The "golden day" is the festival of the two Apostles.

2. "The teacher of the world, and the door-keeper of heaven, fathers of Rome, and judges of the nations, the one triumphant over death by the sword, the other by the Cross; now laurel-crowned they sit in the assembly of eternal life." Mundi Magister, St. Paul (Cf. Rom. 11, 13); Cæli Janitor, St. Peter (Cf. Matt. 16, 19). Arbitri, judges (Cf. Matt. 19, 28). Constr.: Ille (Paulus) victor per necem ensis, hic (Petrus) per necem crucis possident laureati senatum vitæ.

3. "O happy Rome, who art consecrated by the glorious blood of two Princes; empurpled by the blood of these, thou alone dost surpass all other beauties of the world."

4. "To the Trinity in Unity that doth govern all throughout eternity, be endless glory, honor, power, and jubilation."

This is a continuation of the preceding hymn. TRANSLATION by Father Caswell. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul. See Hymns 90 and 91.

1. "O blessed shepherd Peter, thou to whom was given the power to open heaven, and, opened, to close it, mercifully receive the prayers of thy suppliants, and by thy word unloose the chains of their sins." Precantum for precantium. This stanza is a metrical rendering of Matt. 16, 19: Et tibi dabo claves regni cælorum. Et quodcumque ligaveris super terram, erit ligatum et in cælis: et quodcumque solveris super terram, erit solutum et in cælis.

2. "Illustrious teacher Paul, mould thou our lives, and draw with thee to heaven our hearts, till faith now veiled beholds the bright noonday, and, like the sun, charity alone doth reign." St. Paul was taken up "even to the third heaven," i.e., to the abode of the Angels and Saints (Cf. II Cor. 12, 1-4). The same illustrious Doctor teaches us that—"We see now through a glass in a dark manner" (i.e., by faith): "but then face to face" (I Cor. 13, 12). And again, that charity remains forever—"never falleth away" (I Cor. 13, 8) though in the next world faith shall pass into vision, and hope into the enjoyment of God.

- WITH glad and joyous strains
now let each street resound,
And let the laurel wreath each
Christian brow entwine;
With torches waving bright, let old and young go forth,
And swell the train in solemn line.
- Whilst we with bitter tears, with sighs and grief profound,
Wail o'er the saving Blood, poured forth upon the Tree,
Oh, deeply let us muse, and count
the heavy price,
Which Christ hath paid to make us free.
- The primal man of old, who fell by serpent's guile,
Brought death and many woes
upon his fallen race;
But our New Adam, Christ, new life unto us gave,
And brought to all ne'er-ending

- To heaven's highest height, the wailing cry went up
Of Him, who hung in pain, God's own eternal Son;
His saving, priceless Blood, His Father's wrath appeased,
And for His sons full pardon won.
- Whoe'er in that pure Blood his guilty soul shall wash,
Shall from his stains be freed—be made as roses bright—Shall vie with Angels pure, shall please his King and Lord,
And precious shine in His glad sight.

AUTHOR: UNKNOWN, 17th cent. METER: Asclepiadic and Glyconic. TRANSLATION by Father Potter. There are five translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers. Read the article on Precious Blood, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Let the streets re-echo with festive song, let the people manifest joy in their countenances, let young and old arrayed in due order proceed with flaming torches." Comptum (mostly pl.) crossroads; here, streets, ways.

2. "While mindful of the fact we worship the Blood which, from many a wound, the dying Christ shed upon the cruel Tree, it behooves us to shed at least tears." Facti, fact, deed, viz., the suffering and death of Christ.

3. "Grave loss befell the human race by the sin of the old Adam. The sinlessness and love of the new Adam have restored life to all." St. Paul draws a parallel between Christ and Adam (cf. Rom. 5, 12-21).

4. "If the Father heard from heaven the loud cry of His expiring Son; far more ought He be appeased by His Blood, and grant us pardon."

5. "Whoever washeth his robe in this Blood, washeth away its stains and gaineth a roseate beauty whereby he forthwith becometh like unto the Angels, and pleasing to the King." He who cleanses his soul by Baptism and Penance, which derive their efficacy from Christ's atonement, shall obtain the gift of sanctifying grace (roseum decus) which makes him pleasing to God.

THE MOST PRECIOUS BLOOD

6. "Henceforth let no unstable one withdraw himself from the straight path, but let the final goal be touched. God who aideth us on the way bestoweth a noble prize."

7. "Almighty Father, be Thou propitious to us, so that those whom Thou didst purchase by the Blood of Thine only-begotten Son, and whom Thou dost re-create in the Holy Spirit, those same mayest Thou one day transfer to the heights of heaven." Unigena, æ, adj. = unigenitus, only, only-begotten; it here modifies Filii. Placido, calm, gentle, peaceful.

AUTHOR: Unknown, 17th cent. METER: Trochaic tetrameter: the lines are here divided at the caesura. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of the Most Precious Blood.

1. "The just wrath of the Creator did once submerge the sinful world beneath an avenging rain of waters, Noe being safe in the Ark; finally, however, the wondrous power of love purified the world with Blood." Note the two abl. absol. constructions in lines 2 and 4: "A flood of water being the avenger" . . . "Noe the while being safe in the ark."

2. "Watered by such salubrious rain, the happy earth which formerly abounded with thorns, now buds forth flowers; and (the bitterness of) wormwood hath been changed into the sweetness of nectar." Absynthium, absinth, bitter herbs. Inque: Constr.: Et absynthia transierunt in saporem nectaris. When Adam fell, God cursed the earth and henceforth it was to bring forth thorns and thistles (cf. Gen. 3, 17-19).

3. "Forthwith the dire serpent laid aside his baneful poison, and the bloodthirsty ferocity of the brute creation subsided: such was the victory of the gentle wounded Lamb." Anguis, the devil.

4. "O the inscrutable depth of heavenly wisdom! O the ineffable sweetness of that loving Heart! A slave was worthy of death, a King of infinite goodness suffered the punishment!" Scientiæ: O altitudo divitiarum sapientiæ et scientiæ Dei: quam incomprehensibilia sunt judicia ejus, et investigabiles viæ ejus (Rom. 11, 33).

5. "When by our sins we provoke the vengeance of the Judge, may we then be protected by the presence of this eloquent Blood: then may the hosts of threatening evils depart." Loquentis, pleading.

6. "O Thou who art the Prince and august source of eternal salvation, and who dost possess the blessed kingdom with the Father and the Holy Spirit, may the ransomed world praise Thee, preserving Thy acceptable gifts."

SS. CYRIL AND METHODIUS

1. "Hail, ye Wounds of Christ, pledges of boundless love, whence unfailing streams of crimson Blood flow forth."

2. "In splendor ye surpass the stars; in fragrance, roses and balsam; in value, Indian jems; in sweetness, honey." Favus, i, honeycomb, honey.

3. "Through you stands open for our hearts a most inviting place of refuge, whereto the rage of threatening enemies can never penetrate."

4. "What countless stripes did the naked Jesus receive in the judgment hall! How many drops of Blood did His lacerated skin let fall on every side!"

5. "O grief! a thorny crown pierces His lovely brow; nails with blunt points pierce His feet and hands."

6. "But after He had lovingly and of His own free will given up the ghost, a lance transfixed His breast, and a twofold stream sprang forth." Geminus liquor, Blood and Water (cf. John 19, 34).

7. "That the Redemption might be complete, Jesus is pressed beneath the wine-press, and, all unmindful of Himself, He reserves for Himself none of His Blood." The term "wine-press" is frequently used in the Scriptures in a figurative sense signifying destruction, tribulation, etc. (cf. Is. 63, 1-3; Apoc. 19, 11-15).

8. "Come, all ye whom the deadly stain of sin hath infected; whoever washes himself in this saving bath shall be made clean."

9. "Thanks are due to Him who sitteth at the right hand of the sovereign Father, to Him who hath redeemed us by His Blood, and strengthened us by the Holy Spirit."

to the whole Church in 1880, at which time the hymns were probably written. METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION by the Benedictines of Stanbrook. There are three translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins.

1. "Sing, O ye faithful, the two athletes admitted to the resplendent abodes of heaven; sing the two pillars and the glory of the Slavonic race." Cyril (827-869) and Methodius (826-885) were brothers, born of noble parents in Thessalonica. Both were consecrated bishops. Read their biography in the Cath. Encycl. Columen, a pillar; fig., a support, mainstay, strength.

2. "One love united these brothers, one tender pity drew them forth from their solitude that they might hasten to bring to many the pledges of a blessed life." Eremo, from their solitude, i.e., from their monastery in Constantinople.

3. "With the light that beams resplendent in the temples above, they fill Bulgarians, Moravians, and Bohemians; they soon lead to Peter savage hordes, a numerous throng." Petro, i.e., to the Church.

4. "Wreathed with crowns well earned by your merits, may you continue to be moved by the tears of your suppliants; there is need that you, the givers, protect your former gifts to the Slavs." Cincti: In poetry cingo, and some other verbs may, in the passive, govern the accusative (the Greek acc.; cf. Zumpt's Grammar, 458). Prisca dona, faith. The Slavic races were converted in the 9th cent.; this hymn was composed at the end of the 19th.

5. "May every noble land that cries to you, preserve the splendor of an undying faith; Rome which first gave, will ever continue to give salvation." Constr.: Roma ipsa salutem princeps dedit, semper dabit salutem.

6. "O Creator and Redeemer of the human race, who dost lovingly bestow upon us all good things, to Thee be thanksgiving, to Thee be glory forever and ever."

Do Thou, O blissful Trinity,
Inflame us with Thy heav'nly fires,
And grant the sons may ever tread
The noble footsteps of their sires.

SS. CYRIL AND METHODIUS

AUTHORS and TRANSLATORS as in the preceding hymn. There are three translations. METER: Iambic dimeter. Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of SS. Cyril and Methodius.

1. "O beauteous light of your fatherland, and light benignly disposed towards the Slavonic nations, brothers, all hail! we will praise you in our yearly song of praise." Amica, adj., friendly.

2. "Whom Rome applauding receives as a mother embracing her sons, she honors them with the miter of bishops and endows them with new strength." Supply eos in the last two lines of this stanza.

3. "Ye proceed to barbarous lands to bring them Christ: as many as vain error had deceived, ye fill with the blessed light of faith."

4. "A heavenly zeal takes possession of hearts freed from sin; the horrid sight of thorns is now changed into flowers of holiness." The last two lines are to be understood in a figurative sense. After the fall of man, God cursed the earth, and it was to bring forth thorns and thistles (Gen. 3, 18). This was all changed by the Redemption, and the earth watered by the Blood of Christ would bring forth "flowers of sanctity" where hitherto only thorns abounded. This is beautifully expressed in the second stanza of Hymn 119.

5. "And now, O ye who are established in the serene abode of the Blessed, hear our suppliant prayer: preserve for God the Slavic nations."

6. "May the one fold of Christ unite those now sunk in error; may their faith, emulous of the deeds of their forefathers, bloom with even greater beauty." Æmula, adj., emulating, rivaling; constr. with the dative.

7. "Thou, O Blessed Trinity quicken us with heavenly love, and grant that the sons may follow in the illustrious footsteps of their Fathers."

AUTHOR: Pope Urban VIII (1568-1644). METER: Iambic trimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are three translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of St. Elizabeth.

1. "Wealth and royal splendor, Elizabeth, thou didst forsake, and thou didst devote thyself to the will of God: now received among the Angels thou art blessed; graciously protect us from the deceits of the enemy."

2. "Go thou before, and as a guide point out the way of salvation; we will follow: O may there be but one mind among the faithful, may every action be a good odor! The charity concealed by thy roses betokens this." St. Elizabeth was very charitable to the poor, and like a true Saint she always endeavored to conceal her charitable deeds from the eyes of men. The Breviary thus records the miracle of the roses referred to in this stanza: "In the depth of winter she changed the money she was going to distribute to the poor into roses to conceal it from the king." Almsdeeds and the prayers of the faithful are odors of sweetness, an acceptable sacrifice, pleasing to God (Philip. 4, 18; Apoc. 5, 8).

3. "O blessed charity which hath power to establish us forever in the stronghold of the stars! To Father and to Son be infinite glory, and to Thee, O Holy Spirit, be endless praise."

PATER superni luminis,

Pedes beatos ungere,
Lavare fletu, tergere
Comis, et ore lambere.

³ Adstare non timet Cruci,

Truces nec horret milites,
Pellit timorem caritas.

⁴ O vera, Christe, caritas,
Tu nostra purga crimina,
Tu corda reple gratia,
Tu redde cœli præmia.

FATHER of lights! one glance
of Thine,
Whose eyes the universe control,
Fills Magdalene with holy love,
And melts the ice within her soul.

Her precious ointment forth she brings
Upon those sacred feet to pour;
She washes them with burning
tears,
And with her hair she wipes them o'er.

Impassioned, to the Cross she clings,
Nor fears beside the tomb to stay;
Nor dreads the soldiers' savage
mien,
For love has cast all fear away.

O Christ, Thou very Love itself!
Blest hope of man, through Thee forgiven!
So touch our spirits from above,
So purify our souls for heaven.

AUTHOR: Cardinal Bellarmine, S.J. (1542-1621). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are nine translations. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn. Read the article on Mary Magdalen in the Cath. Encycl. Note the two spellings—Magdalene, Magdalen.

1. "Source of heavenly Light, when Thou lookest upon Magdalene, Thou dost excite in her the flames of love, and dispellest the icy coldness of her heart." Pater superni luminis = Christus. Christ by His suffering and death is the source of all grace (luminis).

2. "Wounded with love, she runs to anoint those sacred feet, to wash them with her tears, to wipe them with her hair, and to kiss them with her mouth." Saucia, wounded, smitten. Et stans retro secus pedes ejus, lacrymis cœpit rigare pedes ejus, et capillis capitis sui tergebat, et osculabatur pedes ejus, et unguento ungebat (Luke 7, 38).

3. "She does not fear to stand beside the Cross; in distress she remains near the sepulcher; she does not dread the savage soldiery; love banishes fear." Adstare cruci, Cf. John 19, 25. Sepulchro inhæret, Cf. Matt. 27, 61. Nec horret, Cf. John 20, 1.

4. "O Christ, true Love, wash Thou away our sins, fill our hearts with grace, and bestow upon us the rewards of heaven." Christe, vera caritas: Deus caritas est: et qui manet in caritate, in Deo manet, et Deus in eo (I John 4, 16).

5. "To the Father, and at the same time to the Son and to Thee, Holy Spirit, as has been, so be it forever, eternal glory."

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Pope St. Gregory the Great (540-604). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of St. Mary Magdalene. This hymn is a cento from a hymn of twelve stanzas beginning Magno salutis gaudio. Original Text: Nardo Maria pistico.

1. "With chaste kisses, Mary kisses the feet of God, she washes them with her tears, dries them with her hair, and, when dried, anoints them with spikenard." Vestigia, lit., footprints, the soles of the feet; here it is used for pedes. Nardus or nardum, an ointment, unguent.

Remittit, et dat præmia.

Glory, for graces manifold,
To the one only Lord;
Whose mercy doth our souls forgive,
Whose bounty doth reward.

AUTHOR: St. Odo of Cluny (879-942). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are seven translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of St. Mary Magdalene. First line of Original Text: Æterni Patris Unice.

1. "O Thou Only-Begotten of the sovereign Father, look upon us with a benign countenance, Thou who callest to the pinnacle of glory the penitent heart of Magdalene."

2. "The lost groat is again restored to the royal treasury; and the gem wiped clean from mire surpasses the stars in brilliance." For the Parable of the Lost Coin see Luke 15, 8-9. The drachma was a small coin bearing the image of the reigning king. It here represents the human soul on which is impressed the image and likeness of God. The "gem" referred to is the human soul purified by penance and so adorned with sanctifying grace that it outshines the stars in splendor.

3. "O Jesus, balm of our wounds, and sole hope of the penitent, mayest Thou, through the tears of Magdalene, wash away our sins."

4. "O most gracious Mother of God, convey us weeping descendants of Eve, from a thousand waves of life to a haven of safety." Fluctibus, storms, afflictions.

5. "To God alone be glory for His manifold graces,—to God who forgiveth the sins of sinners and bestoweth rewards."

First line of Original Text: Petrus beatus catenarum laqueos. For an account of the miraculous deliverance of St. Peter from prison read Acts 12, 3-10.

1. "Suddenly and in a wondrous manner set free, Peter at Christ's command puts off the iron chains: he the shepherd and the ruler of the flock of sheep makes known the pastures of life and the sacred springs; he guards the sheep entrusted to him, and keeps the wolves away." Ovilis, adj., of sheep.

A wondrous sign we there behold,
That knows not death nor groweth old,
Sublime, most high, that cannot fade,
That was ere earth and heaven
were made.

Here is the King the Gentiles fear,
The Jews' most mighty King is here
Promised to Abraham of yore,

TRANSLATION by Allan G. McDougall. There are twenty-four translations, nine of which are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and

Matins. This hymn is a cento from the twelfth and last poem in the Cathemerinon of Prudentius. The complete poem consists of 208 lines, and has furnished four centos for Breviary use: viz., O sola magnarum urbium (Epiphany), Audit tyrannus anxius, and Salvete flores martyrum. Read the article on Quicumque Christum quæritis, and the two articles on Transfiguration, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "All ye who seek Christ, lift up your eyes on high; there it will be permitted you to behold a token of His eternal glory." The Transfiguration of Our Lord is described in Matt. 17, 1-9; Mark 9, 1-8; Luke 9, 28-36. On Mount Thabor Our Lord granted Peter, James, and John a sign, or foretaste, of eternal glory. The Apostles were overwhelmed and rendered beside themselves by only a partial manifestation of the majesty of Christ's glorified Body.

2. "A brilliant Something we perceive that can know no end, sublime, exalted, interminable, older than heaven and chaos." By chaos is meant the confused, disordered, primitive mass out of which the universe was made.

3. "This is the King of the Gentiles, and the King of the Jewish people, who was promised to our father Abraham, and to his seed forever." Christ was styled King of the Jews by the Magi (Cf. Matt. 2, 2). Abraham was the first Patriarch and the founder of the Hebrew race (Cf. Gen. 17, 1-9; Luke 1, 55).

4. "In the presence of the prophets who had also announced Him, the Testator and Father commands us to hear and believe Him." The Prophets Moses and Elias appeared at the Transfiguration and conversed with Our Lord. The testimony of the Father is found in Matt. 17, 5. Testator: The Father is styled "testator" in reference to Ps. 2, 8: Postula a me, et dabo tibi gentes hæreditatem tuam, et possessionem tuam terminos terræ.

5. "Together with the Father and the Holy Spirit, O Jesus, eternal glory be to Thee, who dost reveal Thyself to the little ones" (Cf. Matt. 11, 25; Luke 10, 21).

AUTHOR: St. Bernard (1091-1153). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by Cardinal Newman. There are eight translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Transfiguration of Our Lord. This hymn is a cento from St. Bernard's Jesu dulcis memoria. First line of Original Text: Amor Jesu dulcissime.

1. "O Jesus, Thou loving light of souls, when Thou dost refresh our hearts, dispel the darkness of sin, and fill us with sweetness." Lux: Ego sum lux mundi (John 8, 12).

2. "How happy is he whom Thou visitest! Thou compeer at the right hand of the Father, Thou sweet light of heaven, imperceptible to the senses of the flesh." The things denied to fleshly sense are hinted at by St. Paul, who was taken up to the third heaven: Quod oculus non vidit, nec auris audivit, nec in cor hominis ascendit, quæ præparavit Deus iis, qui diligunt illum (I Cor. 2, 9).

3. "O brightness of the Father's glory, incomprehensible love, by Thy presence, bestow upon us the fullness of Thy love." Splendor: Christ is the brightness of the

PROPER OF SAINTS

Father's glory (Cf. Heb. 1, 3). This line was borrowed by the compilers of the cento in 1568, and was retained by the revisers under Urban VIII, 1632. It is the first line of Hymn 12.

Jam toto subitus

JAM toto subitus vesper eat
 polo,
Et sol attonitum præcipitet diem,
Dum sævæ recolo ludibrium
 necis,
Divinamque catastrophem.

NOW let the darkling eve
Mount suddenly on high,
The sun affrighted reave
His splendors from the sky,
While I in silence grieve
O'er the mocked agony
And the divine catastrophe.

² Spectatrix aderas supplicio
 Parens,
Malis uda, gerens cor adamantinum:
Natus funerea pendulus in cruce
Altos dum gemitus dabat.

Grief-drenched, thou dost appear
With heart of adamant,
O Mother; and dost hear
The Great Hierophant,
Upon His wooden bier
Locked in the arms of Death,
Utter in groans His parting breath.

³ Pendens ante oculos Natus, atrocibus
Sectus verberibus, Natus hiantibus
Fossus vulneribus, quot penetrantibus
Te confixit aculeis!

What lookest thou upon,
Mangled and bruised and torn?
Ah, 'tis the very Son
Thy yearning breast hath borne!
Surely, each breaking moan
And each deep-mouthèd wound
Its fellow in thy heart hath found!

⁴ Heu! sputa, alapæ, verbera,
 vulnera,
Clavi, fel, aloë, spongia, lancea,
Sitis, spina, cruor, quam varia
 pium
Cor pressere tyrannide!

Surely, the taunts and woes,
The scourge, the dripping thorn,
The spitting and the blows,
The gall, the lance, the scorn—
Surely, each torment throws
A poison-dart at thee,
Crushed by their manifold tyranny.

 Diris fixa doloribus.

Yet thou with patient mien
 Beneath His Cross dost stand,
 Nobler in this, I ween,
 Than all the martyr-band:
 A thousand deaths, O Queen,
 Upon thy spirit lie,
 Yet thou, O marvel! dost not die.

⁶ Sit summæ Triadi gloria, laus,

O Holy Trinity,
 Let earth and heaven raise
 Their song of laud to Thee
 The while my spirit prays:—

 The strength do Thou impart
 That erst upheld Thy Mother's

There are two Feasts in honor of the Seven Dolors of the Blessed Virgin. See Hymn 54. The Seven Sorrows which these Feasts commemorate are: 1. The prophecy of holy Simeon at the presentation in the Temple—"And thy own soul a sword shall pierce." 2. The flight into Egypt. 3. The loss of the Child Jesus in Jerusalem. 4. The meeting of Mary and Jesus on the way to Calvary. 5. The Crucifixion. 6. The taking down from the Cross. 7. The burial of Jesus. See the article in the Cath. Encycl. on Sorrows of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

1. "Now let the evening come suddenly upon the whole heavens, and let the astonished sun dispatch the day, while I recount the spectacle of the cruel death and the divine tragedy."

2. "Drenched with grief, thou, O Mother, wast present at the Crucifixion, bearing in thy bosom a heart of adamant, while thy Son hanging on the fatal Cross uttered deep groans." Udus, wet, moist, tearful.

3. "Before thy very eyes hung thy Son lacerated with cruel scourgings, thy Son wounded with gaping wounds;

PROPER OF SAINTS

with how many sharp, penetrating points did this transfix thee!"

4. "Alas! spittle, blows, stripes, wounds, nails, gall, aloes, sponge, lance, thirst, thorns, blood,—with what manifold tyranny do they oppress thy loving heart!"

5. "The Virgin the while stands there more noble than the martyrs: by a new wonder, O Mother, dying, thou dost not die, though transfixed by such great and dreadful sorrows."

6. "To the sovereign Trinity be glory, praise, and honor, from whom I suppliantly and with fervent prayer beg strength like the Virgin's in time of trouble."

⁴ Eja Mater, obsecramus
 Per tuas has lacrimas,
 Filiique triste funus,

WHAT a sea of tears and sorrow
 Did the soul of Mary toss
 To and fro upon its billows,
 While she wept her bitter loss;
 In her arms her Jesus holding,
 Torn so newly from the Cross.

Oh, that mournful Virgin-Mother!
 See her tears how fast they flow
 Down upon His mangled body,
 Wounded side, and thorny brow;
 While His hands and feet she kisses—
 Picture of immortal woe.

Oft and oft His arms and bosom
 Fondly straining to her own;
 Oft her pallid lips imprinting
 On each wound of her dear Son;
 Till at last, in swoons of anguish,
 Sense and consciousness are gone.

Gentle Mother, we beseech thee
 By thy tears and troubles sore;
 By the death of thy dear
 Offspring,

AUTHOR: Ascribed to the Servite Callisto Palumbella, who composed the Office for the Feast inserted in the Breviary in 1720. METER: Trochaic tetrameter. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are six translations. LITURGICAL USE: In the latest editions of the Breviary this hymn is assigned to Matins; it was formerly the Vespers hymn of the Feast of the Seven Dolours.

1. "O, with what floods of tears, with what grief is the Virgin-Mother overwhelmed, when mourning she beholds her Son taken down from the blood-stained Tree and laid in her arms!" Constr.: O quot undis lacrimarum, quo dolore volvitur luctuosa Virgo Mater, dum cernit Filium incumbantem ulnis revulsum de (crucis) stipite.

2. "The desolate Mother bathes with tears that sweet mouth, that gentle breast, that side most sweet, that right hand transfixed, the left wounded, those feet red with blood."

3. "A hundred times, yea, a thousand times she enfolds in tight embraces that breast and those arms, she imprints on herself those wounds: and thus in kisses of sorrow she wholly melts away."

4. "O Mother, we beseech thee by these thy tears, by the cruel death of thy Son, and by the purple of His wounds, plant deep in our hearts the grief of thine own heart."

5. "To the Father, and to the Son, and to the co-eternal Spirit, to the most high Trinity, be everlasting glory, eternal praise and honor, now and forever."

Tibi Christe splendor Patris. In this and in the following hymn the Church sings the praises not only of St. Michael but of all the holy Angels. Read the article on Michael the Archangel, in the Cath. Encycl. At the end of the article there is an account given of Michaelmas Day. There are separate articles on each of the Angels mentioned in the following hymn (No. 135).

In the revision of 1632, this hymn, according to the Dict. of Hymnology was "recast greatly for the worse." The Original Text with J. M. Neale's translation is given below.

1. "Thee, O splendor and power of the Father, Thee, O Jesus, the life of our hearts, we praise in the presence of the Angels who hang upon the words of Thy mouth." Pendent, to regard with close attention.

2. "It is for Thee this dense host of countless thousands of princes engage in battle: but it is the victorious Michael, the standard-bearer of salvation, who unfurls the standard of the Cross." Corona, a crown, also an assembly. Mille is sometimes used in the sense of countless, innumerable, infinite. As to the number of Angels, Cf. Matt. 26, 53; Apoc. 5, 11. For the "great battle in heaven," Cf. Apoc. 12, 7-9.

3. "He casts the direful head of the dragon into the depths of hell, and hurls headlong from the heavenly citadel the prince together with his rebels." Hic, Michael. Of Satan's fall Our Lord said: Videbam satanam sicut fulgur de cælo cadentem (Luke 10, 18).

4. "Let us follow this leader against the prince of pride, that a crown of glory may be given to us from the throne of the Lamb."

There are thirteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds.

1. "O Christ, Thou glory of the holy Angels, the Creator and Redeemer of mankind, grant that we may ascend to the happy abodes of the Blessed." Scandere = ascendere; constr., scandere ad or in; it may also take the accusative, being used as an active verb.

2. "May Michael, the Angel of peace, descend from heaven into our homes, that he, the author of sweet peace, may banish dismal war to hell." St. Michael is the Angel of peace because he was the leader of the heavenly hosts that fought with the rebel angels, and by his victory established peace in heaven (Cf. Apoc. 12, 7-9). Orcus, the infernal regions.

THE HOLY GUARDIAN ANGELS

3. "May Gabriel, Angel of strength, put to flight our ancient enemies, may he revisit the temples dear to heaven, which the conqueror has placed throughout the world." Triumphator, Christ. Templa revisat: An allusion probably to the Archangel's visit to Zachary (Cf. Luke 1, 11-19).

4. "May the Angel Raphael, the physician of our health, descending from heaven, be at our side, that he may heal all that are infirm, and guide us in the uncertain undertakings of life." The Archangel Raphael was the guide and protector of the younger Tobias, and the physician who restored the sight of the elder Tobias (Cf. Tobias 5-11).

5. "May the Virgin Queen of Peace, the Mother of Light, the sacred choir of Angels, and the court of radiant heaven always assist us." Lucis, Christ. Ego sum lux mundi (John 8, 12). The Blessed Virgin is invoked as she is the Queen of Angels (Litany). The following is Father Caswall's translation of this stanza:

Thou too, fair virgin, Daughter of the skies!
Mother of Light, and Queen of Peace, descend;
Bringing with thee the radiant court of heaven,
To aid us and defend.

6. "May the Blessed Godhead of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, whose glory resounds throughout the world, grant us this our prayer."

1. "We sing of the Angels, the guardians of men, whom the heavenly Father has given as companions to our frail nature, lest it succumb to its insidious foes."

2. "For since the traitor-angel fell, he was justly deprived of the honors bestowed upon him, and, burning with envy, he now endeavors to banish those whom God calls to heaven."

3. "Fly hither then, O ever-watchful guardian, and ward off from the land entrusted to thee both diseases of the

Here it is used for "dawn" as Lauds was said at daybreak.

3. "And Thy Angel, who was chosen as our guardian, may he be present here to protect us from the contagion of sin."

4. "May he bring to naught for us the wiles of the envious dragon, lest he ensnare unwary hearts in the net of deceitfulness."

5. "May he drive far from our borders the fear of enemies; may he procure peace among the citizens and banish pestilence."

6. "Glory be to the Father, who guardeth by His Angels those whom the Son redeemed and the Holy Spirit anointed." Unxit, strengthened.

Vespers hymn. Thence: The Five Joyful Mysteries—one stanza being devoted to each Mystery. The Breviary Office in honor of the Most Holy Rosary, with its four proper hymns, was approved by Pope Leo XIII, in 1888. In studying the hymns it will be observed that the first three hymns celebrate in their fifteen stanzas, the fifteen Mysteries of the Holy Rosary. The fourth hymn is a recapitulation of the subject matter of the first three hymns.
The hymns were written in 1757.

1. The Annunciation: "The messenger of the heavenly court, revealing the mysteries of the Divinity, salutes, as full of grace, the Virgin-Mother of God." Nuntius, the Archangel Gabriel (Cf. Luke 1, 26-28).

PROPER OF SAINTS

2. The Visitation: "The Virgin visits one related to her by blood, the mother of John, who, though still enclosed in the womb, exultingly proclaims that Christ is present." Exultavit infans in utero ejus (Luke 1, 41). Propinquam sanguine, Elizabeth, Mary's cousin (Luke 1, 36); read the remainder of this chapter of St. Luke. It gives an account of the Visitation, and in it are found the two sublime Evangelical Canticles, the Magnificat (verses 46-55), and the Benedictus (verses 68-79).

3. The Nativity: "The Word that from all eternity had proceeded from the intellect of the Father is born a mortal infant from the womb of a Virgin-Mother." Verbum, the Eternal Son (Cf. John 1, 1-14).

4. The Presentation: "The Child is presented in the temple, the Lawgiver obeys the Law, here the Redeemer offers Himself, and is redeemed by the offering of the poor." The Law (Leviticus 12, 6-8) specified the offerings that must be made by the rich and by the poor on the purification of a woman after childbirth. The latter were required to offer a sacrifice of "a pair of turtle doves, or two young pigeons" (Cf. Luke 2, 22-24). Mary made the offering of the poor, and did for Him "according to the custom of the Law" (Luke 2, 27). The purification of the mother, and the redemption of the Child (Num. 18, 15) were quite different legal prescriptions, but it is reasonable to suppose that both ceremonies took place at the same time. Read the beautiful Cantic of Simeon (Luke 2, 29-32).

5. The Finding in the Temple: "Now the joyful Mother finds her Son whom she had already mourned as lost; finds Him expounding to learned minds things they did not know."

Sorrowful Mysteries.

1. The Agony in the Garden: "On the mountain planted with olives, the Redeemer praying falls prostrate; He grows sad, He fears, He grows faint, dripping with a sweat of blood." The Passion of Our Lord is described in Matt. 26-27; Mark 14-15; Luke 22-23; John 18-19.

2. The Scourging at the Pillar: "God, delivered up by a traitor, is dragged away to punishment; He is bound with rough cords and beaten with bloody scourges."

3. The Crowning with Thorns: "A crown of ignominy, woven of sharp thorns, crowns the King of glory clothed with a filthy purple garment."

4. The Carrying of the Cross: "Perspiring, gasping, and falling, He is compelled by force to carry the Cross of thrice heavy weight to the summit of the mountain." The Cross was "thrice heavy" on account of Our Lord's weakness following the agony and the scourging.

5. The Crucifixion: "Fastened to the infamous gibbet, guiltless He hangs between the guilty, till, bloodless, He breathes forth His Spirit while praying for His torturers."

Mysteries.

1. The Resurrection: "Death having been vanquished, Christ, the conqueror, returns from Limbo, and having broken the bonds of sin, He reopens the portals of heaven."

2. The Ascension: "Having appeared sufficiently long to men, He ascended into heaven and sits at the right hand of the Father, a co-sharer of His glory."

3. The Coming of the Holy Ghost: "The Holy Spirit whom He had already promised to His own, He showers down upon His sorrowing Apostles in fiery tongues of love."

4. The Assumption of the Blessed Virgin: "Liberated from the weight of the flesh, the Virgin is taken up to heaven; she is received with the jubilation of heaven, and with the songs of Angels."

5. The Coronation of the Blessed Virgin: "Twelve stars now crown the brow of the glorious Mother; near the throne of her Son, she reigns over all created things." There is an allusion in this stanza to the "great sign" that appeared in heaven: "A woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars" (Apoc. 12, 1). See footnote on this verse of the Apoc., in the Douay Bible. Imperat: "reigns over" in the sense that she is styled—Queen of Angels, Patriarchs, Prophets, etc., in the Litany.

AUTHOR: Pope Urban VIII (1568-1644). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by D. J. Donahoe. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins. St. Teresa (1515-1582) was an illustrious member of the Carmelite Order. A brief account of her wonderful life is given in the Cath. Encycl., and a more extended biography in Butler's Lives of the Saints. Note the spelling: Teresa, Teresia, Theresa.

1. "As a herald of the heavenly King, thou dost leave, O Teresa, thy father's house to give to barbarous lands either Christ or thy blood." As a mere child, Teresa and her little brother actually set out for the country of the Moors, with the hope of dying for their faith. Much to their disappointment they were intercepted by an uncle and restored to their distracted mother.

2. "But a sweeter death awaits thee, a more delightful pain claims thee: pierced even unto being wounded by a shaft of divine love, thou dost fall." This stanza refers to the Transverberation of the Saint's heart. In her autobiography she tells us that an Angel appeared to her, and—"He had in his hand a long golden dart, and at the end of the point methought there was a little fire; and I conceived that he thrust it several times through my heart and after such a manner that it passed through my very bowels; and when he drew it out, methought it pulled them out with it, and left me wholly inflamed with a great love of God" (Butler's Lives). Her body is still preserved incorrupt at Alba in Spain, and "her heart, too, showing the marks of the Transverberation is exposed there for the veneration of the faithful" (Cath. Encycl.). There is an Office and Mass in honor of the Transverberatio Cordis S. Teresiæ (Aug. 27).

ST. TERESA

3. "O victim of love, inflame our hearts, and deliver from the fires of hell the nations entrusted to thee."

143

Hæc est dies

HÆC est dies, qua candidæ
Instar columbæ, cœlitum
Ad sacra templa spiritus
Se transtulit Teresiæ.

² Sponsique voces audiit:
Veni soror de vertice
Carmeli ad Agni nuptias:
Veni ad coronam gloriæ.

³ Te sponse Jesu Virginum
Beati adorent ordines,
Et nuptiali cantico
Laudent per omne sæculum.

BEHOLD the blessed morning,
When, like a snow-white dove,
Thy soul arose, Theresa,
To join the choirs above.

The Bridegroom calls: "From Carmel
Come, sister, unto me,
Partake the Lamb's high nuptials;
Thy crown awaiteth thee."

O Jesus, tender Bridegroom
By holy virgin throngs
Be evermore surrounded,
Be praised in endless songs.

AUTHOR: Pope Urban VIII (1568-1644). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by D. J. Donahoe. There are five translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of St. Teresa.

1. "This is the day on which the soul of Teresa like a shining white dove betook itself to the sacred temples of the Blessed." Instar, with genitive; like to, after the fashion of. Columbæ, the dove is a symbol of innocence and purity.

2. "And she heard the voice of the Bridegroom: 'Come, Sister, from the heights of Carmel to the nuptials of the Lamb; come to receive a crown of glory.'" Veni (ad suscipiendam) coronam gloriæ. The Carmelite order was founded on Mount Carmel in Palestine in 1156. For an explanation of the term "nuptials of the Lamb," read St. Teresa's own interpretation of mystical marriage quoted in the article on Marriage, Mystical, in the Cath. Encycl.

3. "O Jesus, Spouse of Virgins, may the heavenly choirs adore Thee, and with nuptial song praise Thee forever."

Gentis Polonæ

GENTIS Polonæ gloria,
Clerique splendor nobilis,
Decus Lycæi, et patriæ
Pater, Joannes inclyte.

O GLORY of the Polish race,
O splendor of the priestly band,
Whose lore did thy Lyceum grace,
John, father of the fatherland.

² Legem superni Numinis
Doces magister, et facis.
Nil scire prodest: sedulo
Legem nitamur exsequi.

The Law of the supernal Will Thou teachest both in word and deed;
Knowledge is naught—we must fulfill
In works, not barren words, our creed!

³ Apostolorum limina
Pedes viator visitas;
Ad patriam, ad quam tendimus,
Gressus viamque dirige.

On foot to Apostolic Rome
Thy pilgrim spirit joyful hied;
Oh, to our everlasting home
The path declare, the footstep guide!

⁴ Urbem petis Jerusalem:
Signata sacro sanguine
Christi colis vestigia,
Rigasque fuis fletibus.

Again, in Sion's holy street,
Anew thou wet'st with tearful flood
The pathway of the Saviour's feet
Erst wet with His redeeming
Blood.

⁵ Acerba Christi vulnera,
Hærete nostris cordibus,
Ut cogitemus consequi
Redemptionis pretium.

O sweet and bitter Wounds of Christ,
Deep in our hearts imprinted stay,
That the blest fruit the sacrificed
Redeemer gained, be ours for aye!

⁶ Te prona mundi machina,
Clemens adoret Trinitas,
Et nos novi per gratiam
Novum canamus canticum.

Then let the world obeisance due
Perform, O God, to Thy high
Will;
And let our souls, by grace made new,
Sing to Thee a new canticle!

ST. JOHN CANTIUS

TRANSLATION by Monsignor Henry. There are five translations. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn. There is a short biography of John Cantius, St. (1412-1473), in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Illustrious John, the glory of the Polish race, and the noble ornament of the priesthood, the glory of thy University and the father of thy country!" Lycæi: the University of Cracow in which St. John was a professor of theology. A brief history of the University is given at the end of the article on Cracow, in the Cath. Encycl.

2. "As teacher thou dost both teach and observe the Law of the Heavenly Divinity: to know availeth not; we must diligently strive to fulfil the Law."

3. "A traveler on foot thou dost visit the tombs of the Apostles: to our true country which we seek, direct thou our steps and our way." Limen, a threshold; Limina Apostolorum, an ecclesiastical term meaning a pilgrimage to the sepulchers of SS. Peter and Paul in Rome. St. Peter rests in the great church bearing his name, and St. Paul in the Basilica of St. Paul "outside the walls." Pedes, itis, adj., on foot. Pedes viator, a pilgrim. St. John made four pilgrimages to Rome on foot. He also made a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

4. "Thou dost visit the city of Jerusalem, and dost venerate the footprints marked with the Sacred Blood of Christ, and thou dost bedew them with abundant tears."

5. "O bitter Wounds of Christ, be ye deeply implanted in our hearts, that we may be ever mindful to seek earnestly the reward of our redemption."

6. "O loving Trinity, may the whole fabric of the universe prostrate adore Thee, and we, renewed by Thy grace, would sing Thee a new song of praise."

Now let us chant in glad refrain
Unto the Triune God our praise:
O may the prayers of John obtain
Blest joys for us in endless days.

AUTHOR: Unknown, 18th cent. METER: Iambic dimeter.
TRANSLATION by Father Wallace, O.S.B. There are four translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on the Feast of St. John Cantius.

1. "Thou didst subdue thy body with fasts, and with bloody blows didst lacerate it, that as an innocent soldier thou mightest follow the army of penitents."

2. "Let us also follow diligently in the footsteps of the good father: let us follow, that the spirit may restrain the licentiousness of the flesh."

3. "During the cold winter thou offerest to the poor the kindly provided garment, and with food and drink thou dost alleviate the thirst and hunger of the needy." St. John not only gave away his food and clothing, but on one occasion at least he even gave away his shoes and walked home barefooted (Matins, Lectio V).

4. "O thou who didst refuse assistance to no one asking for it, the Polish nation and strangers beseech thee that thou protect thy native kingdom."

ST. JOHN CANTIUS

5. "Glory be to the Father, and to the Son, and to Thee, Holy Spirit: may the prayers of John obtain for us blessed joys."

PROPER OF SAINTS

LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of St. John Cantius.

1. "At thy prayer bodily sickness departs, dreadful plagues are put to flight, former blessings of health return."

2. "Thou dost snatch from his very jaws the victims devoted to death—those brought nigh to a dire death by consumption, fever, and ulcer."

3. "At thy prayer, goods carried away by a swollen stream, are, by the mighty hand of God, drawn backwards, floating up the stream."

4. "Since thou, now dwelling in the mansions of heaven, art able to do such wonders, we ask that thou give heed to the prayers of thy suppliants, and aid them when invoked."

5. "O Trinity forever One, O Unity forever Three: grant us through the intercession of Cantius an eternal reward."

There are seven translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers. First line of Original Text: Christe Redemptor omnium.

1. "Be merciful, O Christ, to Thy servants, for whom the Virgin-Patroness implores the mercy of the Father at the throne of Thy grace."

2. "And ye, O blessed hosts, divided into nine circles (choirs), drive away past, present, and future evils."

3. "Ye Apostles, together with the Prophets, earnestly entreat forgiveness of the severe Judge, on account of the sincere tears of the guilty."

4. "Ye purple-robed Martyrs, and ye who are whiterobed on account of your confession, call us exiles to our native land." Confessionis: Confessors "confess their faith" by the practice of heroic virtue. Read the article on Confessor, in the Cath. Encycl. Candidatus, the Saints in general are styled "white-robed" (Cf. Apoc. 7, 9-14).

PROPER OF SAINTS

5. "Ye chaste choir of Virgins, and ye whom the desert waste hath sent as dwellers to heaven, establish us in the mansions of the Blessed."

6. "Drive away the faithless race from the land of the faithful, that one Shepherd may rule over us all as over one fold."

"When the celebration of All Saints was extended to the Frankish empire in 825, after having been observed in Rome for two centuries, and its celebration fixed on the 1st of November, the verse Gentem auferte perfidam Credentium de finibus was added to the hymn with reference to the Normans and Saracens who were laying waste both the northwest of Gaul and the south of Italy" (The Roman Breviary its Sources and History, by Dom Jules Baudot, O.S.B., p. 68).

LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of All Saints.

1. "O Jesus, giver of eternal life, aid those whom Thou hast redeemed: O Virgin, Mother of mercy, grant salvation to thy servants." Dona: obtain through thy intercession.

2. "O ye thousands of Angels, ye assembly of Patriarchs, and melodious host of Prophets, ask forgiveness for sinners." The Prophets are called canorous or melodious on account of the poetical nature of the language they frequently use.

3. "May the Baptist, the forerunner of Christ, may the key-bearer of heaven, together with the other Apostles loosen the chains of our sins." The key-bearer is St. Peter: Et tibi dabo claves regni cœlorum (Matt. 16, 19).

4. "May the triumphant host of Martyrs, the august choir of priests and virginal chastity wash away our guilt." Virginalis castitas = virgines castæ.

5. "All ye who reign as princes in the high court of heaven, give ear to the prayers of the suppliants who ask earnestly for the gifts of heaven."

AUTHOR: Unknown. It is at least as old as the 9th cent. METER: Trochaic dimeter, each verse being composed of three trochees. There are nineteen translations, two of which are given here. LITURGICAL USE: Vespers hymn on Feasts of Our Lady.

The fine translation given above was made by Mr. Athelstan Riley, M.A., for his translation of the Hours of the Blessed Virgin Mary, "Little Office," 1891.

The beautiful translation given below is from the pen of the Rev. G. R. Woodward, M.A. It is a new translation, and by the kindness of its author it is here published for the first time.

There is an article on this hymn in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "Hail, Star of the Sea, loving Mother of God, and Ever-Virgin, happy Gate of Heaven!" The name Mary is derived from the Hebrew "Miriam," which signifies "Star of the Sea"; in Chaldaic it means "Lady." Cæli porta: By her powerful intercession with her Divine Son she opens for sinners the gates of heaven. Ave: Ave gratia plena: Dominus tecum; benedicta tu in mulieribus (Luke 1, 28). Read the first of the two articles on Annunciation, in the Cath. Encycl. Cf. also Luke 1, 26-38.

2. "Receiving that Ave from the mouth of Gabriel, establish us in peace, reversing the name of Eva." Heva = Eva, which "reversed" gives Ave.

3. "Break the chains of sinners, give light to the blind, drive away evils, ask for all that's good." Vincla for vincula. Cæcis, to those who are spiritually blind, who have eyes and see not (cf. Ps. 134, 16).

4. "Show thyself to be a Mother; through thee may He receive our prayers—He who, born for us, deigned to be thy Son." Tuus (Filius).

5. "Virgin all-excelling, meek above all others, make us, freed from sin, meek and chaste."

6. "Preserve our life unspotted, make safe our way, that, seeing Jesus, we may rejoice together forever."

THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

7. "To God the Father be praise, to Christ most high be glory, and to the Holy Spirit, to the Three be one honor." Unus, equal, the same.

Ave Maris Stella

HAIL, Sea-Star we name thee,
Ever-Maid acclaim thee,
God His Mother, Portal
To the life immortal.

Ave was the token
By the Angel spoken:
Peace on earth it telleth,
Eva's name re-spelleth.

Free the worldly-minded
Luminate the blinded.
Every ill repressing,
Win us every blessing.

Plead, and play the Mother!
He will, and none other,
Born for our salvation,
Hear thy supplication.

Maiden meek and lowly,
Singularly holy,
Loose the sins that chain us;
Sanctify, sustain us.

Help us live in pureness,
Smooth our way with sureness,
Till we also eye Thee,
Jesu, ever nigh Thee.

AUTHOR: Ascribed to Fortunatus (530-609). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale. There are eighteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on Feasts of the Blessed Virgin which have no proper hymn for Matins. The Original Text has æthera for sidera in the first line. This is the only point of difference between the Original and the Revised Texts. The hymn for Lauds is a continuation of this hymn. The texts differ in several instances.

1. "The womb of Mary carried the Ruler of the triple kingdom, Him, whom earth, and sea, and sky honor, adore and praise." Trina machina may refer either to "terra, pontus, æthera," or to the threefold rule of Christ over "those that are in heaven, on earth, or under the earth" (Philip. 2, 10). Claustrum, lit., a bolt, bar; by meton., an enclosure.

THE BLESSED VIRGIN MARY

2. "The womb of a Virgin, filled with the grace of Heaven, bears Him to whom the moon and sun and all things are, at all times, subject." Spiritus Sanctus superveniet in te, et virtus Altissimi obumbrabit tibi (Luke 1, 35).

3. "O Mother, blessed by a (singular) gift, in the ark of whose womb was enclosed the heavenly Creator, who holds the universe in the hollow of His hand." Munus, the singular privilege of being the Mother of God. Mundum pugillo continens: Quis mensus est pugillo aquas, et cœlos palmo ponderavit? quis appendit tribus digitis molem terræ, et libravit in pondere montes, et colles in statera? (Is. 40, 12). Constr.: Sub cujus arca ventris clausus est.

4. "Blessed by the message of Heaven, overshadowed by the Holy Spirit, out of whose womb came forth the Desired of Nations." Nuntium, i, a message; here, the Annunciation (Luke 1, 26-38). Desideratus gentibus: Et veniet Desideratus cunctis gentibus (Aggeus 2, 8).

1. "O most glorious of Virgins, the most exalted among the Blessed, Him who created thee thou didst nourish as a Child at thy maternal breast." Sidera, all created heavenly beings.

2. "What hapless Eve deprived us of, thou, by thy beloved Offspring, didst restore: that those who weep may enter heaven, open thou the door thereof." Cardo, a hinge, by synec., a door, gate.

3. "Thou art the Door of the great King, the refulgent Hall of light: sing, O redeemed nations, the Life given us through a Virgin." Vitam = Christum. Plaudite, applaud, here used transitively.

TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. There are ten translations.
LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Lauds.
First line of Original Text: Exultet cælum laudibus. For the hymns of the Apostles and Evangelists in Eastertide, see Hymns 63 and 64.

1. "Let the earth exult with joy, let the heavens re-echo with praise; earth and heaven together sing the glory of the Apostles."

2. "Ye judges of mankind and true lights of the world, we beseech you with the yearnings of our hearts: give ear to the prayers of your suppliants." Judices: The Apostles are to judge the world (cf. Matt. 19, 28). Lumina: Vos estis lux mundi (Matt. 5, 14). They were to enlighten by their doctrine a world sunk in the darkness of sin and error.

3. "Ye who close the heavenly mansions, and with a word can unfasten their bolts, command, we beseech you, that we sinners be freed from our guilt." Sera, a bar or bolt for fastening a door. Quæcumque alligaveritis super terram, erunt ligata et in cælo: et quæcumque solveritis super terram, erunt soluta et in cælo (Matt. 18, 18). Nos: constr.—Jubete, nos noxios solvi a reatu.

APOSTLES AND EVANGELISTS

4. "Ye whose commands sickness and health forthwith obey, heal our languishing souls, enrich us with virtues."

5. "That when Christ shall come again, as Judge, at the end of the world, He may grant that we become possessed of eternal happiness."

Cœlestis aulæ milites,
Et vera mundi lumina.

For they the Church's Princes are,
Triumphant leaders in the war,
The heavenly King's own warrior

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION based on Neale. There are thirteen translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins on feasts of the Apostles and Evangelists. This hymn was originally written for feasts of Martyrs. In its complete form it contained eight stanzas. The hymn Christum profusum sanguinem, for Martyrs in Paschaltide, is a part of the Æterna Christi munera. The above hymn consists of stanzas 1, 2, 6, 7, of the original.

COMMON OF SAINTS

1. "Let us sing with joyful hearts songs of triumph and becoming hymns, let us sing the glory of the Apostles, and the eternal gifts of Christ." The construction in this stanza is unusual. Canamus is the predicate of the whole stanza. Palmas: fig., victories; here, hymns of victory.

2. "They are the princes of the Church, the triumphant leaders of the war, the soldiers of the heavenly court, and the true lights of the world."

3. "The steadfast faith of the Saints, the unyielding hope of believers, the perfect charity of Christ trample under foot the tyrant of the world." Tyrannum, the devil.

4. "In them triumphs the glory of the Father; in them triumphs the Son; in them the will of the Holy Spirit is accomplished, and heaven is filled with joy."

1. "O God, Thou who art the portion, the crown, and the reward of Thy soldiers, absolve from the chains of sin those singing the praises of Thy Martyr."

2. "He, indeed, regarding as imbued with bitterness the joys of the world and the seductive pleasures of sin, hath attained heavenly joys." Pabulum, food; anything pleasing to the taste or senses.

3. "He bravely ran the way of torture, and suffered manfully; and shedding his blood for Thee, he now possesses Thy eternal gifts." Pœnas cucurrit, a poetical constr., the accusative in answer to the question whither.

4. "Wherefore we beseech Thee, most loving God, with suppliant prayer, in consequence of the triumph of Thy Martyr, forgive Thy servants' sins." Ob hoc = quam ob rem. In hoc triumpho: This refers to the feast day of the Encycl.* From the references to Confessors, in this hymn, it would seem that it was originally intended for the feasts of Martyrs and Confessors. See the article on Martyr in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "O glorious King of Martyrs and Crown of Confessors, who leadest to heavenly things those who despise the things of earth."

2. "Turn quickly a gracious ear to our prayers; we sing of sacred victories; pardon what we have done amiss." Trophæum, lit., a trophy, a monument of victory; by meton., the victory itself.

3. "In the Martyrs Thou dost conquer, and Thou dost spare the Confessors: O dispenser of mercy, conquer Thou our sins." Inter = per. The Martyrs are the faithful soldiers of Christ, who conquers in their victories, as a general conquers in the achievements of his army. The Confessors are "spared," i.e., they are not called to shed their blood for Christ.

AUTHOR: St. Ambrose (340-397). METER: Iambic dimeter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale and others. This hymn is a cento from the hymn Æterna Christi munera; the first stanza was added by the revisers of the hymns under Pope Urban VIII, 1632. There are eight translations of the Roman Brev. Text, and five, in part or entire, of the original hymn. LITURGICAL USE: Matins hymn for Many Martyrs in Eastertide.

1. "Let us with gladsome voices sing of the blood shed for Christ, of the victories of the Martyrs, and the laurels worthy of heaven." Sequi, lit., to follow, accompany. Latris sequamur vocibus, Let us follow with joyous songs, etc.

2. "Having overcome the terrors of the world and despised the pains of the body, by the brief torments accompanying a holy death, they now possess a happy life." Compendio: The Martyrs acquire in a brief space what others obtain in a lifetime.

3. "The Martyrs are delivered over to the flames and to the teeth of wild beasts; armed with hooks, the hand of the mad torturer rages." Ungula, a torturer's claw-shaped hook.

4. "Their entrails laid bare protrude, their holy blood is poured forth; but by the grace of eternal life they remain steadfast."

LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins on Feasts of Confessors Bishops, and Confessors not Bishops. Read the article on Confessor, in the Cath. Encycl.

1. "This Confessor of the Lord, whom reverent nations throughout the world lovingly venerate, merited on this day to ascend with joy to the blest abodes." Hac die, i.e., the Feast Day of the Saint, the day of his death. If it is not the day of the Saint's death, the last two lines are changed thus:

Hac die lætus meruit supremos
 Laudis honores.

"On this day merited with joy the highest honors of praise." Scandere = ascendere.

2. "Pious, prudent, humble, and chaste, he led a sober life, without stain, as long as the breath of life animated his human members." Humanos artus, his body, frame. Spiritus auræ, lit., a breath of air. Read St. Paul's conception of a Bishop (1 Tim. esp. 3, 2).

3. "On account of his eminent merits it often happens that members (the faithful) lying sick in various places, are restored to health, the violence of their disease being overcome." Membra saluti restituuntur = membris salus restituitur.

4. "Wherefore to him does our choir sing gracious praises, and celebrate his victories: may we be aided by his pious prayers throughout the ages."

5. "To Him who is resplendent on the throne of heaven, be salvation, glory, and power; to Him who, Three and One, ruleth the course of the whole world.

and Lauds. This beautiful hymn is founded on Is. 28, 5; Canticle of Canticles 2, 16; Apoc. 14, 4.

1. "O Jesus, crown of Virgins, whom that Mother conceived who alone as Virgin did give birth to a Child, graciously accept these our prayers."

2. "Thou walkest among the lilies surrounded by choirs of Virgins, as a bridegroom adorned with glory dispensing gifts to brides." Pergis: The Original Text has pascis—which text Neale translates. The texts differ but slightly. Qui pascitur inter lilia (Cant. 2, 16). The lily is a symbol of virginal purity; it is here used for Virgins themselves.

3. "Whithersoever Thou goest, Virgins follow, and with songs of praise they hasten after Thee, causing sweet hymns to resound."

4. "We suppliantly beseech Thee that Thou grant to our senses that they may know nothing whatever of all the wounds of corruption." Addas = des, tribuas. Sensibus, to our souls. Nescire, to have nothing to do with.

AUTHOR: UNKNOWN, 8th cent. METER: Sapphic and Adonic. TRANSLATION by Laurence Housman. There are eight translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Matins in the Common of Virgins. To be more explicit, the five stanzas of this hymn are used as follows:

- a) The complete hymn for Virgin-Martyrs.
- b) Stanzas 1, 4, 5, for Virgins.
- c) Stanzas 4, 5, for Holy Women.

1. "O Offspring of a Virgin and Creator of Thy Mother, whom a Virgin carried in her womb, and to whom a Virgin gave birth; we celebrate in song the Feast of a Virgin; hear Thou our prayer." The Virgin mentioned in the first two lines is our Blessed Lady; the Virgin mentioned in the third line is the Saint whose Feast is being celebrated. For a Virgin-Martyr the last two lines read:

Virginis partos canimus decora
Morte triumphos.

"We sing of the triumphs obtained by the glorious death of a Virgin."

2. "For she was blessed with the portion of a twofold

COMMON OF SAINTS

palm of victory; while she strove to overcome the frailty of her sex, she overcame also the tyrant red with slaughter." Cædes, slaughter, carnage, the blood shed in slaughter. The "twofold palm" is that of virginity and martyrdom. The word "martyr" means a witness, i.e., one who by his death bears witness to the truth of the Christian religion.

3. "She feared neither death nor the accompaniments of death, the countless methods of torture; having shed her blood she merited to ascend to an untroubled heaven." Amica mortis, things pertaining to, or accompanying death.

4. "At her intercession, O gracious God, remit the punishment of our sins due to us, that with a pure heart we may raise aloft a sweet song to Thee."

5. "Glory be to the Father and to the incarnate Son, and to Thee, Holy Spirit, ever the co-equal power of both, One God. forever and ever."

AUTHOR: Unknown, 6th or 7th cent. METER: Iambic di-meter. TRANSLATION by J. W. Irons. There are about thirty translations. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Vespers and Matins. First line of Original Text: Urbs Jerusalem beata, or Urbs beata Jerusalem. The hymn was greatly altered by the revisers under Pope Urban VIII, in 1632. The Original Text, as found in the Benedictine and Dominican Breviaries, with J. M. Neale's much admired translation of the same is given below. It is interesting to compare the two texts. It will be noticed that the rugged beauty of the Original Text, in trochaic tetrameter, is replaced in the Roman Breviary Text by smooth polished iambs. With reference to the revision, Neale thinks that the grand old hymn "lost half its beauty in the process" (Medieval Hymns, p. 18). This hymn is based on the following passages of the New Testament: I Peter 2, 5; Apoc. 21; Eph. 2, 19-22; Heb. 12, 22.

DEDICATION OF A CHURCH

1. "Jerusalem, heavenly city, blessed vision of peace, who, built of living stones, art raised aloft to the stars, and like a bride art encircled by countless thousands of Angels." "The heavenly city, Jerusalem" is the Church Triumphant, the Blessed. In Hebrew, the word Jerusalem means "vision of peace." The "living stones" are the souls of men.

2. "O bride dowered with a fortunate dowry, with the glory of the Father, and with the grace of the bridegroom shed over thee; O queen all-beauteous united to Christ the King, O resplendent city of heaven!" Sorte, lot, marriage portion, dowry. The bride is the Church Triumphant, and the bridegroom is Christ, who is the glory of the Father (Heb. 1, 3).

3. "Thy gates here glitter with pearls and stand open to all; each mortal who follows virtue is drawn thither; each one who, impelled by the love of Christ, endures torments." Ostia patent, cf. Apoc. 21, 21-25. Tormenta is not restricted to Martyrs only, but refers to anyone who endures trials and tribulations (Acts 14, 21).

4. "Polished by vigorous blows of the chisel and by countless strokes of the Master's mallet, these stones raise up this mighty structure, and, bound together with appropriate joints, they are placed aloft in the highest summit." Fastigium, gable, pediment, summit; here, by synec. the splendid edifice itself. Saxa is the subject of the whole stanza.

5. "Let due glory be given everywhere to the most high Father, and to the only-begotten Son of the Father, and to the glorious Paraclete; to whom be praise, power, and glory, through everlasting ages.

This is a continuation of the preceding hymn. TRANSLATION by Father Caswall. LITURGICAL USE: Hymn for Lauds on the Feast of the Dedication of a Church.

1. "From the highest heights of heaven came the sovereign Father's Son, like the stone riven from the mountain descending to the lowest plains, and He joined together the two corners of the earthly and heavenly dwelling places." Venit is understood in the first two lines. Christ is the stone that came down from on high. He is also the cornerstone that makes both one, Jews and Gentiles, or the heavenly and the earthly kingdom (Cf. I Pet. 2, 6; Eph. 2, 20). The figure of the stone riven from the mountain is probably an allusion to the dream of Nabuchodonosor (Cf. Dan. 2, esp. 34-45).

2. "But that abode of the Blessed ever resounds with praises, and extols with ceaseless song the Triune God; to it we rivals of holy Sion are joined in song." Illi, sc. sedes Cœlitum. Jugi, adj., perpetual. Sion ordinarily stands for the Church Militant; it is here used for the Church Triumphant.

3. "These temples, O king of the Blessed, fill with Thy kindly light; hither, come Thou when invoked, and receive the prayers of Thy people, and fill our hearts forever with the grace of Heaven."

4. "Here may the voices of the faithful and the prayers of Thy suppliants obtain the rewards of the heavenly home; and may they enjoy the gifts acquired, till, freed from the body, they take possession of the blessed abodes."

The above hymn is the Original Text of Hymns 166 and 167. METER: Trochaic tetrameter. TRANSLATION by J. M. Neale.

1. "Jerusalem, blessed city, called the vision of peace; city built up in heaven of living stones, and surrounded by Angels, as a bride by her attendants."

2. "'Tis the New Jerusalem coming down from heaven, adorned for the nuptial chamber, that as a bride she may be united to her Lord: her streets and her walls are of purest gold."

3. "Her gates glitter with pearls, her inmost shrines are wide open: and every one that suffers in this world for the Name of Christ, finds entrance there, in virtue of His merits."

4. "These stones, polished by blows and by afflictions, are fitted to their places by the hands of the Builder: they are arranged to remain forever in the sacred edifice.”

Pressura, æ, oppression, affliction.

5. “Christ the corner-stone was sent to be the foundation bound in both joints of the walls; whom holy Sion received, and believing in Him, she endures forever.”

6. “All this beloved city, sacred to God, is full of melodies: in praise and joyful song she extols with zeal the Triune God.”

7. “In this temple, O most high God, be present when Thou art invoked; and in Thy merciful goodness receive our prayers; here pour out forever Thy abundant blessings.”

8. “Here may all merit to obtain what they ask for, and to keep what they have obtained: so that when taken to their rest they may merit to enter Paradise forever with the Saints.”

9. “Everywhere be there glory and honor to God most high; equal glory to the Father, Son, and glorious Paraclete, to whom belong praise and power through everlasting ages.”

DE CONTEMPTU MUNDI

The four following hymns are centos taken from a long poem of about 3,000 lines written by Bernard of Morlaix about 1140. The translations are by Dr. J. M. Neale. The hymns have never been in use in the Breviary. The meter is, in Neale's words, “Dactylic hexameter, divided into three parts, between which a caesura is inadmissible. The hexameter has a tailed rhyme, and feminine leonine rhyme between the two first clauses.” Neale speaks of the “majestic sweetness” of the meter, and Trench, whose taste was equally good, comments on its “awkwardness and repulsiveness.” Whatever opinion one may adopt concerning the Latin hymn, there can be only one opinion about Neale's beautiful translations. Neale first translated the 96 lines which Trench printed in his Sacred Latin Poetry; he later translated a larger cento of 218 lines. The translation contains twice as many lines as the original.

DE CONTEMPTU MUNDI

The complete translation will be found in Neale's Medieval Hymns, and in a volume more easily obtained—Henry T. Coates' Fireside Encyclopedia of Poetry, p. 624 (John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia). A prose translation of the complete poem, by Henry Preble, appeared in the American Journal of Theology, in 1906.

AUTHORS OF THE LATIN HYMNS

AMBROSE, ST. (340-397), Bishop of Milan, is justly styled "the Father of Church-song in the West." He became, like St. Hilary, a great champion of orthodoxy against the Arians in the West. And it was while he and his faithful flock were besieged in his Cathedral by the imperial troops that, as St. Augustine tells us, he first composed hymns for them to sing "lest they faint through fatigue of sorrow." The simple, austere hymns of St. Ambrose have always been considered the ideal in Church-song. Many hymns have been ascribed to him, and there is some difference of opinion as to what hymns he actually wrote. The latest authority on this subject is the eminent hymnologist Father Dreves, who made a careful study of the early hymnaries in the Vatican and at Milan. He thus classifies the hymns of St. Ambrose:

I. Certified as his by early writers. Æterne rerum Conditor. 2. Deus Creator omnium. 3. Illuminans altissimus. 4. Veni Redemptor gentium. 5. Jam surgit hora tertia. # 7

II. Others also genuine. 6. Æterna Christi munera, Et martyrurum. 7. Agnes beatæ virginis. 8. Amore Christi nobilis. 9. Apostolorum passio. 10. Apostolorum supparem. 11. Grates tibi, Jesu, novas. 12. Hic est dies verus Dei. 13. Splendor paternæ gloriæ. 14. Victor, Nabor, Felix, pii. # 154 A

III. Possibly his. 15. Jesu corona virginum. 16. Nunc, Sancte nobis Spiritus. 17. Rector potens, verax Deus. 18. Rerum Deus tenax vigor. # 2

The Benedictine editors of the works of St. Ambrose assign twelve to him. Among them, and not mentioned above, are the two Breviary hymns: Somno reffectis artibus, and Consorts paternæ luminis. # 11

There are three excellent articles in the Cath. Encycl. on Ambrosian Hymnography, Ambrosian Chant, and Ambrose, St. Hymns: 2, 3, 4, 9, 11, 12, 13, 154, 158, 163. # 3

AMBROSIAN. A great many hymns, mostly of the fifth or sixth century, are styled Ambrosiani—Ambrosian hymns. They are so styled either because they were formerly supposed to have been written by St. Ambrose, or because they imitate the stanzaic form, the style, meter, and austere objectiveness of the genuine hymns of the Saint. It is now known for certain that many hymns formerly thought to be his are the compositions of unknown writers. These hymns are uniformly written in Iambic dimeter. The term Ambrosian implies no ascription of authorship, but merely a poetical form. Hymns: 1, 5, 20, 21, 22, 29, 35, 36, 37, 38, 50, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 69, 71, 155, 157, 161, 162.

ANTONIANO, CARDINAL SILVIO (1540-1603) was educated at the University of Ferrara, in which institution he later became professor of classical literature. He is best known as a student of educational problems. Hymn: 165.

BELLARMINE, CARDINAL (1542-1621) was a distinguished Jesuit theologian and controversialist. He was born at Montepulciano in Italy. He became Archbishop of Capua but resigned that see to accept the office of librarian of the Vatican. He was proclaimed Venerable by Pope Urban VIII, in 1627. Hymns: 125, 136, 137.

BERNARD OF CLAIRVAUX, ST. (1091-1153) was born near Dijon in France. Abbot and Doctor of the Church—surnamed the “Mellifluous Doctor.” There is much doubt as to the authorship of the hymns usually ascribed to St. Bernard. Even his claim to the celebrated hymn, Jesu dulcis memoria has been called in question. Dom Pothier found it in a MS. of the 11th century, in which it is ascribed to a Benedictine Abbess. During his lifetime, St. Bernard exercised an extraordinary influence both by his eloquence and by his writings. Hymns: 43, 44, 45, 130.

BERNARD OF CLUNY (or of Morlaix) was born at Morlaix in Brittany early in the 12th century. He entered the celebrated Benedictine Abbey of Cluny where he remained until his death, the date of which is unknown. He is the author of one of the most famous poems of the Middle Ages, the De contemptu mundi, which contains about 3,000 lines in dactylic hexameters. It is dedicated to Peter the Venerable, Abbot of Cluny (1122-1156). There is a fine analysis of this great poem in the article on Bernard of Cluny, in the Cath. Encycl. Hymns: 170, 171, 172, 173.

ELPIS (d. about 493) was the wife of the philosopher Boethius (480-524). Elpis was the aunt of St. Placidus, the well-known disciple of St. Benedict. Recent researches, however, have led to the conclusion that there is no reason, or at least insufficient reason, to ascribe the authorship of Aurea luce (Decora lux) to Elpis. None of the ancient MSS. attribute it to her (James Mearns in the Dict. of Hymnology, p. 1632). Hymns: 90, 91, 116, 117.

FORTUNATUS, VENANTIUS (530-609) was a native of the district of Treviso in Upper Italy and was educated at Ravenna, where he devoted himself to the study of oratory and poetry. He was miraculously cured of a disease of the eyes through the intercession of St. Martin of Tours. It was while on a visit to the tomb of this Saint that he made the acquaintance of Queen Radegunde at Poitiers. It was here that he was ordained priest, and later consecrated Bishop of Poitiers, where he remained until his death. Fortunatus represents "the last expiring effort of the Latin muse in Gaul" to retain something of the "old classical culture amid the advancing tide of barbarism" (Dict. of Hymnol., p. 383). Hymns: 51, 52, 53, 150, 151.

GREGORY THE GREAT, ST. (540-604). This illustrious Pope and Doctor of the Church was born at Rome, where he founded the Benedictine monastery of St. Andrew, of which he himself became Abbot. Much against his own will he was elected Pope to succeed Pelagius II, in 590. The Benedictine editors of St. Gregory's works ascribe to him eight hymns. Daniel assigns him three others. In the light of the latest researches it must be admitted that Pope Gregory's place in hymnody cannot as yet be definitely fixed. Hymns: 6, 7, 10, 15, 17, 19, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 48, 49, 126.

HERMANN CONTRACTUS (1013-1058) was born at Altshausen in Suabia. He was a cripple from birth and could not move without assistance—hence the surname

AUTHORS OF THE HYMNS

Contractus, the crippled. Despite his physical defects, he entered the school of St. Gall in his seventh year, and quickly mastered Greek, Latin, Arabic, history, music, mathematics, philosophy, and theology. He was one of the most learned men of his time. At the age of thirty he entered the Benedictine monastery of Reichenau, where he became Abbot and spent the remainder of his days. Hymns: 30, 33.

HILARY, ST. (d. 368). Bishop, Confessor, and Doctor of the Church. He was born at Poitiers of heathen parents; and it was in his native city that he was elected Bishop. As Bishop, his strenuous opposition to the Arian heresy earned him the title of Malleus Arianorum—"The Hammer of the Arians." His hostility to the Arians caused him to be exiled to the distant coasts of Phrygia. Many hymns have been ascribed to St. Hilary, most of which are of doubtful authenticity. In 1887, a fragment of St. Hilary's Liber Hymnorum was discovered. This contains three hymns or parts of hymns which can with reasonable certainty be ascribed to him. Hymn 70 has often been ascribed to him, but on insufficient evidence.

INNOCENT III, POPE (1161-1216) was born at Anagni in Italy. He was one of the most learned theologians and jurists of his time. During his active reign, which lasted eighteen years, the Papacy reached the zenith of its power and influence. Hymn: 67.

INNOCENT VI, POPE (d. 1362) was born at Mont in France. He attained eminence as a professor of civil law at Toulouse. As Pope he was actuated by lofty ideals and did much to reform abuses. Hymn: 80.

JACOPONE DA TODI (or Jacobus de Benedictis) was born at Todi in Italy early in the thirteenth century, and died at an advanced age in 1306. He studied law, probably at Bologna, and for some years he followed the profession of advocate. About 1278 he entered the Franciscan Order, in which, out of humility, he chose to remain a simple lay brother till the end of his life. Hymns: 54, 55, 56, 57.

LEO XIII, POPE (1810-1903) was born at Carpineto in Italy. He was Nuncio to Brussels, and for thirty-two years Bishop of Perugia. He was elected Pope in 1878. His long reign during troublous times afforded him ample opportunities for the exercise of consummate statesmanship. The whole world recognized his great intellectual endowments. His Latin Poems, Charades, Inscriptions, and Hymns are translated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor H. T. Henry, Litt. D. (Dolphin Press, Philadelphia). Hymns: 95, 96, 97.

LORENZINI, FRANCESCO M. (1680-1743) was an Italian poet born in Rome. He acquired a high reputation as a poet, and was remarkable for the energy of his style. He became president of the Academy of Arcades in 1728. Hymn: 112.

NICETAS, ST. (335-415) was Bishop of Remesiana, in what is now modern Serbia. He was a friend and contemporary of St. Paulinus of Nola. SS. Paulinus and Jerome praise Nicetas as a hymn-writer. Hymn: 8.

ODO, ST. (879-942), Abbot of the celebrated Abbey of Cluny, was born near Le Mans in France. He was widely known as a promoter and reformer of religious life in France and Italy. He is the author of an epic poem on the Redemption. Hymn: 127.

PALUMBELLA, CALLISTO was a Bishop of the Servite Order. He lived in the eighteenth century. Hymns: 131, 132, 133.

PAULINUS, ST. (726-802), Patriarch of Aquileia, was born near Cividale in Italy. He possessed a profound knowledge of the sciences of jurisprudence and theology, and was equally well versed in the Scriptures and in the writings of the Fathers. He was a friend of Charlemagne, whom he greatly assisted in restoring civilization in the West. Hymns: 89, 128.

PAUL THE DEACON (b. circa 720—d. circa 799). Paul was born at Friuli in Italy. He was celebrated both as a poet and as an historian. He was a Benedictine monk of Monte Cassino. Among his works is a valuable "History of the Lombards," and a "Commentary on the Rule of St. Benedict." Hymns: 113, 114, 115.

PRUDENTIUS, AURELIUS CLEMENS (348-413) was born in northern Spain. He was successively an advocate, a judge, and the holder of some important military position at court. At the age of fifty-seven he retired from active life and devoted the remainder of his days to the service of God, and to the writing of sacred poetry. His poem, the Cathemerinon, is frequently referred to in this volume. A new and excellent translation of it by Messrs. Pope and Davis, with Latin and English texts on opposite pages, is published by J. M. Dent & Co., Aldine House, London, W. C., England; 208 pages, with notes. Hymns: 14, 16, 18, 41, 42, 47, 129.

RABANUS MAURUS (776-856) was born at Mainz in Germany. He studied under Alcuin at Tours, and became successively Abbot of the Benedictine monastery of Fulda, and Archbishop of Mainz. He is commonly reputed to have been the most learned man of his age. His fame as a teacher spread throughout Europe, and Fulda became the most celebrated seat of learning in the Frankish Empire. Hymns: 68, 134, 135, 147, 148.

RICCHINI, AUGUSTINE, 18th cent. Father Ricchini was a Dominican, a friend of Pope Benedict XIV, and successively Secretary of the Congregation of the Index, and Master of the Sacred Palace. Hymns: 138, 139, 140, 141.

SEDULIUS, CAELIUS, was born probably at Rome in the 5th century. Late in life he became a convert to Christianity and remained a layman. His principal work is his Carmen Paschale, in five books. The first book contains a summary of the Old Testament; the remaining four contain a summary of the New Testament. Hymns: 39, 46.

TAROZZI, VINCENTIUS, was Secretary of Latin Letters to Pope Leo XIII, who was Pope from 1878-1903. No other information obtainable. Hymns: 101, 102, 103.

THEODULPH, ST. (760-821) was Bishop of Orleans in France. He was probably an Italian by birth. He became a member of the court of Charlemagne, through whose influence he became Bishop of Orleans. "After the death of Charles he continued for some time on friendly terms with the Emperor Louis, but, falling under suspicion of being concerned in the plot in favor of Bernard of Italy, he was imprisoned in 818, at Angers, where he seems to have died in 821" (Julian's Dict. of Hymnol.). Hymn: 58.

THOMAS AQUINAS, ST. (1227-1274) was born at

AUTHORS OF THE HYMNS

Aquino, a town near Naples. He entered the Dominican Order and became one of the greatest doctors of the Church. He is by common consent, "The Poet of the Most Holy Sacrament of the Altar." He composed the Mass and Office of the Feast of Corpus Christi and five sublime hymns in honor of the Blessed Sacrament. Hymns: 75, 76, 77, 78, 79.

THOMAS OF CELANO was born at Celano in Italy about 1200, and died about 1255. He was one of the first disciples of St. Francis Assisi. On the death of St. Francis, Thomas, at the request of Pope Gregory IX, wrote his life. He also wrote two beautiful sequences in honor of St. Francis. His immortality as a poet is based on his very probable authorship of the greatest of all hymns, the Dies Iræ. Hymn: 87.

URBAN VIII, POPE (1568-1644) was born at Florence, and was educated at the Collegio Romano. He graduated from the University of Padua as Doctor of Laws. He is commonly recognized as a generous patron of learning, and was himself a man of letters, and an elegant writer and poet. It is not unnatural that a man of his taste and culture should have become imbued with the Humanistic spirit of the age in which he lived. It was under his directions that the hymns of the Roman Breviary were revised by a committee of four distinguished Jesuit scholars. The revised hymns were published in 1632, and are still found in the Roman Breviary. Hymns: 92, 93, 94, 107, 108, 123, 124, 142, 143.

WIPO was a native of Burgundy, and flourished during the first half of the eleventh century. He was a secular priest, and was for some time chaplain to the Emperors Conrad II, and Henry III, to each of whom he presented a collection of poems. Hymn: 59.

XAVIER, ST. FRANCIS (1506-1552), the Apostle of India and Japan, was born near Sanguesa in Spain. He studied at the University of Paris, and was one of the first associates of St. Ignatius of Loyola when the latter founded the Society of Jesus. Shortly after his ordination he began his wonderful missionary career which ended only with his death. Hymn: 74.

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

AYLWARD, VERY REV. JAMES AMBROSE, O.P. (1813-1872) was the Dominican Prior at Woodchester, England. His translations were edited by Mr. Orby Shipley, in whose Annus Sanctus many of them appear. "Father Aylward," says Mr. Shipley, "was a cultured and talented priest of varied powers and gifts, whose memory is held dear by all who knew and were influenced by him." Hymns: 67, 68, 87.

BAGSHAW, MOST REV. EDWARD GILPIN (1829-1915). Educated at St. Mary's College Oscott, and at London University. Bishop of Nottingham (1874), titular Archbishop of Seleucia (1904). Translated all the hymns of the Breviary and Missal in his Breviary Hymns and Missal Sequences (Burns, Oates and Washbourne, London, 1900). His translations are the latest as well as the most literal of all the translations of our Latin hymns. His sole aim was "to keep to the sense of the original, neither adding to this nor taking from it" (Preface). His translations are too labored and prosy, but it is unfair to judge them without considering the purpose of their pious author. Hymns: 98, 146.

BALL, REV. THOMAS ISAAC, LL.D. (1838-1916). Dr. Ball contributed numerous translations of Latin hymns to many hymnals, notable among which are the Appendix to the Hymnal Noted, 1863, and The New Office Hymn Book, 1905. His translations are faithful, musical, and sustained. Hymns: 81, 90, 135.

BENEDICTINES OF STANBROOK, Worcester, England. The translations ascribed to The Benedictines of Stanbrook are taken from their classic little volume The Day Hours of the Church, which contains the Breviary Office in Latin and English for all the Hours except Matins. (Burns, Oates and Washbourne, London, 1916.) Hymns: 99, 100, 121, 122, 140.

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

BLACKER, REV. MAXWELL JULIUS, M.A. (1822-1888). Mr. Blacker was educated at Merton College, Oxford. His numerous translations from the Latin are in The Hymner. Hymns: 10, 114, 115, 151.

BLOUNT, WALTER KIRKHAM (d. 1717). Author of the Office of Holy Week, Paris, 1670. Hymn: 51.

BLEW, REV. WM. JOHN, M.A. (1808-1894) was educated at Wadham College, Oxford. "His translations are terse, vigorous, musical, and of great merit. They have been strangely overlooked by the compilers of recent hymn-books" (Dict. of Hymnol.). His translations appeared in The Church Hymn and Tune Book, 1852. Hymns: 70, 113.

BUTE, THE MARQUESS OF, M.A. (1847-1900) was educated at Christ Church, Oxford. Convert, 1869. Translator of the Roman Breviary into English. The translations of Latin hymns in his Roman Breviary in English are the work of many scholars, both Catholic and non-Catholic. It is not known which hymns are from the pen of the Marquess. The following are from his Roman Breviary: 84, 95, 141.

CAMPBELL, ROBERT (1814-1868) was an advocate of Skerrington, Scotland. Convert, 1852. Educated at the Universities of Glasgow and Edinburgh. In 1850 many of his translations appeared in the St. Andrew's Hymnal. Many others were left by him in MSS. and were edited by Mr. Orby Shipley. From these Mr. Shipley published a considerable number in his Annus Sanctus, 1884. His translations are "smooth, musical, and sustained" (Dict. of Hymnol.). Hymns: 59B, 60, 62.

CASWALL, REV. EDWARD, M.A. (1814-1878) was educated at Brasenose College, Oxford. Convert, 1847. After his conversion he joined Cardinal Newman at the Oratory, Edgbaston. Father Caswall, despite the great names of Newman, Faber, and others, is pre-eminently "The Poet of the Oratory" (Father Matthew Russell, S.J.). With Dr. Neale, Father Caswall shares the honor of being the most felicitous of the translators of our Latin Hymns. His translations appeared in his Lyra Catholica, in 1848, the year following his reception into the Church. "Caswall's translations of Latin hymns from the Roman Breviary and other sources have a wider circulation in modern hymnals than those of any other translator, Dr. Neale alone excepted. This is owing to his general faithfulness to the originals, and to the purity of his rhythm" (Dict. of Hymnol.). Many of Father Caswall's translations appear in the Annus Sanctus and are characterized by Mr. Shipley as "vigorous, dogmatic hymns." Father Caswall translated the Roman Breviary Text. Despite his undoubted ability as a translator, one can not but regret that so many of his translations are in Common Meter instead of Long Meter. Hymns: 22, 31, 32, 37, 42B, 43, 47, 54, 73, 74, 76, 78, 83, 85, 86, 88, 89, 93, 106, 107, 108, 110, 111, 112, 117, 119, 124, 125, 126, 127, 132, 134, 137, 147, 148, 152, 153, 162, 165, 167.

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

CHADWICK, JOSEPH WILLIAM, M.A. (1841-1882). Educated at Queen's College, Oxford. Vicar of Westgate Common, Wakefield. His translations in this volume are from The Hymner. Hymns: 13, 17, 19.

CHAMBERS, JOHN DAVID, M.A. (1805-1893) was educated at Oriel College, Oxford, and was admitted to the bar in 1831. His translations are found principally in his Lauda Syon, which appeared in two parts in 1857 and 1866. "His translations of Latin hymns are close, clear, and poetical; they have much strength and earnestness, and the rhythm is easy and musical . . . Greater use, however, might be made of these translations than has been done. Their earnestness and dignity would raise the tone of many collections" (Dict. of Hymnol.). Hymns: 13, 21, 28, 161.

COPELAND, WM. JOHN, M.A. (1804-1885). Mr. Copeland was educated at Trinity College, Oxford. His translations, mostly from the Roman Breviary Text, appeared in his Hymns for the Week and Seasons (1848). He was also the editor of Cardinal Newman's Sermons. Hymn: 9.

COURTHOPE, WILLIAM JOHN, LL.D. (1842-1917), was educated at Harrow, and New College, Oxford. Mr. Courthope was professor of poetry at Oxford, 1895-1901. Author of History of English Poetry, 4 vols., 1895-1903. He contributed five beautiful translations of Latin hymns to Church Hymns, 1903; through the kindness of The Macmillan Company all of these spirited translations appear in this volume. Hymns: 14, 16, 18, 27, 36.

DEARMER, REV. PERCY, M.A., D.D. (b. 1867), was educated at Christ Church, Oxford. He was one of the compilers of the English Hymnal, 1906, to which he contributed ten translations. He was appointed to the Chair of Ecclesiastical Art, King's College, London, 1919. Hymn: 156.

DONAHOE, JUDGE DANIEL JOSEPH, was born at Brimfield, Mass., 1853, and was educated at Wesleyan University. He is the author of several volumes of poetry, original and translated. His translations from the Latin comprise two volumes under the title Early Christian Hymns, published by the Donahoe Publishing Co., Middletown, Conn. These translations, 288 in all, include 115 hymns from the Breviary and Missal. They are uniformly musical but quite free. Early Christian Hymns is the most extensive work of its kind thus far undertaken in America, or even in England since the days of Neale and Caswall. Judge Donahoe is a frequent contributor to several magazines. Hymns: 86, 123, 142, 143, 159.

DORAN, J. W. No information obtainable. His translations are from The Hymner. Hymns: 69, 151.

DRYDEN, JOHN (1631-1701). Poet-Laureate, 1670. Convert, 1685. Mr. Orby Shipley and Mr. W. T. Brooke ascribe to John Dryden the bulk of the 120 translations of Latin hymns in The Primer, or Office of the B. V. Mary in English, 1706. Many of these translations are in the Annus Sanctus, the Preface of which contains a discussion of the question of Dryden's authorship. Hymns: 50, 72.

ELLERTON, REV. JOHN, M.A. (1826-1893). Mr. Ellerton was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. He is widely known as an hymnologist, editor, hymn-writer, and translator. He was one of the editors of Church Hymns, 1871, published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge (S. P. C. K.). Hymn: 4.

FABER, FREDERIC WILLIAM, D.D. (1814-1863). Father Faber was educated at Balliol College, Oxford. Convert, 1845. In 1849 he established in London the

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

“Oratorians,” or Priests of the Congregation of St. Philip Neri, where he remained as superior until his death. Father Faber is the author of many well known prose works full of sweetness and unction, and a Book of Hymns, 150 in number, many of which have become very popular. He is best known as a writer of original hymns, not as a translator. Hymn: 133.

GARESCHE, REV. EDWARD FRANCIS, S.J., M.A. (b. 1876). Father Garesché was educated at St. Louis University, and at Washington University. Practiced law 1898-1900. Entered the Society of Jesus, 1900. Lawyer, author, professor, poet, and formerly editor of The Queen's Work, St. Louis. Hymn: 80.

HALL, RT. REV. MSGR. CANON LOUIS (1844-1911) was educated at St. Edmund's, Old Hall, and was ordained in 1868 for the Diocese of Southwark. In the division of the diocese in 1882 he was made Canon of the diocese of Portsmouth, and was several times Administrator of the diocese. Msgr. Hall was a devout and cultured priest, and a musician and composer of ability. Many of his hymns, the editor has been informed, are still unpublished. Hymn: 116.

HENRY, RT. REV. MSGR. HUGH THOMAS, LITT.D., LL.D. (b. 1862), poet, lecturer, and hymnologist. Professor of Homiletics in the Catholic University of America. Msgr. Henry was educated at La Salle College, the University of Pennsylvania, and at St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pa. For many years he was professor of English and of Gregorian Chant at St. Charles, and rector of the Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia. He contributed to the Catholic Encyclopedia some fifty scholarly articles on our Latin hymns. He is widely and favorably known as a hymn-writer and translator. His translations appeared principally in his Eucharistica (Dolphin Press, Philadelphia), and in the pages of the American Ecclesiastical Review, and in other periodicals. He has also rendered into English verse the Poems, Charades, and Inscriptions of Pope Leo XIII (Dolphin Press). Hymns: 8, 41, 75, 96, 97, 131, 139, 144.

HORT, FENTON JOHN ANTHONY, B.A. (1828-1892),

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. He held several distinguished appointments at Cambridge University. He translated a few Latin hymns. Hymn: 4.

HOUSMAN, LAURENCE (b. 1867). Author and artist. He contributed several translations to the English Hymnal, 1906. His devotional poetry is found chiefly in his Spikenard, 1898, and in his Bethlehem, 1902. Hymn: 164.

HUNTER-BLAIR, RT. REV. OSWALD (Sir David Hunter-Blair, Baronet), O.S.B., M.A. (b. 1853). Born at Dunskey, Scotland. Educated at Eton and Magdalen Colleges, Oxford. Convert, 1875. Entered the Benedictine Order in 1878. Master of Hunter-Blair's Hall, Oxford, 1899-1909. Elected Abbot of St. Benedict's Abbey, Fort Augustus, Scotland, 1913. Author, historian, and extensive contributor to Catholic periodicals and to the Catholic Encyclopedia. Hymns: 30, 141.

HUSENBETH, VERY REV. FREDERICK CHARLES, D.D. (1796-1872). Educated at Oscott College. Provost and Vicar-General of Northampton Diocese. Author and editor of many volumes pertaining to doctrinal, historical, and liturgical matters. Notable among these is his Missal for the Laity. A number of his translations are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. Hymn: 82.

IRONS, WILLIAM JOSIAH, B.A. (1812-1883). Educated at Queen's College, Oxford. He is best known for his translation of the Dies Iræ, which is more extensively used than any other translation of that great hymn. Hymns: 87D, 166.

JULIAN, REV. JOHN, D.D. (1839-1913) was editor of the Dictionary of Hymnology, a monumental work which sets forth the origin and history of Christian hymns of all ages and nations. It contains much valuable information on Latin hymns. Hymn: 20.

LACEY, REV. THOMAS ALEXANDER, M.A. (b. 1853). Educated at Balliol College, Oxford. He was one of the committee that compiled The English Hymnal, to which he contributed eleven translations from the Latin and one from the Greek. His translations are of a high order. Hymn: 48.

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

LEESON, JANE ELIZABETH (1807-1882). Of Miss Leeson's personal history nothing is known. She published several books of hymns, especially for children. Her widely used translation of the Victimæ Paschali first appeared in Father Formby's Catholic Hymns, 1851. Miss Leeson, the editor has been informed, was a devout Catholic. Hymn: 59.

LITTLEDALE, REV. RICHARD FREDERICK, B.A., LL.D. (1833-1890), was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and was an hymnologist of note. He contributed hymns to many collections, and was one of the contributors to the Marquess of Bute's Roman Breviary in English. Hymn: 157.

MACCARTHY, DENIS FLORENCE (1817-1882) was Professor of poetry in the Catholic University of Dublin. By his incomparable version of Calderon, "the Spanish Shakespeare," he has won a permanent place in English letters. He was an ardent patriot and a devout Catholic. Hymn: 57.

MCDUGALL, ALAN G., was born in 1895, and was received into the Church in 1919. He resides in London. Mr. McDougall is the author of Pange Lingua—a collection of Breviary hymns of old use, with English metrical translations. The translations are exceptionally good and they rank among the most felicitous in the language. They are "equal to Neale's at his best" is the opinion of no less an authority than Mr. James Britten. This is high praise but it is not unmerited. The volume contains a scholarly thirty-page introduction by Dr. Adrian Fortescue. Pange Lingua is published by Burns, Oates and Washbourne, 22 Orchard St., London, and it is a beautiful specimen of the book-maker's art. Hymns: 1, 64, 77, 105, 129, 136, 138, 155.

NEALE, REV. JOHN MASON, D.D. (1818-1866) was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. Dr. Neale was an eminent hymnologist and a most felicitous translator of Greek and Latin hymns. His translations of Latin hymns appeared in his Medieval Hymns and Sequences, 1851, and in the Hymnal Noted, 1852 and 1854, in which 94 out of the 105 hymns therein are translated from the Latin by Dr. Neale. Most modern hymnals contain some of

Neale's translations; two, however, easily obtained, are especially deserving of note; viz., the Rev. G. R. Woodward's Songs of Syon, and the Rev. G. H. Palmer's The Hymner. The latter book, so we are told in the Preface, contains "translations of all, save two, of the Hymns from the Sarum Breviary . . . Of the total number nearly one-half are from the pen of the late Dr. J. M. Neale, of whose vigorous and scholarly renderings the editor has gladly availed himself." Neale's translations are from the Original Text, not from the Roman Breviary Text. Hymns: 3, 5, 6, 11, 23, 24, 26, 34B, 38, 39, 46, 49, 52, 53, 58, 58B, 66, 69, 71, 78, 134B, 150, 154, 158, 163, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173.

NEWMAN, JOHN HENRY CARDINAL (1801-1890) was educated at Ealing, and at Trinity College, Oxford. Convert, 1845. Founder and superior of the Birmingham Oratory and School. Rector of the Catholic University in Dublin, 1854-1858. Created Cardinal by Pope Leo XIII, in 1879. His translations from the Roman Breviary, thirty-three in all, are found in his Verses on Various Occasions. His most popular translation is that of the Nunc Sancte nobis Spiritus, hymn 2 of this volume. Hymns: 2, 15, 130.

OAKELEY, VERY REV. FREDERICK, M.A. (1802-1880) was educated at Christ Church, Oxford. He was a prominent Tractarian and author. Convert, 1845. Canon of the Cathedral of Westminster. He is widely known for his fine translation of the Adeste Fideles. Hymn: 40.

O'HAGAN, JOHN (1822-1890) was born at Newry, Ireland, and was educated by the Jesuit Fathers in Dublin, and at Trinity College. Justice O'Hagan was a devout Catholic, a distinguished lawyer, and man of letters. He was a member of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland. His fine translation of the Adoro Te devote was a great favorite with the late Father Matthew Russell, S.J., who included it in several of his charming little books on the Blessed Sacrament. Hymn: 79.

OXENHAM, HENRY NUTCOMBE (1829-1888) was educated at Balliol College, Oxford. Convert, 1857. He is the author of several volumes. Several of his translations are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. Hymn: 120.

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

PAUL, CHARLES KEGAN, M.A. (1828-1902), was educated at Eton College, Oxford. Convert, 1890. He was an author, and head of the well-known publishing house of Kegan Paul, Trench, Trubner & Co. Hymn: 102.

PALMER, REV. GEORGE HERBERT, B.A., was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. Mr. Palmer is the editor of The Antiphoner and Grail, and The Hymner, which is exceptionally valuable both for the number and quality of its translations from the Latin. All the translations by Mr. Palmer, M. J. Blacker, J. W. Doran, and J. W. Chadwick in this volume, are from The Hymner. Hymns: 19, 69, 114, 115, 157.

POTTER, REV. THOMAS JOSEPH (1828-1873). Convert, 1847. Father Potter was for many years professor of Belles Lettres and Sacred Eloquence at All Hallows College, Dublin. He is the author of several volumes, one of which, Sacred Eloquence, has been widely used as a text-book in Catholic Seminaries. He translated the Vespers hymns of the Breviary for the Catholic Psalmist. Hymns: 29, 38, 63, 65, 91, 92, 104, 109, 118, 128.

PRIMER. The Primer, or Office of the B. V. Mary in English, was a book of devotion which was very popular with our forefathers. Several editions appeared in the 17th and 18th centuries. The Appendix to Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus, contains many beautiful translations from different editions of the Primer. Hymns: 33, 35, 50, 71.

RILEY, ATHELSTAN, M.A. (b. 1858), was educated at Eton and at Pembroke College, Oxford. Mr. Riley is one of the compilers of the English Hymnal, 1906, to which he contributed seven translations from the Latin. The English Hymnal (Oxford University Press, London) is one of the finest of modern hymnals. It contains 162 translations from the Latin, many of which are recent translations of unusual beauty. Hymns: 42, 149.

SCOTT, SIR WALTER (1771-1832), the eminent poet and novelist, is the author of a fine condensed rendering of the Dies Iræ. Hymn: 87B.

SHIPLEY, ORBY, M.A. (1832-1916), was educated at Jesus College, Cambridge. He was an Anglican clergyman for twenty-two years. He entered the Church in 1878,

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

and at the time of his death he was one of the last of the illustrious band of converts whose conversion is traced directly to the Tractarian Movement. Mr. Shipley was an hymnologist of great ability and his compilation, the Annus Sanctus is repeatedly referred to in this volume. He is also the editor of the Carmina Mariana, and other collections now out of print. He edited the MSS. of Robert Campbell, and of the Very Rev. Prior Aylward, O.P., and included many of their finest translations in his Annus Sanctus (Burns, Oates & Washbourne, London).

WALLACE, REV. WILFRID, O.S.B., D.D. (d. 1896). Father Wallace was educated at London University and in Rome. He was ordained a secular priest and was known to the world as John Wallace. In 1877 he entered the Benedictine Order and was afterwards known by his religious name Wilfrid. In his Hymns of the Church, 1874, he translated all the hymns of the Breviary and Missal. Several of his translations are in Mr. Shipley's Annus Sanctus. Strangely enough his best translations are from the Passion Offices which are not included in the latest edition of the Breviary. Hymns: 94, 103, 145.

WALWORTH, REV. CLARENCE ALPHONSUS (1820-1900) was an Episcopal clergyman who entered the Catholic Church and became one of the founders of the Paulist Congregation. His fine translation of the Te Deum is in extensive use. Hymn: 8.

WINGFIELD, WILLIAM FREDERICK, M.A. (1813-1874), was educated at Christ Church, Oxford. Convert, 1845. Before his conversion he was an Anglican clergyman; after his conversion, a barrister. Hymn: 87.

WOODWARD, REV. GEORGE RATCLIFF, M.A. (b. 1848), was educated at Harrow, and at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge. He is the editor of the excellent hymnal, Songs of Syon, to which he contributed many translations from the Latin, Greek, and German. His translations from the Latin do not include any of the Breviary hymns. He is also the author of the widely known Cowley Carol Book. Hymn: 149B.

YATTENDON HYMNAL, 1899. The Yattendon Hymnal was edited by Mr. Robert Bridges, the Poet-

TRANSLATORS OF THE HYMNS

Laureate. It contains, in all, one hundred hymns, many of them recent translations of a high order. Hymn: 12.

RELIGIOUS AFFILIATIONS OF TRANSLATORS

It is interesting to record here the religious affiliations of the translators whose hymns find a place in this volume. It will be observed from the biographies given above that among the Catholic translators fully one-half are converts. Among those classed as Anglicans the writer believes that all are of the High Church party.

CATHOLICS: Aylward, Bagshawe, Bute, Campbell, Caswall, Donahoe, Dryden, Faber, Garesché, Hall, Henry, Hunter-Blair, Husenbeth, Leeson, McDougall, MacCarthy, Newman, Oakeley, O'Hagan, Oxenham, Paul, Potter, Wallace, Walworth, and Wingfield. The translations in the Primers are all by Catholics.

ANGLICANS: Ball, Blacker, Blew, Chadwick, Chambers, Copeland, Courthope, Dearmer, Ellerton, Hort, Housman, Irons, Julian, Lacey, Littledale, Neale, Palmer, Riley, and Woodward.

The religious affiliation of Doran is not definitely known to the writer; he was probably an Anglican.

Scott was nominally a Presbyterian with a leaning toward the Episcopal Church.

GLOSSARY

- Aurora, æ*, the dawn. In alleg. the Blessed Virgin, who was the Dawn that heralded the rising Sun of Justice. (Mal. 4, 2.)
- Avernus, i*, hell. The Humanistic revisers of the Breviary hymns introduced many pagan poetical names for heaven and hell.
- Bethlem*, another form of Bethlehem, the birthplace of David and of Christ. It is five miles south of Jerusalem.
- Christiades, um*, pl. Christians. This word occurs twice. It is not found in the dictionaries, not even in Du Cange. See hymns 94, 104.
- circulus, i*, circle. Used in the hymns in such expressions as "dierum circulo," "dierum circulis," and in the Vulgate—"post anni circulum"—"after the course of a year." "Now the circling years disclose."—Pope: Odyssey.
- cælites* (pl. of cæles, itis), the blessed, the heavenly spirits. This word and jubar were great favorites with the revisers of the Breviary hymns.
- compos, potis*, with genitive, partaking of, sharing in, participating in.
- confiteor* 2, to praise. Confitebor tibi Domine in toto corde meo (Ps. 9, 2).
- denus* for the pl. deni. The singular form of the distributive numerals is quite common.
- edo, edidi* 3, to beget, bring forth, cause.
- Flamen, inis* (from flare, to blow), the Holy Spirit; just as "spirit" is from spirare, to blow.
- Genitor, oris*, the Father; Genitus, the Son.
- in*, prep., in, into; as, for. Et dederunt in (as, for) escam meam fel (Ps. 68, 22).
- jubar, aris*, ray, beam, splendor, glory.
- jugis*, adj., continual, perpetual; jugiter, adv., forever.
- livor, oris, fig.*, envy, spite, malice, ill-will; mostly poet. and post-Aug. for invidia.

GLOSSARY

- lubricus*, adj., slippery, dangerous; impure, unclean. See "lubricous" in any unabridged English dictionary.
- lumbi, orum*, the loins, reins, considered as the seat of the passions or affections.
- machina, æ*, structure, fabric, frame, order.
- Numen, inis*, God, the Godhead, the Divine Will.
- obvius*, adj., in the way so as to meet, meeting.
- Olympus, i*, heaven. See "Avernus."
- Orcus, i*, hell. See "Avernus."
- palma, æ*, a palm, palm branch; victory, the palm branch as a symbol of victory.
- pango*, to fasten; to compose, to write, hence "to sing."
- plaga, æ*, wound, blow, stripe. See following word.
- plaga, æ*, region, quarter, lands. See preceding word.
- polus, i* (or pl.), heaven, the heavens.
- præsepe, is*, a manger. Also præsepes, is; præsepia, æ; præsepium, i.
- Sion*, lit., a hill in Jerusalem on which stood the royal palace; fig., the Church, esp. the Church Militant, the faithful. In general, Sion is the Church on earth; Jerusalem, the Church in heaven. The necessities of meter do not always permit this distinction to be observed.
- Solymæ, arum*, and Solyma, orum are poetical forms of Hierosolyma, orum, Jerusalem.
- Tartarus, i*, and Tartara, orum, hell. See "Avernus."
- Verbum, i*, The Word, the Eternal Son, the second Person of the Holy Trinity.
- votum, i* (mostly pl.), prayer, wish, desire, "votum solvere," to fulfill one's vows or obligations, "voti compotes," having obtained their wish.
